MURDER 3D WOMAN IN HOTEL

ILLNESS HALTS COUGHLIN TALK IN BLAZING SUN

25,000 See Priest in Near Collapse.

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
(Picture on Back Page.)

Cleveland, O., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—After speaking for half an hour under the broiling sun on the open field of the Cleveland stadium this afternoon, the Rev. Father Charles E. Coughlin placed his right hand across the pit of his stomach, and, plainly distressed, peered at his wrist watch.

Five minutes later, with ten minutes still to go on two nation-wide broadcasting chains, the priest ended his speech suddenly.

"I'm sorry," he said, in semi-collapse, his mouth drawn and perspiration dripping from his face, "I can't address you further. I have been ill all night. God bless you."

Helped from Stand to Auto.

As he turned away followers leaped to his side, helped him down the two short flights of steps leading from the speakers' stand—just over second base in the big athletic field—and half carried him to the automobile that came racing, siren shrieking, from the sidelines.

At the Hollenden hotel, where he has his headquarters, it was announced that Father Coughlin's illness was not dangerous.

Dr. George J. O'Malley, personal friend of the priest, said Father Coughlin was suffering only from exhaustion and nervous indigestion. Dr. O'Malley advised complete rest for at least a week.

Thomas J. Coughlin, father of the priest, said, "He's just tired out. He has been working too hard."

Blocks High Light of His Address.

Approximately 25,000 persons, including the inevitable sightseers who came through the "free gate," filled about a third of the spectators' stands to listen to the program on which Father Coughlin was to climax speeches by the two Union party candidates indorsed yesterday by his organization, the National Union for Social Justice—Congressman William Lemke and Thomas C. O'Brien.

The delegates, alternates, and visitors apparently were unaware that the priest contemplated, according to report, a stirring final ten minutes of exhortation that would have excoriated the New Deal. He spoke without reference to any prepared text, and during the thirty-five minutes of his address he really had not cut loose on the national administration except with an occasional shot such as "Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Tugwell, and the rest of the communists."

Lemke's Time Cut Short.

That he was unable to finish was the second disappointment of the day to these enemies of the New Deal. Congressman Lemke had written a full hour's speech before he came here, and had distributed copies of it. Today he was informed that of the seventy-five minutes' time on the radio he was to have only twenty-four minutes.

Lemke's reaction was instantaneous. He told newspaper men that he would speak extemporaneously. What he did was to eliminate all of his introduction—a bombardment of the New Deal burocracy as "mad" and "drunk with power." That left only a presentation of the platform of the Union party, his own organization, indorsement of which the convention yesterday refused.

Applaud Rejected Platform.

That was old stuff to the newspaper gallery, on the grass of the infield, but their interest was aroused, however, when, as he took up plank after plank of the platform they had rejected twenty-four hours earlier, the delegates and alternates applauded, cheered, and whistled.

But as usual their full enthusiasm was reserved for their first nationally-elected president, Father Coughlin, whose overnight indisposition had kept him at his hotel until the exact minute of his scheduled appearance. He entered the stadium through a left field exit tunnel, just as Lemke finished speaking, and the sudden, tremendous applause that sprang up bewildered the North Dakotan until he turned and saw the priest walking across the grass behind him.

The radio priest devoted the thirty-five minutes of his appearance to preparing the way for his peroration—a

LANDON BUILDS GREATER LEAD IN FARM POLL

Gets 51.8% of Vote; Roosevelt 41.7%.

Gov. Alf M. Landon, Republican nominee for President, has increased in the last month his lead over President Roosevelt in the straw vote being taken among farmers by the Farm Journal, an agricultural periodical published in Philadelphia.

The latest figures on the poll, which will appear in the September issue of the Farm Journal and are included in a copyrighted tabulation released yesterday by the magazine, gave Landon 51.8 per cent of the total vote shown and Roosevelt 41.7 per cent. They place Landon ahead in nineteen of the twenty-nine states for which poll figures are given.

The tabulation includes 71,587 votes. Landon has 37,047; Roosevelt, 29,828; Lemke, 1,519; Norman Thomas, 551, and miscellaneous candidates, 2,642. In the first poll figures sent out by the Farm Journal four weeks ago Landon had 25,307 and Roosevelt, 20,689.

Lemke Shows an Influence.

Although the percentage of the total vote in this tabulation for Congressman William Lemke, candidate of the Union party is only 2.1 per cent, the Farm Journal says that figure does not represent his real strength. Lemke's share of the ballots received in the last three weeks, the magazine's release states, is approximately 5.9 per cent, and in Iowa, Michigan, Ohio, and Wisconsin it is much higher.

The Journal gives the percentages for the candidates in the Wisconsin ballots received in the last three weeks to illustrate. These figures give Landon 39.9 per cent; Roosevelt, 30; Lemke, 27.4, and others, 2.7. The Journal says that the Lemke vote in Minnesota is "surprisingly small." No ballots have been obtained yet in North Dakota, Lemke's home state.

The Figures by States.

	Landon.	Roosevelt.	Lemke.
California	542	834	10
Connecticut	339	123	.....

West Virginia	505	325	.....
Wisconsin	2,334	1,396	520
Totals	37,047	29,828	1,519

"The nineteen states not included in this tabulation," reads the Farm Journal's statement, "are chiefly the solid south and the mountain states, the former of which may be conceded to Mr. Roosevelt. In the other states the number of ballots received are as yet too few to be significant."

According to the Farm Journal only ballots obtained by representatives of the magazine in personal calls on farmers in their homes are included in its figures.

FACTS FOR FARMERS

In the six months which ended June 30, American families ate 18 million pounds of foreign pork.

At that rate 36 million pounds of foreign pork will be eaten by Americans this year.

In the ten years preceding, the amount of foreign pork consumed in the United States annually has never exceeded six million pounds.

Corn Wallace gets the lether medal for this triumph of the planned economy which killed six million little pigs and 220,000 expectant mother sows, destroying the meat.

That increased by 500 per cent the American market for foreign pork and brought the more abundant life to the swine herdsmen of Europe.

THE LAST TACKLER

Voice from Sky Clears Sunday Trafic Tangles

Chief Lester J. Laird of the county highway police directed trafic on congested highways by radio last evening from an air liner which made two circles over the Chicago district. He ordered squad cars to the scene of trafic jams and spoke to motorists through their auto radios, advising them how to avoid tie-ups.

A similar effort to aid the estimated 750,000 Sunday motorists on the highways will be made each week until the end of the summer. Stormy weather last Sunday prevented radio transmission and spoiled the first experimental flight.

Gutknecht Makes Flight.

Chief Laird and Judge John Gutknecht of the Safety court, who also spoke to the automobilists from the sky, were enthusiastic about the success of yesterday's flight and predicted the system will be adopted in other large cities. The judge spoke briefly on highway safety problems.

"I wish every motorist could take a plane ride over the city," he said, "and see what a large part lack of courtesy plays in highway disasters. I have seen many cars speed across busy intersections—the kind of driving that fills the Safety court."

Tells Drivers to Avoid Jam.

Flying over the intersection of Ogden and Cicero avenues and 26th street Chief Laird noticed a hopeless tangle of cars. He ordered a squad car to the scene and warned motorists to avoid the intersection. In 79th street between Cicero and Crawford avenues Laird saw trafic crawling.

"Detour south on Cicero to 87th street," he advised the drivers below him. "Go east on 87th to Crawford and then back to 79th street."

Again, as he saw crawling automobiles on the southwestern highways, Laird said: "All motorists from Joliet bound for points east of Hammond should use U. S. highway 6 to avoid a detour on route 30 between New Lennox and Frankfort."

Helps at Other Points.

Other congested points which received attention during the broadcast included the intersection of highways 60, 42A, and 21 in Niles; highways 12 and 20 through Hammond and Gary, and the Waukegan road, where a new grade crossing is being constructed near Glenview.

The air trafic cop rode in a Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., 14 passenger sky liner, piloted by R. H. Hediman. He spoke through a short wave transmitter to station WBBM, which rebroadcast the program to motorists.

SPANIARDS REVISE GANGSTER CUSTOM; WORD FOR IT IS 'WALK'

MADRID, Aug. 16.—(AP)—The expression "llevar a passear"—"to take a walk"—has come to have the same sinister connotation in Spain as "taking a ride" in American gangster jargon. No check has been kept on the number to "take a walk," but informed persons believed it has reached several thousand. The slightest suspicion of Fascist leanings is a death warant in those parts of Spain held by the government.

The largest wholesale execution of Fascists was reported to have taken place recently outside Punte de Ballecas, south of Madrid, with 254 persons slain in one batch.

ATTORNEY LEAPS TO DEATH FROM EXCURSION SHIP

Charles A. Pepper, 32 years old, an attorney, was drowned last night when he leaped from the deck of the excursion steamer City of Grand Rapids three miles off Waukegan. His identity was established by cards and papers found in his coat, which he left on the deck before he jumped.

Several acquaintances on the steamer saw him go over the rail and sounded an alarm. A life preserver was thrown into the water and the ship was turned around. Searchlights were played over the water, but Pepper had disappeared. The steamer then resumed its trip from Milwaukee to Navy pier, docking at 10:35 p. m., 25 minutes late.

Joseph Furlan, 2943 South Wells street, one of the witnesses of the plunge, said Pepper had announced to a group of friends that he wanted to go swimming. They restrained him once, Furlan said, but a short time later the attorney turned suddenly and dived into the water.

Evansville, Ind., Aug. 16.—(AP)—A son, Richard, was born today to Mr. and Mrs. F. Harold Van Orman. Van Orman is a former lieutenant governor of Indiana. His wife was the former Harlette Hodgini of Chicago, circus equestrienne. Van Orman, operator of a chain of hotels in Indiana, Ohio, and Illinois, and the former circus star were married in Macon, Ga., last Nov. 6. Van Orman, who once was president of the American Hotel Operators' association, is 51. His wife is 21.

Priest Ejects Girl in Slacks from Church

Babylon, N. Y., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—A pretty young summer visitor was forciby ejected from St. Joseph's Catholic church, Babylon, Father James Smith disclosed today, because she "desecrated the house of God" by wearing a halter and slacks to the confessional.

The pastor, a gray-haired, dignified priest, who is well known throughout the Brooklyn diocese, discoursed heatedly on the subject at all his masses this morning.

Warned to Wear Hats.

"Some months ago I asked the ladies not to come into church without hats," he said, "because that is a symbol of respect they owe to the Blessed Sacrament. I didn't think it would ever be necessary for me to warn them that they must come properly dressed.

"Last night I was forced to eject—and when I say eject I mean physically eject—a young hussy who came into church barebacked and whose appearance in the House of God was a desecration and a sacrilege, showing absolute lack of reverence to her Savior.

Dragged from Pew.

"I dragged her from the pew, and if she had not finally consented to leave, I would have dragged her to the gutter, where morons of her type belong and whence she probably sprang.

"I thoroughly sympathize with the women, God bless them, during this warm weather. I readily appreciate the fact that they must try to keep cool. But they must also remember that the House of God is a house of worship. Christ himself drove the money changers from the temple and I intend to drive such morons to the gutter where they should properly be."

Tipsy Chipmunk Chases Fox Squirrel Up a Tree

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—Deputies raiding a moonshine still on Mount Spokane today found a colony of chipmunks quaffing of the dumped mash, chirruping, and chattering merrily. The officers were amazed, however, when one chipmunk broke from the party suddenly and chased a fox squirrel up a tree.

640 Excursionists Quit Boat, Damaged in Crash

Newell, W. Va., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Six hundred and forty men, women, and children marched calmly from the Ohio river excursion steamer Washington tonight after the boat crashed her hull against the gates in lock No. 8.

Husband Finds Body; Uncover Clews to Killer

The wanton murder of a 24 year old wife confronted police last night as the latest in a series of shocking slayings that have occurred throughout Chicago during the last year. Yesterday's victim was the third woman to be hammered to death by a night prowler in a hotel in the last four months.

Mrs. Mary Louise Trammell, formerly of Knoxville, Tenn., was the victim. Thomas Trammell, 40 years old, the young woman's husband, found her nude body late yesterday in their third floor room at the State hotel, 553 South State street. She had been strangled, beaten on the head, robbed, and apparently raped some time Saturday night or early yesterday morning.

Mother on Way from England.

Mrs. Trammell's mother, Mrs. James Link, and her step-father are expected to arrive tonight at New York city from England, where they have spent a six weeks' vacation. Mr. Link is connected with the Tennessee Public Service company at Knoxville.

Trammell, a Texan, formerly was employed in Knoxville by the Tennessee Valley authority as a cafeteria manager. A year and a half ago he met his wife and they were married at Clinton, Tenn. Since then he has been employed as a dining car steward for the Grand Trunk railway. The couple lived for a time in Atlanta, Ga., before coming to Chicago. They registered at the State hotel on June 26.

In many details Mrs. Trammell's murder was similar to that of Mrs. Lillian Guild, 50 years old, a widow, who was raped and beaten to death May 14 in a second floor room of the former Y. W. C. A. hotel at 830 South Michigan avenue. Thomas Starr, 31 years old, colored, was sentenced to 199 years for the slaying. He confessed also attacking a nurse with a brick in an earlier rape attempt.

Similar to Castle Case.

Another comparable murder occurred last June 29 when a "dark man" entered a room of the Devonshire hotel, 19 East Ohio street, where Mrs. Florence Thompson Castle, young night club hostess and her son, James, 7 years old, were asleep. The prowler beat her to death with a brick.

Mrs. Trammell's assailant apparently used such an instrument. Her skull was fractured in two places, one of them a deep gash on the side of her head. Moreover, the murderer left imprints of his fingers on the woman's throat. Officials will be unable to verify the evidence of rape until a thorough chemical analysis is completed.

Trammell discovered the body on his return yesterday from a railroad run through Michigan, on which he started Saturday morning.

Reds Peril Republic; Stir Army Unrest.

MADRID, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Spain's government, stumbling into the closing days of a month of civil war beset both by armed Fascist siege and by rising communist clamor for a "Baby Russia," announced tonight the seizure of a vast store of clerical wealth.

Authorities said more than 200,000,000 pesetas [nominally about $26,200,000] worth of currency, gold, jewels and negotiable securities belonging to the Sisters of St. Vincent De Paul had been found by government accountants registering deposits at the Bank of Credit Lyonnais.

Include Seven Pounds of Gold.

The contents of the Sisters' safety deposit vault, as listed by the government upon confiscation, included seven pounds of gold coin, 60,000 pesetas in state bonds, 2,000,000 pesetas in Spanish bank notes, jewels, religious objects and moneys of various nations aggregating 100,000,000 pesetas, and deeds for ninety-three blocks of Madrid real estate.

At the same time, general officers of the national confederation of labor announced a total of 500,000 pesetas [$66,000] in currency and negotiable securities had been taken from priests and nuns attempting to flee the country and "is being turned over to the government."

Use of the mechanical trench diggers marked a new phase of the government's defense program in the Guadarrama mountains north of Madrid. An elaborate system of trenches and barbed wire entanglements was being built along the foothills of the range.

Resume Irun Offensive.

In the north driving on Irun and other cities held by the government, the rebels resumed a general offensive that gave promise of heavy fighting. Three rebel cruisers threatened to bombard fortified heights outside San Sebastian, desperately defended by the government militiamen.

Fighting continued on the outskirts of the Asturian capital, of Oviedo, with many killed and wounded. Premier José Giral denied, however, reports that government miners and rebel defenders were fighting in Oviedo itself.

Government forces from Almeria [in the south] contended they had captured Cadiar in the province of Cordoba. Loyal flyers bombarded the towns of Lanjaron, Orjiva and Ventade las Angustias in Granada.

Radicals Cause Trouble.

There were reliable indications that potent communist and anarchist elements in the government militia, discontented with the halting progress against the Fascist rebels, had menaced the heart of the defense.

"Rusia chica!"—[Baby Russia].

That is the ominous slogan of communist elements discontented over the administration's slow conduct of the civil war.

Ever since the outbreak of the rebellion caused the then premier, Santiago Casares Quiroga, perspiring and desperate, to hand out arms to any one who would take them, the communists have been urged by anarchist gunmen to seize complete power in Madrid.

The anarchists want "direct, brutal, violent" action for suppression of the Fascist rebellion, it is reported.

Attack Weak Policy.

Discontent has spread to the headquarters of the General Union of Workers, where the Socialist deputies, Caballero and Del Vayo are in command. These leaders, some advices say, have been responsible for the direction of government forces in the last fortnight. They are the only Popular Front leaders who make daily visits to the fighting lines.

"The government is frightened—almost panic stricken," one communist leader has declared. Premier José Giral, this communist said, is reluctant to order the bombing of rebels barricaded in monuments of historic importance, such as the Toledo Alcazar. "It is impossible to win the war with such namby-pamby tactics."

Reliable witnesses declare anarchists, theoretically abhoring all authority, have refused in many cases to obey orders of their officers when under fire in the Guadarrama mountains.

In this way they have disorganized entire actions and at times, seized with panic, have taken whole battalions with them in flight.

The split between the government and militia—the latter the sole guarantors of order in Madrid and the mainstay of its defense—is reported to have been further widened when the premier turned down a militia offer to form an independent army of its own, 10,000 strong. The premier's main objection was to a condition that the army be given a free hand to operate at will on any front it chose.

Peril from Two Sides.

Ill feeling then was intensified, reliable reports relate, by the premier's further refusal to allow 5,000 Asturian miners brought to Madrid to operate with their usual weapons—sticks of dynamite.

As a result of these difficulties, President Manuel Azana and Premier Giral are struggling with their backs to the wall, fighting to save a democratic republic from Fascism with one hand and thrusting off communism and anarchy with the other.

Fears that the militia, if victorious against the rebels, may not disarm until it is forced to do so by the government to make way for a soviet régime are entertained in some government quarters.

Dismiss Madrid Judges.

The government launched a new and sweeping purge of courts and police forces in Madrid. All municipal judges and attorneys were dismissed; the chief of police announced wholesale suspensions of policemen charged with direct or indirect complicity in the rebellion; hundreds of functionaries were removed from official departments. Two hundred fifty new policemen were appointed to succeed those expelled.

Among persons seized today were the Duchess de la Victoria and Gen. Virgilio Cabanellas, brother of Miguel Cabanellas, leader of the revolt at Saragossa.

The ministry of interior ordered all citizens to stay in their homes at night unless they were provided with keys to their doors, since all watchmen were withdrawn from the streets pending further orders.

Consider Sentences.

Advices from Barcelona said 514 persons, under arrest aboard the prison ship Uruguay, were not allowed to communicate with any one ashore.

Supreme court judges were sitting in the sixth section of the Madrid Supreme court, drafting long sentences for Gen. Joaquin Fanjul and Lieut. Col. Fernandez de la Quintana, alleged ringleaders of the plot to deliver Montana barracks to rebels July 20. Their court martial ended early today.

Premier Giral declared: "I am anxious for the public to know our advances have been slow because we are engaged in a serious, and therefore a long and difficult war. This does not mean, of course, that our optimism lacks justification."

BRITONS BALK AT LEAVING MADRID AFTER WARNING

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

MADRID, Aug. 16.—Ogalvie Forbes, councillor to the British embassy who arrived here this morning, addressed a meeting of about 100 British residents, emphasizing the urgency of being evacuated while the opportunity remained. Several members of the colony stepped up and explained they would arrive in England destitute.

"What will become of us?" they asked.

One woman stoutly declared she would remain in Madrid until the bitter end because "I can live on a cup of tea and a biscuit."

BADAJOZ CITY OF DEAD AS REBELS ROUT LOYALISTS

600 Fall in 2 Day Fight for Border Town.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BADAJOZ, Spain, Aug. 16. — I entered Badajoz—now secure in rebel hands—to find dead still lying in the streets today and see soldiers busy washing away bloodstains on the pavement in front of military headquarters.

Moorish troops squatting on their haunches in doorways were busily cleaning their rifles. Within half an hour I saw four trucks piled with bodies of dead loyalists go by.

Between 500 and 600 loyalists were killed in the capture of Badajoz Friday by the Tercio [Spanish foreign legion] and Moors under command of Col. Castejon. He effected a junction with the advance post of the northern army of Gen. Emilio Mola and makes the threat to Madrid more serious.

Shot Dead at Altar.

Even yesterday mass executions continued in Torres square. Hundreds of terrified people had taken refuge in the cathedral. Among them the insurgents found two government militiamen whom they shot on the steps of the altar.

Many houses were in flames and burned unheeded, the smoke throwing a pall over the town. The streets were full of dead bodies, broken glass, shattered tiles from the houses and the stench and litter of battle.

Col. Castejon after cautious siege and lengthy artillery preparation entered Merida—a junction point—Tuesday and set out for Badajoz Thursday with three columns composed principally of Moorish troops of the regular Moroccan army and legionaires of the Tercio.

Col. Heli R. Tella, one of the crack officers of the African army, was left at Merida with a strong rear guard in anticipation of counter attack.

First Attack Fails.

Col. Castejon tried to storm Badajoz Thursday after shelling it and bombing from the air. Finding his preparations inadequate he abandoned the attack. The next morning, after more intensive preparation, the attack was resumed.

Badajoz, which withstood a long siege during the Peninsular wars [1808 to 1814 against Napoleon] is perched on a high hill and protected by medieval walls 30 feet thick. A breach, however, had been made recently by city authorities to allow for expansion of the city and it was through this breach that Col. Castejon's men made their entry.

The breach naturally was strongly defended by machine guns behind sand bags, but the legionnaires, disregarding heavy losses, took it by bayonet charge. Then they spread out and fought their way through the city from house to house, shooting down all the Reds encountered.

Most of the civilian leaders escaped to Portugal, barely four miles away, but those who were caught were shot after a summary court martial. There were dozens of executions—most of the victims being young Reds.

Every house today was flying a white flag, and, though the walls of most of them were bullet scarred, Merida suffered even more, having been shelled first by insurgents, then by Reds. Government planes still are bombing Merida daily.

During my brief stay at Merida several dozen 100 pound bombs were dropped on the town, adding to the ruins, but wounding only three or four civilians.

Guerrilla Bands Roam.

Though the main columns of the Madrid army operating in Estremadura have been smashed, small bands of militiamen still are prowling around the countryside. Authorities at Caceres refused to allow me to return to Merida today on account of the danger of falling upon Reds.

The trip from Caceres, which is held by one of the advance posts of Gen. Mola's northern army, to Merida, which is held by forces of Gen. Francisco Franco, southern rebel commander, was made in a heavily armed convoy bringing food and military supplies to the Merida garrison—striking proof that an effective liaison now exists between the northern and southern rebel armies.

Rebel Leaders Meet.

BURGOS, Spain, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Gen. Francisco Franco, leader of the Spanish rebellion, conferred here today for four hours with Gen. Emilio Mola, the northern rebel commander, and Gen. Miguel Cabanellas, whom the Fascists have named president of the rebel government set up at this northern city.

Franco left during the afternoon by plane, accompanied by three officers of his general staf, who came here with him. It was understood he would return to Seville, his present headquarters, in southern Spain.

Malaga in Grip of Terror; Fascists Face Mass Slaughter

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MALAGA, Spain, Aug. 16.—There is terror in the jails of Malaga where close to 1,000 prisoners lie, many of them members of the best families of this opulent port.

There is terror in the hold of a grimy freighter which holds fully 500 more.

There is terror in a thousand homes of the Rightists in the town itself which has become for all of them a vast prison.

They have had a month of terror already since the Fascist rebellion was drowned in blood on that first night. Almost every night sees somebody taken for a ride. But the tempo has subsided. It has been two weeks since a large batch, 35, were taken to the cemetery and left.

Relief May Be too Late.

But today the word spread that the rebel "army of salvation" had begun its push toward Malaga, government naval and air base. But, if the rebel advance succeeds, the classes they are trying to save are as good as dead. They know it and their jailers tell them so.

Thousands of peasants are streaming into Malaga, fleeing the advancing rebel armies. They come with rolled blankets and a musket. They sleep on curbs and park benches. They are prepared to fight to the last, knowing they can expect no mercy when Gen. Gonzalo Queipo de Llano's column arrives to exact retribution on Malaga.

But they and the armed masses of Malaga, if they have got to die, are going to take others with them. They have said as much, and the Rightists see themselves in the ghastly position of facing mass execution simply because their own "army of liberation" is on its way.

Italian Consul Leaves.

The Italian consul at Malaga was taken off by an Italian ship last night after the consuls of other countries informed his country's consul-late general at Gibraltar that he was courting danger.

It seems the consul insisted on giving the Fascist salute in the streets and offering asylum in his house to all "rightist" friends, showing the greatest courage, but risking the life and position of other consuls.

The consul was found escorting a leading Fascist who was dressed as a woman and was carrying a doll at his bosom. The Fascist was promptly shot.

Malaga has strangely changed in the month since I left it. There are black gaps in handsome streets where Fascist shops were burned.

Change in Citizens.

But there is another change. It is in the aspect of the people. In the first place nobody wears a necktie. From the first days of the Red terror anybody with a necktie was apt to be taken for a "Fascist" and shot dead.

The Red terror is about over. The civil governor, Fernandez Vega, has managed to recover a large part of his authority. He has succeeded in taking arms away from all but the numerous militia. He has stopped the joyous practice of scrip by everybody for everybody. The only scrip now accepted is that issued by the government itself, which is isolated from Madrid and has no funds. Only public utilities have been expropriated and that is temporarily. All municipal services are functioning.

Three Rides a Night.

In the very ugly matter of taking people for rides committees of Socialists and Syndicalists raiding Fascist headquarters found lists of Fascists in Malaga and neighboring towns and lists of donations to the movement. Every night they make a visit. There are an average of about three rides a night.

There were dark stories of happenings on loyal warships in the harbor. On the cruiser Libertad, 14 officers held in irons for two weeks were said to have been shot.

REBEL FLYERS DROP 3 BOMBS ON FRENCH TOWN

One Hits Cafe; Bilbao Gas Tanks Ruined.

HENDAYE, France, Aug. 16.—(AP)—A Spanish rebel plane tonight dropped three bombs on the frontier French village of Biriatou—apparently by accident.

One of the bombs hit a small café. Another barely missed a church. No one was hurt. Two men playing cards in the café escaped safely.

The rebel plane, supporting a general Fascist advance in Irun and other government towns in the north, evidently intended to drop the bombs on government troops defending the Spanish side of the Bidassoa river near Irun.

First Damage to France.

After the bombs had hit Biriatou French authorities went to the little village, a mile from Hendaye. It was the first bombardment of French soil during the frontier warfare, but caused little surprise among border observers, since the Spaniards have been fighting within rifle shot of the international line.

This afternoon thousands of Sunday tourists who lined the highway on the French side of the Bidassoa in the hope of seeing a battle withdrew hastily when a rebel plane zoomed low over the stream following a bombardment, then sped back to rebel territory.

Earlier, other rebel bombing planes wrecked huge gasoline tanks at Bilbao, which the government had guarded successfully against sea attack with a living wall of rebel prisoners.

Off San Sebastian, the three rebel cruisers Almirante Cervera, Espana, and Canarias, threatened to shell fortified heights near the city.

Wipes Out Fuel Supply.

Radio messages exchanged by foreign warships at Saint Jean de Luz, France, and Bilbao, disclosed the destruction of the giant storage tanks, blasting out of existence one of the largest fuel stocks in the possession of the government.

The tanks, it was believed, were the target of the rebel cruiser Almirante Cervera two days ago, but the government forces rounded up 200 rebel prisoners and stood them in front of the tanks, facing the sea.

The Cervera then retired without firing a shot while the poor marksmanship of a rebel aviator saved the tanks and caused the foreign warships, including the United States cutter Cayuga, to move out of the harbor.

Today, however, the inhabitants of Bilbao saw the rebel planes appear about 1 p. m., drop their bombs on the tanks and return to rebel territory after they saw the gasoline supplies pouring into the sea. They made no attempt to bomb the city, though the population was in a panic.

Word was received from Barcelona that 5,000 Catalan government troops were landed on the eastern shores of Mallorca for an assault on the island now held by rebels. The force was composed of assault guards, regular army troops, and leftist militiamen. They landed upon an uninhabited section of the island while government planes watched the nearby rebel troops.

BOWERS ROUTED AS 'COMMANDER' OF U. S. FLEET

Army and Navy Journal Relates Story.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—Claude G. Bowers, United States ambassador to Spain, who took flight on a ship when guns started popping in the vicinity of his summer resort headquarters, has learned a lesson in naval regulations—that even ambassadors cannot order around the commanding officers of battleships and cruisers.

As a result of his experience, Mr. Bowers was advised by Secretary of State Cordell Hull to leave his "floating embassy" and go ashore, which he did—on the French side.

State department officials have insisted in response to questioning that there was nothing irregular about Mr. Bowers' conduct. They have even stated, without show of levity, that Mr. Bowers' chief fault is a disposition to stick to his post too long in dangerous situations. When asked whether Mr. Bowers would be replaced, these officials have regarded the question as frivolous.

Service Journal Tells Story.

But the story of Mr. Bowers' experience with the naval officers and his advice to go ashore is told in the current issue of the Army and Navy Journal, official service organ. It is readily confirmed by naval officers, but in deference to the sensibilities of state department officials, they will not be quoted.

"It is an age old rule of military and naval services," says the Army and Navy Journal, "that an officer charged with the command of any unit, whatever it be, is solely responsible for its movements and welfare, and that he takes orders only from a senior officer in the chain of command. This principle has been well fixed in the law and customs of all nations since early times.

"It is with surprise, therefore, that we learn of an episode which took place in Spanish waters when the navy and coast guard vessels were rushed there to stand by to protect American interests.

Assumes Command.

"Our ambassador to Spain, the Hon. Claude Bowers, upon the arrival of the American ships, went aboard the coast guard cutter Cayuga, and, assuming the rôle of commander of the fleet, began issuing orders to the commanding officer of the cutter and to the commanding officers of the naval vessels standing near by.

"The navy and coast guard officers, of course, told him that, while they would be glad to consult with him and receive his advice, they took orders only from the navy and treasury departments or the President.

"The ambassador, thereupon, sent a series of hot radio messages back to the state department in protest. He soon had a reply from the secretary of state advising him to go ashore. He did so. The happening, known only to a few in Washington, has been kept quiet, but the story is beginning to be told around the city."

Bowers at Summer Home.

Mr. Bowers was in his summer home at Fuenterrabia, five miles away from the summer embassy headquarters at San Sebastian, on the northern coast of Spain, when the revolution broke out, and remained unheard from for five days. On July 27 he fled on the cutter Cayuga.

With the battleship Oklahoma near at hand and the battle cruiser Quincy taking off American passengers on the southeastern coast of Spain, Mr. Bowers, as the Army and Navy Journal states, "assumed the rôle of commander of the fleet," advising the state department that he had established a "floating embassy" and would ply up and down the northern coast rescuing Americans. On July 31 he reported that his "floating embassy" had escaped bombardment in the harbor at Gijon only by precipitous flight.

Lands on French Soil.

Bowers, it was learned today, was advised by the state department "about the middle of the week" to go ashore, and he did so at St. Jean de Luz, France.

Meanwhile the embassy at Madrid, from which trains run regularly to the port city of Valencia, is in charge of a third secretary, Eric C. Wendelin. The young career man has been instructed to close the embassy if, in his opinion, the danger warants such action, but he has succeeded in evacuating most of the Americans from Madrid.

GRAFT, GANGS RULED IN CITY CENTURIES OLD

Tablets Tell Trial of the Mayor.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—Documentary evidence of corruption in municipal government 3,500 years ago has come to light with the translation of a set of cuneiform texts constituting by far the earliest known retailed court record of the trial of a racketeering public official.

On clay tablets, now in Harvard museum, there were inscribed 200 years before the time of Moses depositions of accusers and witnesses against Mayor Kushshiharbe of the Mesopotamian city of Nuzi and a gang of his henchmen, who were charged with a series of crimes ranging from bribery and misappropriation of property to kidnaping.

Found Near Oil Field.

Ten miles from the oil center of Kirkuk, in Iraq, the material was deciphered by Prof. Robert H. Pfeiffer, curator of the Harvard Semitic museum. Dr. Ephraim A. Speiser, director of the American schools of oriental research in Bagdad and graduate professor of semitics at the university of Pennsylvania, just has completed the translation of those tablets dealing with the case of "The People vs. Mayor Kushshiharbe."

The translation shows that charges of the existence of a partnership between government and crime not only were bruited about by the citizenry in 1500 B. C. but aroused enough public indignation to place an important public official on trial.

People Were Cultural.

The tablets were composed by people known as Hurrians, related to the Biblical Horites and now declared by orientalists to have formed the cultural link among Egypt, Palestine, and Asia Minor, and the link between the Aegean and Mesopotamian civilizations.

They were unearthed between 1925 and 1931 by the late Prof. Edward Chiera, first of the University of Pennsylvania and later of the University of Chicago.

Most of the charges against Mayor Kushshiharbe embraced "corruption." He is accused of using labor gangs from federal camps for his private purposes, of diverting tax collections to his use and of adorning his home in Anzugalli with a gate fashioned from wood belonging to the king.

Emboldened apparently by earlier successes, he accepted bribes, according to his accusers. He was charged further with using the property of private citizens to pay the wages of his workers and fertilize his gardens and of threatening violence to any who dared resist his emissaries.

Another accuser testified that "Kushshiharbe removed me from my threshing floor," adding:

"Two shekels of gold, one ox, and two male sheep I gave to Kushshiharbe and he allowed me to return."

"No! Emphatically no!" he replied to his accusers. "Not a word of it is true!" Dr. Spilser found that kidnaping was a favorite and profitable sport among Kushshiharbe's henchmen.

"I paid him two sheep and one mina of lead and he released my wife," a witness deposed.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TANGIER, International Zone, Morocco, Aug. 16.—It was learned today that Mrs. Everett Tolman of Chicago and Mundelein, Ill., gave $1,000 to the aviation section of the Red Cross at Seville in gratitude for being flown out of Granada Thursday. Mrs. Tolman and her husband spent more than three weeks in Granada, a Spanish rebel stronghold, while it was besieged by government planes and troops. Seville rebel headquarters made the evacuation of more than 20 Americans possible after lengthy negotiation. The Tolmans are now on the liner Conte di Savoia bound for New York.

SPANISH REBELS SEIZE COLONY OF IFNI IN AFRICA

RABAT, French Morocco, Aug. 16.—(AP)—The tiny Spanish colony of Ifni, on the western coast of Africa, passed into rebel control today with the revolt of the garrison.

After the beginning of the Moroccan revolt a month ago, the military commander of the zone joined the Fascist rebels, but was forced to flee from the coastal district to French Morocco, while his aid, Maj. Monteiro, remained loyal to the leftist government.

Monteiro then asked the Madrid government for a million pesetas [about $130,000] to keep the colony in line. Shortly after the money arrived, the garrison revolted, jailed the major, seized the funds, and pledged allegiance to the rebels.

Spanish Reds Plead for Gifts of Wedding Rings

BURGOS, Spain, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Spanish rebels took a leaf out of Mussolini's Ethiopian campaign book today. Pleas for contributions for the rebel cause brought 100 gold wedding rings and a quantity of gold and silver jewelry. Some peasants sent in vegetables, grain, and live stock.

BIDS AMERICAN NATIONS TO TRY TO END REVOLT

'Cordial Mediation' in Spain Proposed.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Foreign Minister Jose Espaltar announced tonight he had sent messages to American governments suggesting joint mediation in an attempt to bring an end to Spain's bloody civil war.

Espaltar proposed that "cordial mediation" be concerted at Washington, D. C., through the Pan-American union, or in some other capital.

"In the face of the civil war which is rending Spain," he said in the message, "the nations of the American continent, discovered and brought to civilization by its [Spain's] genius, cannot remain impassive spectators."

Fear Race to Arm Spain.

PARIS, Aug. 16.—(AP)—The shipment of civil airplanes to Spain from Great Britain led tonight to French fears of a breakdown in neutrality negotiations and the start of a race between foreign powers to arm fighting Spaniards.

London's offer to speed the European neutrality agreement, by asking Premier Mussolini to hasten his reply to the non-intervention proposals inaugurated by France, was announced last night as two British-owned Fokkers crashed in France en route to the Iberian peninsula.

See Plane Export Race.

Circles close to the government said if the shipment of British planes to Spain continued, it might lead to similar exports by Germany and Italy.

France, under such circumstances, it was said, would be unable to keep its unilateral promise to send no planes to Spain—and the race would be on.

French hopes for success of the neutrality negotiations appeared to be pinned on a London foreign office communique which indicated the exportation of civil planes might soon be on the same basis of war supplies, requiring approval of the foreign office, the board of trade, the admiralty, or the secretariat of war.

Informed sources said Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos of France had asked the British to speed this action in order to avoid international repercussions from British exports.

Sale numbers on the wings of the Fokkers which fell on French soil led to their identification as two of the four British ships which made unsuccessful attempts to reach Spain yesterday through Bordeaux.

Charred Body Recovered.

A charred body recovered from the wreckage of the plane which crashed in flames at Biarritz, in southern France near the border of Spain, was identified as Casimir Losaty, a Polish count.

The Polish pilot of a similar Fokker, forced down near La Rochelle, on the French west coast, was released by police after questioning. The plane was guarded by the authorities.

Aviation circles said four Fokkers left England with the announced intention of flying to Poland but were fitted with additional fuel tanks in order to reach Burgos, Spanish rebel headquarters in northern Spain, in one hop.

It was said the other two airplanes apparently had reached their destination.

SWINDLER TAKES INVESTORS FOR A DOUBLE LOSS

False Promises of Help, for a Fee, Exposed.

It appeared yesterday that numerous persons who suffered financial losses through investments with Wollenberger & Co., Chicago brokerage house now in bankruptcy litigation, have lost again. Investigation revealed the fraudulent operations of a man [whereabouts now unknown] to whom the investors paid sums in hopes of recovering part of their losses.

The swindle was brought to light after a list of receipts for various amounts was found last week in a clump of bushes near Glenlake avenue and Sheridan road. They showed cash payments to one William E. Hurley, who represented himself as the agent of the New York law firm of Alger, Peck & Grafton.

Denounced as a Swindler.

Attorney George W. Alger, head of the firm, in New York yesterday denounced Hurley as a "complete faker" who, he said, has been using the firm's name falsely to swindle stockholders of bankrupt companies in Detroit, Pittsburgh, and elsewhere as well as in Chicago.

The documents found here said the persons listed were paying 4 per cent of an amount to be recovered from Wollenberger assets said to be impounded by the Supreme court of New York. Each document listed the signer's promise to pay an additional 11 per cent to Hurley, for the law firm, when the designated amount was received from the court.

Contracts signed by the investors stipulated that the law firm would not handle claims exceeding $238,000, and that when subscribers entitled to that amount had been obtained no more investors "shall be permitted to join this group." Thus, it was explained, those who signed contracts would be the only ones to recover.

Reply Gives the Bad News.

The finder of the documents informed Attorney Alger, who replied that his firm neither had authorized any one named Hurley as its representative nor was interested in any Wollenberger company litigation.

Alger said he first heard of Hurley six months ago when he began receiving letters from different points in the midwest asking about the man.

No Complaints Made.

Leatherman, a butcher, said he did not know where Hurley could now be located. As far as he knew none of the victims had made any complaint. Leatherman said, adding that he had faith in Hurley until yesterday and supposed the others had, too. He said the additional 11 per cent was to be paid Hurley when recovery was made from the impounded funds, and if this was not forthcoming within 90 days the 4 per cent paid was to be refunded.

"I paid my money six weeks ago," said Leatherman. "I suppose there is no use now in expecting to get it back or to get the $2,000 he promised me from the Wollenberger funds."

2 Killed, 3 Ships in Distress as Typhoon Sweeps Luzon

BULLETIN.

HONGKONG, Aug. 17—(Monday)—(AP)—One hundred workmen were reported today to have been buried alive in a landslide which resulted when the most severe typhoon since 1923 struck this region. A house collapsed in Hongkong, killing two persons.

MANILA, Aug. 17.—[Monday.]—(AP)—Distress calls from a third ship, a British vessel carrying passengers, and reports of heavy damage and two deaths reached here today in the wake of a typhoon sweeping northern Luzon Island.

The Radio Corporation of America said it had intercepted an SOS from the British vessel Sunning, which asked immediate assistance at its position off Junk bay, on the China coast.

Shipping men here said the Sunning, which carries an undetermined number of passengers, probably was hit by the same typhoon which swept across northern Luzon, wrecking native dwellings and destroying crops.

[Marine rosters list the Sunning as a ship of 3,555 gross tons.]

No further word had come meanwhile from the Coast and Geodetic Survey boat Fathomer and an unlisted ship, the Dewtee, driven on rocks by the gale. The navy reported the Fathomer was on a rock reef at Port San Vincente. Her crew of seven Americans and 60 Filipinos was reported safely ashore.

The Dewtee sent out distress calls Saturday about the same time as the Fathomer. She was reported off Cape Engano, also on northern Luzon's rocky shores.

Meager reports from Aparri said practically all native houses in that region were destroyed and 90 per cent of the crops lost. An aged man and a little child were reported killed in the collapse of a hut at Cabanatuan in Nueva Ecija province.

Advices indicated the storm, which was north of Manila, was of unusual intensity due to a pair of typhoons converging on the affected areas.

Heavy rains caused rivers to overflow throughout the storm belt. Towns hardest hit included Buguey, Gonzaga and Tallungan, all in Cagayan province.

CHINESE BATTLE MANCHURIANS IN NORTHERN AREA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Aug. 16.—Foreign sources at Peiping today reported there has been fighting between pro-Nanking and Manchukuan forces in Suiyuan province. Gen. Fu Tso-yi is commanding the Nanking adherents and the Manchukuan troops, including Japanese and Mongols, are led by the renegade general, Li Shou-hsin.

The forces met at the town of Pingtichuan, which is located on the railway east of Kweihwa, capital of Suiyuan. The Manchukuan force is operating from Shangtu with the object of cutting the Peiping-Suiyuan railway. A report from Kalgan said large numbers of dead and wounded were being brought to Pingtichuan.

Kalgan, where the Japanese maintain a military mission of ten officers, is quiet, but communication is cut off to Changpei, 25 miles to the north. Two Japanese regiments are stationed at Changpei.

SCOBIE TO FIGHT GIRL'S $100,000 SUIT; DENIES ALL

David P. Scobie, wealthy Chicago insurance broker, who has been named defendant in a $100,000 breach of promise and seduction suit at Miami, Fla., will return today to his home at 730 South Ridge road, Lake Forest, from a vacation in Wisconsin. He will confer with his attorney, John P. McGoorty Jr., to draw up an answer to the suit, which was filed by Miss Lenore Miller, a dancing school teacher of 28 West Jackson boulevard.

McGoorty said last night that Scobie's defense will be a categorical denial of Miss Miller's charges that he courted her, begged her to marry him, and then jilted her.

Scobie's wife, the former Florence Yates of Beloit, Wis., has indicated that she will stand by him. The Scobies and their daughter, Diane, 4 years old, have been vacationing for several weeks.

214 SAVED FROM WRECKED LINER; FIVE OF CREW DIE

Ship Brings Passengers to Port After Collision.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Five members of the crew of the French liner Eubee were drowned but 178 passengers and thirty-six others in the crew were brought to port safely tonight by the British freighter Corinaldo, with which the French ship collided early Friday.

Five stokers were drowned when hatches hurriedly were closed to prevent the Eubee from sinking, it was revealed when the Corinaldo entered port with the survivors.

The Eubee sank out of sight while four other ships stood by, the Corinaldo's officers reported.

Two passengers were injured, one a Mrs. Fritman, who fell into the sea and suffered a smashed leg when being transferred to a lifeboat. Her condition was described as serious.

Most of the passengers, among them many women and children, arrived in port nearly naked and wearing pajamas and nightclothes. Many were shoeless. One man wore a woman's skirt, his only garment.

Passengers said the ships collided in a fog. All lights were extinguished on the Eubee when the engine room was flooded.

The ships backed up and stood by. In about two hours Commander Raoul Daniel of the Eubee ordered passengers to the lifeboats which were picked up by the Corinaldo in about thirty minutes when the fog lifted.

Capt. George Hornsburg of the Corinaldo attributed the collision to the fog. Until a moment before, he said, the Eubee could be seen plainly. Then the fog suddenly thickened.

WPA SCULPTORS LIFT CHISELS TO A 2½ HOUR DAY

Their Monthly $94 Comes Hard Now.

The soul of a stone carver rebels at chiseling $94 a month from the Works Progress administration, it developed yesterday, only if the stone carver has to work five hours a day to get it. He would prefer a 2½ hour stint.

This was indicated by Sidney Loeb, secretary of the newly formed Chicago Artists' union, as he explained the union's picket line in front of the WPA studio at 433 East Erie street.

Representing painters and wood carvers, as well as sculptors, the pickets are parading, Loeb said, in protest against the failure of the government to pay "prevailing wages" to artists employed by the federal art projects commission.

Demand Union Scale.

Painters are assigned to daub oil upon a canvas or dabble in water colors, while stone carvers tap away with mallet and chisel and woodworkers whittle at involved designs. At $94 a month, the wood and stone carvers figure, they are drawing 90 cents an hour, whereas the union scale is $1.75 to $1.80.

"The government promised that prevailing wages would be paid here after July 1," Artist Loeb said. "The men could not draw more than $94 in a month, but if paid $1.80 an hour they would only have to work half as many hours."

The men now work slightly more than 104 hours a month, or an average of about five hours a day for 20 or 21 days. They are quick to see the charm of working only 2½ hours a day for the same pay.

From Paint to Pickets.

Even if they lose their jobs they are assured of steady work in Mr. Loeb's picket line. But picketing is not a profitable business.

"Last spring," Loeb said, "300 artists were drawing $94 a month of federal funds through this branch of the WPA. The number is now 240, and of these 22 have been marked for dismissal. As fast as an artist is dismissed he joins the picket line, if he is a member of the union.

"The sculptors feel that the Chicago division is being discriminated against, and we planned to have a delegation wait on Mrs. Increase Robinson, the director, but she dodged meeting it. So all we can do is to continue to picket the studio."

An unidentified young man, about 21 years old, wearing a watch with the initials A. L. C., was killed last night when he was struck by an automobile as he rode a bicycle at North and Sayre avenues. The driver, Joseph Dinet, 22 years old, 5107 Eddy street, was held by the Cragin police.

MOVE TO QUIZ EX-SUITOR IN TEACHER DEATH

Probe River Mystery for Murder Clews.

Kendall county authorities investigating the death of Miss Blanche Shrader, 35 years old, a music teacher in the Rockford grade schools, whose body was found Friday in the Fox river, 4 miles south of Aurora, moved yesterday to question her former sweetheart. The man is Kenneth G. Wilson, 24 years old, of 742 West McClure street, Peoria.

It was not learned whether Wilson had seen Miss Shrader since his marriage to another girl on May 30, but the investigators hoped he could aid them in finding acquaintances of the dead woman, who might shed light on her affairs and possibly advance a motive if it is established that she was murdered. Coroner F. M. Groner of Kendall county said he was testing a murder theory, but admitted there were possibilities that Miss Shrader committed suicide or was killed accidentally.

Parents Tell of Despondency.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Shrader of Shabbona, 30 miles west of Aurora, said that when their daughter returned home last June after the school semester in Rockford ended, she was despondent at learning Wilson was married.

Despite the difference in their ages —Wilson was eleven years younger than Miss Shrader—the couple had been keeping company for several years. Reports that the music teacher had paid Wilson's way through school when he was a student in Rockford were denied by Miss Shrader's parents.

Mrs. Shrader said her daughter was despondent over the collapse of her love affair and several times threatened to commit suicide. The young woman said she would "jump in the lake" if she decided to end her life. Mrs. Shrader declared. Miss Shrader was carrying the financial burden of helping to pay on mortgages on her parents' home and her father's garage, the mother said.

Bruise Indicates Stunning Blow.

Miss Shrader's body was found face down in two feet of water in the Fox river. An examination disclosed a bruise over her right eye. Coroner Groner believes this was from a blow sufficient to stun her, but not heavy enough to cause instantaneous death. There were also scratches on her nose, which lead to a theory that she was suffocated, her assailant putting his hands over her nose and mouth to stop her breathing. The coroner said he believed she was dead before she fell or was thrown into the river. An autopsy revealed there was no water in her lungs.

Examination of the victim's stomach disclosed no traces of poison, but a further examination of all the vital organs will be necessary before this possibility can be discarded.

Miss Shrader's automobile was found in a secluded dell about 20 yards off East River road, a country pike known in that section as a "lovers' lane."

POLICE ALMOST CATCH ERIC AT A DARK DEED

Weird Doings Bring Four Squads on Run.

In the wee hours yesterday morning two men were industriously engaged in shoveling dirt into a shallow pit in the yard in the rear of the home of Eric Zimmerman, 35 years old, at 2949 North Halsted street.

Suddenly the early morning silence was broken. Four police squads bore down on the house with shrieking sirens and screeching automobile tires. The policemen alighted hurriedly and ran through a narrow passageway toward the yard. They carried tear gas guns, shotguns, flashlights and revolvers.

Find Themselves Arrested.

Covering the diggers with the arsenal, the police informed them they were under arrest.

"What's this about a body?" he inquired. "I live here and this fellow [pointing to his amazed companion] is a friend of mine."

The other man gave his name as Frank Landa, 48 years old, 1865 Howe street. Policeman Felix Kosinski of the Sheffield avenue station suggested darkly that the earth was being turned for a new grave.

"Or maybe you're doing away with something else we'd like to see," Kosinski said. "Your neighbors called us and said you were burying a body."

Using Their Spare Time.

"Nothing like that," Zimmerman replied. "I'm a butcher and Landa works in a greenhouse. We worked all day Saturday and went out Saturday night. This is the only time we could get together."

"What are you getting together for?" the police wanted to know.

"Well," Zimmerman said as he dug his shovel into the dirt, "I suppose it would be a good idea next time to get out a circular letter for the neighbors. My catch basin is on the bum and we're trying to fix it."

'LOW COST' HOUSE RENT TOO HIGH FOR THE NEEDY

Taxpayers Must Bear 45 Per Cent of Expense.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—The Republican national committee charged today that Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes, undertaking to provide suitable housing for Atlanta slum dwellers unable to pay more than $3.08 a room per month in rent, has turned out a project so luxurious that it will cost $7.39 a room per month even with the government standing 45 per cent of tne total cost.

All apartments in the Atlanta project are equipped throughout with electrical appliances and have recessed porcelain bathtubs, with all bath fixtures in chromium, a survey by the Republican committee disclosed. An outstanding feature of the project, built for persons unable to pay more than $3.08 a room per month, is its garages, 186 of them, each with concrete floors and overhead type swinging doors.

Ickes Fixes $3.08 Rate.

Speaking of the Techwood project at Atlanta, the Republican committee statement says:

"The old settlement was peopled by families of the needy class, whose income permitted them to spend nc more than $3.08 a room per month rent, this arbitrary figure having been set by Secretary Ickes in a letter written on Sept. 10, 1935, to Controler General John R. McCarl.

"There are thirty-four buildings comprising 604 apartments, one of the buildings a dormitory for Georgia Tech students. The project, covering 222 acres, has parks, winding walks, lawns, parking spaces, tennis courts and streets. Buildings, none more than three stories high, are of hollow tile, brick-faced on a cement frame work.

Costs PWA $59,520.

"The PWA has spent $59,520 in landscaping, planting thousands of trees and shrubs. There are playgrounds, a wading pool, tennis courts and a gravelled parking space. Metal-rimmed casement windows, asphalt tiled floors, linoleum-covered floors in closets, on stairs, stair halls, and kitchens. All hardware is of cast bronze, with one exception, and there's even a one-inch bronze tag for each key.

"Apartments are completely equipped with radio outlets, modern kitchen equipment, garbage chutes, incinerators, electric fans in laundries, with electric hot plates over which to dry the family washing. There are recessed porcelain bathtubs, porcelain-enameled sinks and all bath fixtures are finished in chromium.

"Inquiry into the cost of the Techwood project discloses that the original estimate was $2,875,000 but the latest figure from Washington boosts that figure to $3,101,500, a total cost of about $1,460 per room. Compare this with the Harlem housing project in New York City, a private enterprise, which in eight years has completed a dozen apartment buildings at a cost of from $850 to $1,000 per room.

Rent $2.50 Over Estimate.

"The PWA itself, in official release No. 1943, says new tenants of Techwood will have to pay $7.39 a room rental, and while it is true that this includes heat, light and electricity for cooking, the rent without these utilities included would be $5.58 per room per month, or $2.50 above the figure set to make the apartments available to former occupants of the settlement.

"The term 'slum clearance' as used by the New Deal and as shown by the record, doesn't mean better homes for slum dwellers; in reality it means the elimination of homes available to the needy.

"Techwood will not pay for itself. The rentals have been based on a figure that is 55 per cent of the total cost of the project.

"This means that the taxpayers of the United States at large will pay 45 per cent of the cost of Techwood as an outright gift to the tenants of that development, who are not slum dwellers."

ICKES TERMS ARREST OF SON AN ATTEMPT TO STRIKE AT HIM

Washington, D. C., Aug. 16.—(AP)—The Star today quoted Secretary Harold Ickes as having said he attributed the publicity given to the arrest last week at Woburn, Mass., of his foster son, Robert Ickes, Public Works administration employé, on a charge of having operated an automobile when intoxicated, to "unfair political reasons."

"If he had been drunk, why wasn't he arrested and his car seized," the Star quoted Ickes. "According to the law, he should have been held and his machine taken, if there was any evidence of intoxication. Instead, the warant was not sworn out until the next day, and only then by an officer who was acting on hearsay."

"Had the same sort of mishap occurred to anybody else it would have gone unnoticed," Ickes declared. "But because it happened to Robert, everybody makes the most of it. Apparently, there are people who would rather ruin a young fellow's life than miss the chance to try and beat in his father's brains. I only hope that they don't hurt him in their effort to hit me."

More than five hundred new members were recruited yesterday by THE VOLUNTEERS to work for the election of Alfred M. Landon and Frank Knox and the furtherance of sane governmental principles. The enlistments were taken at three picnics held in suburban territory.

The picnics were held under the sponsorship of Republican clubs. The York township club of Du Page county held its affair at 31st and York streets just north of Hinsdale with an attendance of 3,500. Five thousand persons appeared at the Maine Township club picnic in North West park on the edge of Des Plaines. A large crowd was present, too, at the Cicero Republican club's picnic in Pershing grove.

Members of THE VOLUNTEERS had made preparations for enrolling new workers. Booths decorated with pictures of Landon and Knox and with gay bunting were set up in the grounds. Members explained the purposes of the organization.

City Federation of Labor Kills Move to Back Lewis

The Chicago Federation of Labor, after a heated debate yesterday, voted 81 to 60 against protesting the recent action of the American Federation of Labor in suspending the charters of ten international unions belonging to John L. Lewis' Committee on Industrial Organization. A resolution to this effect was referred to the national organization, which was urged to seek "some wise and just solution of this controversy" at the November convention of the federation.

AUGUST RAINS ABOVE NORMAL; COOLER TODAY

With the rainfall for the first half of the month above normal here, chances are good that August may be the first month this year to record a normal or near normal amount of rain, Forecaster A. W. Cook said yesterday. Fair and cooler weather is due today, according to the forecast.

The downpour early yesterday morning was recorded officially as .49 of an inch at the University of Chicago observatory. Elsewhere in the city the rain was spotty, but several suburbs reported substantial showers. This precipitation brought the total for the month to 2.22 inches. Normal for the first 15 days is 1.62 inches.

Cook also forecast fair weather for most of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, and Missouri today. High temperatures are forecast for the northern plains states.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 16.—(AP)—A long rest for Mary Astor after her litigation with her former husband, Dr. Franklyn Thorpe, over custody of their 4 year old daughter, Marylyn, was indicated today at the movie studio where she is under contract.

She will be given "plenty of time to get over this," said a spokesman for the studio, where two films remain to be made under a three picture contract.

Miss Astor rested today at her Toluca lake home with the child whose custody during most of the year was granted her in an out-of-court settlement.

SEARCH PUSHED FOR 3 ESCROW FRAUD SUSPECTS

Real Estate Man Sought as Conspirator.

Search was afoot yesterday for three more men wanted in the state's attorney's investigation of the activities of a ring of swindlers alleged to have obtained many thousands of dollars held in escrow in the offices of the clerks of the Circuit and Superior courts. So far six men and one woman have been arrested and all have confessed.

One of the men sought is reported to be a former employé of the Circuit court clerk's office. This suspect is the person who supplied the ring with information about dormant lawsuits in which funds were tied up in escrow, according to the confession of James Tilton, 74 years old, leader of the conspirators.

Realty Man Is Suspected.

Eugene O'Connor, investigator for the state's attorney, conferred on the situation yesterday with John E. Conroy, clerk of the Circuit court, and Frank V. Zintak, clerk of the Superior court. One of the three suspects now being hunted, O'Connor admitted, is a well known real estate dealer.

Mr. O'Connor said he has discovered to date that the ring fraudulently obtained $17,715 in six cases. He said he believes that when the investigation is concluded the total obtained by the prisoners and their accomplices will be found to approximate $100,000.

He asked the two elected clerks of the courts to provide him with a list of trust funds impounded by the courts in dormant estates in order to ascertain which estates have been looted. He has heard reports that in one case $75,000 was fraudulently obtained by forging the signature of a judge.

Seven Named in Confessions.

The prisoners who have confessed are Tilton, a disbarred attorney; John A. Dicks, 48 years old, suspended acting cashier in Conroy's office; Benjamin Shear, a WPA worker; Ernest Eckles, and Arvil Nichols, tavern owners; Rocco De Besse, and Mrs. Margaret Allister, 28 years old, sister-in-law of Nichols. Nick Juffra, former head of the Capone beer delivery service, and Eckles were indicted in an earlier phase of the investigation and Juffra is at liberty in bail.

A safety box rented by Tilton in the First National Bank of Englewood is to be opened today by the state's attorney's police. The prisoners were held at outlying police stations yesterday and Mr. O'Connor said he probably would not be ready to arraign them in court today.

Shot by Clerk in Hotel Lobby Row, Then Arrested

James Dougherty, 27 years old, 1010 East 83d street, was shot in the left side early yesterday by Linans Eckroad, 40 years old, night clerk in the Graceton hotel, 4249 Drexel boulevard. Dougherty was treated for a flesh wound at the Chicago hospital and then was taken to the Hyde Park police station with his uncle, John Dougherty, 50 years old. Eckroad said the two Doughertys created a disturbance in the lobby and that he fired in self-defense.

MISS POLAND OFF WITH RETINUE OF 300 FOR DALLAS

Three hundred Chicagoans of Polish descent departed yesterday for Dallas, Tex., to attend Polish day which will be celebrated at the exposition there today. While on the trip the excursion committee made public the names of the winners of a beauty contest sponsored before the journey by the Polish Roman Catholic union.

The title of Miss Poland was won by Gertrude Krolewczyk, 4642 South Winchester avenue. Her maids of honor are Evelyn E. Thieda, 1301 South 49th court, Cicero, and Melane Ptaszek, 6054 West School street. Halina Eminowicz, 1014 North Damen avenue, was chosen queen of Polish Amazons, and her aid is Lilian Bednarz, 1640 51st avenue, Cicero.

Girls were entered in the contest for the five places from Chicago and its suburbs by various Polish groups and societies. The winners were chosen last Wednesday, but their names were not made public until after the delegation had left the city.

Philadelphia Democratic Chief Fined for Speeding

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—Matthew H. McCloskey Jr., a contractor and co-leader of the Philadelphia Democratic organization, was arrested at Glen Loch, N. J., on a charge of speeding today while he was bringing his son, Matthew III., here from Atlantic City for an emergency operation. He said he was held for almost a half hour before he was fined $22.50, which he paid under protest. Gov. George H. Earle sent a telegram to Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey requesting an investigation.

Silver Dollars of Salvador Vanish; Metal Exported

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

BALBOA, Canal Zone, Aug. 16.—The colon [the silver dollar of Salvador] has practically disappeared as the result of the exportation of silver to England by the central reserve bank, which is attempting to retire silver half dollars from circulation. The Diario Nuevo today said the change is being made because the public lacks confidence in silver money on account of it being "counterfeit" and because merchants do not care to accept it.

Doubly Tied Now

Helmetta, N. J., Aug. 16.—(AP)—William B. Tilton, 60, farmer, married Julia Scott, 22, his housekeeper, today as his son, Ernest, 24, married her sister, Celia, 18.

The ceremony was performed at the Holy Trinity Catholic church by the Rev. John Budziak.

Following the ceremony, the two couples left for Freehold, where they planned a wedding dinner in a hotel before returning to Tilton's 99 acre farm, where all four will live together.

Tilton said he had thought of a honeymoon trip, but that it was out of the question "until after the crops are harvested."

Saloon Owners Arrested by Closing Hour Raiders

The Summerdale police raided two north side taverns at 2:30 a. m. yesterday and arrested the owners on charges of not observing the closing hours. Those arrested are Gust Seaquist, 38 years old, owner of a saloon at 5151 North Clark street, and Robert Gale, 32 years old, owner of a tavern at 5120 Broadway. Both were released in $25 bail and will be arraigned in the Town Hall court this morning.

LOOK TO SOUTH TO OVERTHROW THE NEW DEAL

See Colleges as Factor in Americanism.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Asheville, N. C., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—It was contended here today that with the "solid south" as chief political factor, together with leadership provided by church related colleges below the Mason and Dixon line, America not only will be delivered from New Deal collectivism and regimentation but also ultimately preserved from autocratic European theories of government.

This contention, based on the solid south's devotion to states' rights was voiced by William P. Jacobs of Clinton, S. C., in a closing address of the National Conference of Clergymen and Laymen which has been in session here since last Wednesday.

Back from Seing Landon.

Mr. Jacobs addressed the conference in the threefold rôle of old line southern Democratic leader, head of cotton growers and textile interests and president of Presbyterian college in his home city.

In an interview Mr. Jacobs said he is just returning from a pilgrimage to Topeka, Kas., where he conferred with Alf M. Landon, the Republican nominee for President, from the standpoint of a South Carolina Democrat and studied the Landon background as to character, personality, religion, and education.

"I was delighted to find him a solid typical church going, church supporting American; a graduate of a typical American high school and a typical American university."

Agree on South's Rôle.

In his speech before the conference Mr. Jacobs said he agreed with a northern Republican whom he met on his recent trip as to the rôle the solid south may play in coming campaigns.

"We agreed," said Mr. Jacobs, "that it probably will be the solid south with its allegiance to state rights, its love for individual initiative and its devotion to its deep traditions which will put a stop to this infiltration in high places and low of poisonous foreign theories which now jeopardize the rights of all Americans."

RIVER HERMIT SLAYS ROCKFORD MAN IN DISPUTE OVER FISH

Rockford, Ill., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—William Sutton, 52 years old, was shot to death today by a drunken hermit who quarreled with Sutton and a party of picnickers at the hermit's camp on the Pecatonica river, near Shirland, fifteen miles northwest of here.

With two couples, Sutton stopped near the hermit's place and bought a fish from him for dinner. Two hours later the recluse, known only as "Old Man Nelson," staggered out of his cabin, waving an old pistol. He demanded more money for the fish.

Sutton attempted to disarm the hermit who fell over backward discharging the pistol. Sutton was wounded in the abdomen and died later at Rockford hospital. Sheriff's deputies were sent in search of the hermit.

Moving Forward

Marshall Field & Company presents here each day observations and opinions intended to be of interest and value to those it seeks to serve.

THE OUTER DRIVE LINK

By CALEB

IN the last decade or so, much progress has been made to facilitate circulation of traffic in the Chicago Loop. Wacker Drive, Canal Street, and Roosevelt Road have all helped. There remains, however, the important job of providing means for Loop-bound traffic—destined for stops beyond—to proceed without congesting Loop streets.

When James Simpson became chairman of the Chicago Plan Commission in 1926, he selected as his main objective the construction of a connecting link—the Outer Drive improvement—between the north and south lake-front boulevards. Under his direction various alternate plans and estimates of cost were prepared and studied.

At last a route was determined upon. At that time jurisdiction over Chicago's lake front was vested in the Lincoln Park Board on the north side and the South Park Commissioners on the south side. Both these park boards approved and accepted the Outer Drive plan recommended to them by the Chicago Plan Commission.

Work was started. The route now under development was given preference over other plans because it combined other advantages with economy and feasibility.

After much work was done, financial and other difficulties arose. Work was temporarily stopped. Immediately, however, efforts to arrange for continuation were begun. Finally, in 1936, work upon the improvement was resumed by the Chicago Park District, the body into which all twenty-seven former Chicago park districts were merged about a year ago.

Important items in the plan are two bridges, one spanning the Chicago River and the other the Michigan Canal. Today, where these bridges are to help relieve downtown traffic, there is activity. Steel riveting machines are beating their rapid tattoo as huge skeletons are reared into the air. The superstructure of each bridge is being erected. Almost half the total steel work has been completed.

Thousands of cars now go out of their way through heavy traffic each day, which within a year will use the Outer Link, saving time and mileage and relieving congestion.

Bridges and improvements being completed now are testimony to the arduous and persistent activities of public-spirited men through the years prior to actual construction. Making improvements is far easier than making them possible.

ILLNESS HALTS COUGHLIN TALK IN BLAZING SUN

Priest Near Collapse on Convention Platform.

talk something like what he himself described as his "classroom lecture" on his views on the money question which he gave on Friday.

Through it ran the story of his disappointment over Roosevelt's record on the federal reserve bank and the gold problem. At times he had his audience responding "Yes" and "No" to his questions based on charges that Roosevelt, not he, is the real inflationist.

"We don't want inflation," he said. 'We don't want the country flooded with currency. But we do want the credit of this country predicated on honest money, on the farms, the homes, the forests, and the mines of this rich United States."

"I ask you to go your way," he said just before his unexpected closing, "remembering that we have established the National Union for Social Justice on a constitutional basis, wedded to no political party, to no political platform, but wedded to the teachings of Jesus Christ and the American constitution."

Within two minutes after the time he was helped from the platform, the first national convention of the NUSJ was declared adjourned sine die.

Lemke Outlines Road to Victory.

Congressman Lemke told his listeners "we are going to win because your convention expresses the will of the American people." The crowd cheered Lemke wildly.

The Union party standard bearer described President Roosevelt as "a bewildered Kerensky who does not know where he is going," and called Gov. Alf M. Landon, Republican presidential nominee, "a representative of the dying shadows of a past generation."

The crowd jumped and shouted as he declared "some of my friends say 'You're going to beat Mr. Roosevelt.'

"This is what we intend to do, and this is what we're going to do. We also are going to defeat Mr. Landon. We have defeated him already."

Speaking after Vice Presidential Candidate Thomas C. O'Brien of Boston, Lemke said, "I wish to pay tribute to the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin because he has shown the courage and the vision to come out for the American people in this crisis of your nation. . . . This nation cannot continue with 21,000,000 men and women in poverty."

The crowd roared its approval as he shouted "My first act when I become President of the United States will be to fire the brainless trust and tell them to go home to do their chores."

Goes Over 15 Point Platform.

Turning to the 15 point platform of his campaign, which the convention only yesterday refused to endorse, at the insistence of Father Coughlin, Lemke outlined each point and said: "This is the platform we're going to win on."

"You men and women know the reason we no longer have representative government is because of the corroded and corrupt patronage system. Your congressman is threatened with losing the postmasters if he doesn't vote like Wall street and the brain trust wants him to. . . .

"I have confidence in the American people, and I am satisfied that we are going back to the democracy of Jefferson and Lincoln on Nov. 3, and back to a happy, prosperous people with hopes and ambitions."

Just as Lemke concluded, Father Coughlin made his appearance in the stadium infield, bringing the crowd screaming to its feet in a joint ovation for him and Lemke.

Mr. O'Brien addressed the crowd before the radio time began. After an attack on the policies of the old parties as "hackneyed" he swung into his attack on the labor organizations supporting Roosevelt.

"Despite the Farley-owned and controled Nonpartisan Labor league, officered and manned by the illustrious payroll patriots of the Roosevelt administration, and despite the exhortations of the leaders of organized labor, the 26 million working men and women will repudiate the political leadership of the Greens and the Lewises who would trade the birthright of labor for a 'mess of pottage.'

Charges Effort at "Betrayal."

"Mr. Green represents not more than 3,500,000 of the 26 million working men and women of America. His voice was not the voice of labor! His was the voice of an individual who had undertaken to betray the agricultural workers of America for an administration promise of temporary aid to a few industrial workers.

"How the representatives of the moneyed interests gloated over the fact that their avowed policy to divide and conquer had achieved such unlooked for success! Now indeed they gleefuly announce the fact that the chance of a permanent alliance between the agricultural workers and the industrial workers of America has been made impossible."

All-Girl Meet

Chicago girl flyers will show their mettle next Sunday at Curtiss Reynolds airport, north of Glenview, at Shermer road and Lake avenue, in their second annual all-girl air meet, titled this year a "rodairo" and sponsored by the Chicago chapter of the Ninety-Niners and the Chicago Girls' Flying club. National Aeronautical association officials will judge the contest events. The program includes an efficiency race from Joliet, a relay race, a race to Naperville and return, spot landing contests, license test demonstration to be announced by radio, parachute jumping, bomb dropping, and other maneuvers. Miss Jane Ray, instructor for the state aeronautical commission, will direct the program, which will begin at 2 p. m.

OHIO GOVERNOR URGED TO BLOCK CHILTON RETURN

Cleveland, O., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Aid of Gov. Martin L. Davey was being sought tonight to prevent extradition to Oklahoma of Carlton B. Chilton, who walked away from a reformatory there 23 years ago while serving a bank theft sentence.

Chilton's attorney, James F. Connors, and Police Prosecutor Perry Frey sought Gov. Davey, en route to Columbus, and mapped plans to prevent removal of Chilton, who has lived here during the intervening years a respected family man.

"We will resist extradition with every technicality and resource in our power," Conners said when informed late yesterday that Gov. E. W. Marland of Oklahoma said he "had no choice but to demand that Chilton return to Oklahoma and finish his sentence."

"Returning Chilton to Oklahoma would wreck his life," Conners asserted. Prosecutor Frey said: "This man for 23 year has been a respectable, law-abiding citizen. That fact certainly takes the case out of the general routine."

POLICE SLAYERS SEEK NEW TRIAL IN COURT TODAY

Frank [Bones] Korczykowski, 26 years old, and Andrew Bogacki, 25 years old, who were condemned to death in the electric chair by a jury for the murder of Policeman Jerome McCauley, will appear today before Judge John C. Lewe in the Criminal court on a motion for a new trial. They are represented by Public Defender Benjamin Bachrach.

Because of their attempt to escape from the Criminal court building on July 30 during their trial, the desperadoes will be heavily guarded when brought into court. The jury that voted the death penalty for Korczykowski and Bogacki recommended that their accomplice, Paul Jenkot, 24 years old, be ordered to serve 199 years in prison for the crime. It was not learned whether Jenkot will join in the new trial motion.

McCauley was shot to death May 29 when he and his partner pursued the desperadoes' car in Wood street near Bloomingdale road.

Ask Business Firms' Help to Get Workers Registered

Large business concerns in Chicago will be asked to coöperate today in having their employès enroll early under the new permanent registration system, which went into effect Aug. 4. C. L. Rice, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, announced yesterday that he would request executives of 5,000 business houses to allow their employès time off to register at the election board offices in the city hall.

Railroad Policeman Faces Charge for Waving Pistol

Thomas A. Schroeder, 33 years old, 7227 Neenah avenue, a lieutenant in the Chicago and North Western police, will be arraigned this morning in the Town Hall court on a charge of disorderly conduct. Schroeder was arrested Saturday night in front of 2032 Belmont avenue, where residents said he was flourishing a revolver.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—A "showboat" excursion down the Mississippi river, with President Roosevelt as the featured performer, will be made a part of the chief executive's inspction of the drouth areas in the west late this month, it was learned today.

Rumors concerning the river junket have been prevalent for some time, and attachés of the summer White House here confirmed them today.

The President's itinerary in the western trip which starts Aug. 25 has not yet been definitly outlined. But he will board a government steamboat when he reaches St. Paul, Minn., and cruise leisurely down the upper Mississippi, with frequent stops for appearances along the shore.

Memphis to Be End of Line.

Tentative plans call for him to disembark at Memphis, Tenn. All territory south of that port is safely in the bag for the Democratic party, it is agreed, and a continuance of the river trip, although pleasant, would be of no political value.

The Mississippi excursion promises to supply the second colorful episode of the President's journey into the west. The most interesting occurrence, of course, will come when Mr. Roosevelt meets Alf Landon, his Republican opponent, at a conference of governors of western states.

The President rested today after his three day tour of Pennsylvania, Ohio, and New York, where an inspection of flood areas was combined with political side trips.

Some Greetings Tepid.

He was reported to have been highly gratified by the reception given him yesterday by thousands in the mining region of northern Pennsylvania. The crowds at Cleveland and their applause pleased him, also. In other areas, particularly in southern New York, the greetings he received were comparatively tepid.

The President will spend this week at his summer home on the Hudson, returning next week to Washington for a day or two to clear up official business before departing on his western tour.

GOV. LANDON TO CHAT WITH 4 LADIES WHO KNEW HIM AS A BABY

Estes Park, Colo., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Four women who knew Gov. Alf Landon when he was a baby will hold a reunion with the Republican presidential candidate when he visits West Middlesex, Pa., his birthplace, next Saturday to open his speaking campaign in the east.

The governor today directed that time be allowed on his program to permit him to chat with those who knew him in his infancy and so wrote Mrs. A. A. Young of West Middlesex, who brought the matter to his attention. The four women are:

Mrs. Mary Reed Baird of West Middlesex, now 85 years old and known as "Aunty" Baird, who was nurse to the governor when he was an infant.

Mrs. Mollie Jennings of Pulaski, Pa., who, according to Mrs. Young, made the governor's "baby clothes, even the little shorts."

Mrs. Harry White of Sharon, Pa., who cared for the governor at the age of 2, when his mother brought him to West Middlesex at the time of the birth of his sister, Helen, who died a few years later.

Mrs. Wash Dunham of Sharon, Pa., who helped Mrs. White on that occasion and is credited by Mrs. Young with having given Landon chickenpox.

HELD IN FATAL STABBING.

James Benton, 25 years old, colored, 3206 Cottage Grove avenue, was held yesterday after he fatally stabbed James Crayton, 48 years old, colored, 549 East 31st street, in a quarrel at 3126 Ellis avenue.

VETS RALLIED TO NEW FIGHT FOR AMERICA

Service Group Indorses G. O. P. Tickets.

BY LLOYD WENDT.
(Picture on Back Page.)

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—A ringing call to the war veterans of Illinois to engage in a new fight to save the American system of government was sounded today as the Illinois Republican Service Men's league held its seventh annual convention here in connection with Veterans' day at the Illinois State fair. The convention unanimously indorsed the state and national Republican tickets.

Speakers loosed a blistering attack on the war records of the Democratic national leaders and charged them with misusing power taken in an emergency in a deliberate attempt to undermine the constitutional government of the nation. They predicted that the service men of Illinois will unite to place the state back in the Republican column in November.

Brooks Is Convention Hero.

Wayland Brooks, Republican candidate for governor and an American Legion leader with a distinguished war record, was the hero of the convention today. The veterans cheered him wildly as he appeared, sung improvised songs forecasting his victory, and declared that at least 240,000 of the 300,000 veterans in the state will vote for him in the fall.

Chairman William R. McCauley of Olney opened the attack on the New Deal after Mayor John W. Kapp Jr. had welcomed the veterans to Springfield. Seizing on the speech of President Roosevelt in Chautauqua, N. Y., in which the President declared that he hated war and described the terrors of war he had seen, McCauley turned bitter fire on the war record of the Democratic nominee.

Following McCauley, Hanford MacNider, former national commander of the American Legion, charged that the Democratic leader had forgotten the veteran.

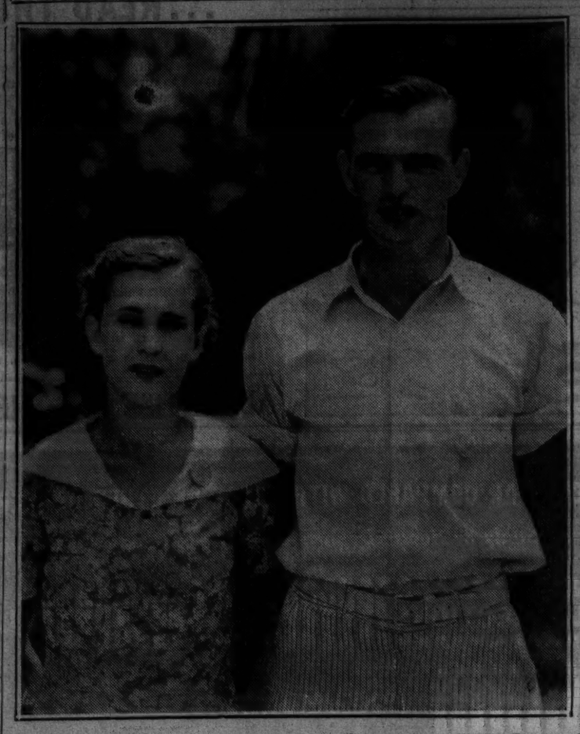
"Roosevelt had billions for every one but the veteran and nothing but a machine gun fire of vetoes for him," MacNider said. "The wartime record of Roosevelt and Farley explains that."

Brooks Rallies Veterans.

Mr. Brooks also attacked the New Deal, and called on the veterans, "united under a common bond," again to defend a free government.

"Realizing the trend of the governments of the old world, of the dangers of central power, the Republicans of our nation have selected two men—typical sons of typical prairie states—trained in the experience and understanding of midwestern civilization, men who were not inoculated by internationalism or contaminated by the trend of communism," he said.

ILLINOIS 4-H HEALTH CHAMPIONS



Constance Kircher of Pike county, who scored 100, and Raymond French of Putnam county, with 97.5 points of a possible 100, were adjudged the healthiest girl and boy in competition embracing all the 4-H members in Illinois. They are at the state fair in Springfield.

'POLITICAL BAIT,' SAYS DICKINSON OF TAX PROMISE

Attacks Roosevelt Pledge of No New Levies.

Senator L. J. Dickinson of Iowa yesterday characterized the recent announcement from Washington that there will be no additional taxation next year as " a shot in the arm " to make the people forget their troubles, in a statement released through the Republican national committee headquarters in Chicago.

"We must inevitably reach the conclusion," read the United States senator's statement, "that Mr. Roosevelt's move is carefully dangling political bait and that he has said what he thinks will sound best to the voters on the eve of a national political campaign.

"White Rabbit," He Says.

"It is a white rabbit pulled out of the New Deal hat to divert the attention of the electorate from the serious charges of inefficiency, waste, extravagance, and staggering taxation leveled against the New Dealers by the Republican party.

"But the voters will not be fooled. They have heard President Roosevelt and his New Deal administration make promises before and break them unhesitantingly when the fire got too hot, or for political expediency's sake. They expect the same thing now."

Nor will young voters be fooled by propoganda to be thrust before the public in Works Progress administration news reels, according to J. K. Bradley of Connecticut, chairman of the Young Republican National federation. The young voters, Bradley said in a statement yesterday, want jobs instead of tricks.

Cites Curb on Opportunities.

"Young Republicans feel," continued his statement, "that our opportunities as Americans have decreased greatly under the New Deal. We have come from schools into a world where political partisanship is the chief requisite for getting a job. The young people do not understand this form of political favoritism in the economic struggle, they demand something better.

"Millions of young voters are convinced the only way to open the door of opportunity is to elect Gov. Alf M. Landon, whose theories of government coincide with ours."

Speaking engagements for Col. Frank Knox, the party's vice presidential nominee, in Minnesota, South Dakota, and Wyoming on a tour beginning Sept. 8 from Chicago, were announced by headquarters. He will speak at Cokato and St. Paul, Minn.; Aberdeen, Mitchell, and Rapid City, S. D., and at Casper, Wyo. Arrangements are being made also for speeches on this trip in Montana, Washington, Oregon, California, Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado, Nebraska, and Iowa.

Exhibit Truck for Fair.

This week will see the first appearance of the national committee's new sound and exhibit trucks. The "flagship of the fleet," an 18 foot, glass-sided motor truck, loaded with 300 individual exhibits of farm and food products that have been imported under reciprocal trade agreements to the detriment of the American farmer, will be shown at the Illinois State fair at Springfield.

Organization workers under the direction of Harrison E. Spangler, national committeeman for Iowa and executive assistant to John Hamilton, chairman of the national committee, will enter Illinois and Indiana this week. The organizers have been in Iowa, Missouri, Wisconsin, and Nebraska, where hundreds of Republican clubs have been formed.

Ten thousand colorfully uniformed men and women, members of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, and its feminine auxiliary, paraded in Michigan avenue yesterday under escort of 19 bands and 10 drum and bugle corps. The brilliant procession was the high point of the Eagles' 38th annual convention, which began Thursday at the Morrison hotel and will end today.

Beginning at Wacker drive at noon, the marchers proceeded on the west side of Michigan avenue to 11th street. Bands, drum and bugle corps, and drill units marched to the plaza in front of the Field museum for a contest review before a judging committee. Chicago lodges had the largest representation in the parade, with more than 1,500 in line. Cincinnati, with 500, led the visiting groups.

40 Drill Teams March.

Forty drill teams of both men and women from all sections of the country executed parade maneuvers on the line of march. Most of the women's groups wore white satin uniforms with brilliantly colored capes.

On a white float rode "Miss Whiting" of Whiting, Ind. She wore a bathing suit and was accompanied by her court of honor. Michigan City, Ind., was represented by a float from which were raised four white pillars symbolizing the Eagle principles of truth, liberty, equality, and justice.

Forty delegates from Helena, Mont., led by T. M. Curtis, were in cowboy dress. The Elgin 30 piece women's drum and bugle corps was led by a girl drum major.

California Has Float.

Californians rode in a large blue and yellow float. Thirty-two men from the Forest Park delegation formed a marching square around a huge American flag borne horizontally. Garfield Park Eagles formed one of the largest parade units. The marchers carried pennants and wore white with black and white checked caps. Heading the South Chicago Eagles was the Boys' Alliance club drum and bugle corps of the South Chicago Y. M. C. A., which Saturday was the juvenile winner in THE TRIBUNE music festival contest.

William H. Armstrong of Racine, Wis., grand marshal of the parade, and officers of the grand aerie [lodge], including George Nordlin of St. Paul, grand worthy president, headed the marchers. Among cities participating with bands, drum corps and drill teams were Wapakoneta, Akron, Troy, Springfield, Zanesville, Freemont, Columbus, and Dayton, O.; Davenport, Burlington, and Sioux City, Ia.; Minneapolis, Cloquet, and Staples, Minn.; McKeesport, Pa.; Helena, Mont.; Elkhart, Kokomo, and Lafayette, Ind., and numerous Wisconsin and Illinois cities.

SUGAR BOWL $271 IS TRACED BUT IT'S NO LONGER $271

The West North avenue police reached the end of the trail yesterday in their search for $271 taken from a sugar bowl in the home of Stanley Grzegorczyk, 2500 Southport avenue, owner of a bakery at 3437 North Halsted street. The baker reported to the police Saturday that his nephew, Chester Grzegorczyk, 13 years old, 2329 Haddon avenue, had taken the money.

The nephew said he kept $10 and gave the rest to Chester Ozog, 14 years old, 1118 North Oakley avenue. The Ozog boy said he kept $1 and gave the remainder to Louis Chovanec, 14 years old, 2533 Cortez street. Louis said he gave the money to an older boy named "Wally."

Seized yesterday at his home, "Wally" proved to be Walter Wodzien, 22 years old, 2314 Cortez street. He admitted he had spent $185 at taverns, amusement parks, and clothing stores. Police recovered $43 which he had hidden in his pigeon loft.

FARMERS' PLIGHT DEPICTS FAILURE OF NEW DEALERS

House of Corn Wallace Falling on All Sides.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Looking backward over the last three years, farmers are finding that revolutionary agricultural plans emanating from Washington have either failed or have fallen far short of their mark. They are being widely discredited.

The house of Corn Wallace, built at staggering costs to rural and city people, is falling. Practically all of the trial balloons on agricultural planning sent out from the farm chief's air castle at the nation's capital have been returning like boomerangs to settle on his doorstep. His sincerity is not questioned, but as a prophet and lawgiver he overlooked at least three forces in his national planning—the Supreme court, the ruler of the universe that controls weather, and the human side of the farm.

Stopped by Supreme Court.

Justices of the Supreme court stopped the Roosevelt administration's slaughtering of live stock, stopped the regimentation of farmers, and stopped the collection of processing taxes paid mostly by producers themselves under authority of the Agricultural Adjustment administration act.

But that did not stop the New Dealers. They found another way of legally killing cattle. Under the federal government's nation-wide campaign against Bangs' disease, dairy and beef cattle are being killed at the rate of nearly half a million a year.

Farmers who have submitted their herds for the Bangs' disease test with the hope of getting rid of this malady are disappointed with the results. They are becoming wise to the political planners' scheme to use the test as a means of cutting down the supply of meat and dairy products under their general radical program of reducing production of agricultural products. Cattlemen are getting ready to register their protest.

Resent Foreign Policies.

Resentment is growing against the Washington tinkers' reciprocal trade agreement with Canada and against other foreign trade policies fostered by the administration. The tinkering has resulted in increasing imports of cattle, fresh and canned meats and other farm products grown in foreign countries.

An indication of public resentment against foreign beef coming into this country is the national domestic beef sale being conducted during August by organizations representing farmers, ranchmen, processors, and retailers from coast to coast.

Within the last year, ending in May, 600,000 "tin hided steers" came from South America into the United States. This canned beef is adding to the burdens of beef cattle producers. During the first half of this year Canada has sent 162,000 cattle across the border and 122,000 head of cattle have been brought across the Rio Grande out of Mexico.

Officials in Washington are meeting opposition in their efforts to change restrictions imposed on Argentine imports. Regulations now forbid the importation of meat products from countries where rinderpest, or foot and mouth disease, exists. The proposal to modify the Argentine embargo is being vigorously opposed by cattlemen. The American National Live Stock association officials say that "the efforts to break down the present embargo are wholly based on economic grounds, and are pursued with a careless disregard of possible grave consequences."

Farmers in this country are jealous of the disease-free conditions of their herds. "No diplomatic coup, no international intrigue, no pressure from foreign trade enthusiasts or well-meaning but misdirected free trade advocates should be allowed to undermine it," declares the cattlemen's association.

The new 500 million dollar soil conservation and domestic allotment law is the New Deal's latest attempt to reduce production and regiment farmers.

Corn Wallace's Goal.

The goal of Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, this year was to reduce production of soil depleting crops such as corn and wheat to the extent of 35 million acres. This is the same number of acres taken out of production under the AAA program which was suddenly halted by the Supreme court's decision last winter.

Definite figures on the number of farmers coöperating in the soil program are not known. Secretary Wallace said in Chicago recently that more farmers had joined this plan than were signed up under the AAA program. Farmers, however, increased the acreage of practically all crops this year compared with last, according to information coming from Washington.

SHIFTING WINDS REVIVE MENACE OF FOREST FIRES

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Shifting winds spelled new uncertainty over northern Minnesota's forest fires today as state rangers reported a new "smoke" near the international boundary.

Lack of rain in the north country and reports that major fires, now smouldering, were not yet trench controled prompted Deputy State Forester A. F. Oppel to warn "we're sitting on a keg of powder."

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Frank Ridgway

Rains Bring Green.

Aug. 16, 1936.

The Tribune experimental farms have begun to show a touch of green in the pastures and meadows during the last few days following the heavy rains that fell the latter part of last week. The parched pastures, meadows and cornfields were given a thorough washing. They have been left clean with all the dust and débris of the extreme drouth washed off the vegetation.

Men at the farms stayed up for some time to listen to the welcome rain pattering on the roofs. The rain gauge at the Yorkville farm showed that 1.14 inches of water fell Thursday afternoon and night. While no accurate measurements were taken at the Wheaton farm, workers estimated that at least two inches of water fell Thursday and Friday.

Until last week's rain only a little more than an inch of water had fallen since about the middle of May at the Yorkville farm. Only about 6⅛ inches of rain had fallen during the entire year. With the rains last week the total rainfall for the year is less than 7.5 inches, far short of normal.

Clarence Thurow, manager of the Yorkville farm, said that he stayed up practically all night "listening to the rain" and taking care of the live stock. About 2 o'clock in the morning he turned all of the horses into the pastures, fearing they might be killed by lightning striking the barns.

High Winds Tangle Corn.

High winds tangled several acres of corn on the Yorkville farm. Manager Thurow said the rain would be of material help to the late corn, but would be of little benefit to the early planted fields. He has 120 acres of early corn that he thinks is too far gone to be greatly helped by the rains. However, he expects the rain to help keep the early corn green much longer and prevent "firing" of the blades.

Alfalfa Is Helped.

Mr. Thurow finds that since the rain the alfalfa fields are "taking on new life." He expects the rain to help develop the plants to the point where they will be strong enough to go through the winter. Earlier in the season he had planned to take a third cutting of hay off the alfalfa fields, but since the plants were so severely hit by the drouth, he thinks this plan would be unwise and will let the plants grow and cover the ground if possible for winter protection.

Pastures Get Fresh Start.

While the pastures are taking a fresh start on both farms, the managers say it will require several more good rains to revive the grass so that it will furnish a fair amount of late fall grazing. The grass was given such a setback that it will require several weeks for it to furnish much feed for live stock.

Since the rains the cattle, sheep, and hogs hustle off to the pastures early each morning. This is the first time the animals have grazed during the daytime since the extreme hot weather set in several weeks ago. They had been running in the pastures at night and remaining in the barns or under shade trees throughout the day.

Soy Beans Sprout.

Soy beans planted at the Yorkville place several weeks ago have begun to sprout. With favorable weather from now until frost the beans are expected to have a fair chance of producing a crop for hay. If they fail to make a satisfactory hay crop they will be plowed under to enrich the soil.

Skin Troubles

Come from Constipation

Constipation is the cause of most complexion troubles. Poisons from the waste matter are picked up by the blood and carried to all parts of the body, especially the skin.

No one needs to have a sallow, muddy complexion. Proper diet, exercise, surface cleanliness and above all—internal cleanliness. Nujol prevents intestinal poisons that ruin your health and complexion.

Constipation is dangerous for anybody. Nujol is safe for everybody. It does not affect the stomach, and is not absorbed by the body. Medical authorities approve Nujol because it is so safe, so natural in its action.

Nujol makes up for a deficiency of natural lubricant in the intestines. It softens the waste matter and thus permits thorough and regular bowel movements without griping.

Just try Nujol regularly for the next month and see if you don't feel better than you ever suspected you could.

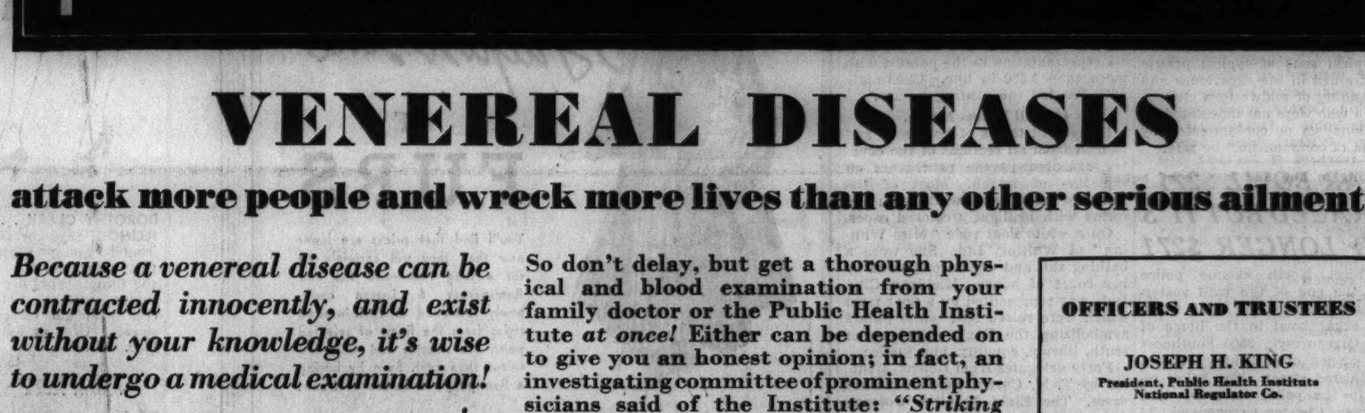
ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

NEW CASES OF VENEREAL INFECTIONS EACH YEAR COMPARED WITH THOSE OF OTHER DANGEROUS DISEASES

(An Estimate Based On A Nationwide Study By Health Departments Of The Causes Of Ill Health)



VENEREAL DISEASES

attack more people and wreck more lives than any other serious ailment!

Because a venereal disease can be contracted innocently, and exist without your knowledge, it's wise to undergo a medical examination!

MOST men and women are inclined to think of pneumonia, cancer, tuberculosis, typhoid, and heart and kidney diseases as the principal causes of disability and premature death among adults.

Yet each year syphilis and gonorrhea attack 1,555,000 Americans—60% more than pneumonia, and 14% more than cancer, tuberculosis, typhoid, and heart and kidney diseases combined!

Thus venereal infections are by far the most common of all the serious disorders that afflict the human race. And, unless promptly and properly treated, they almost invariably result in disabling or life-shortening consequences.

For instance, neglected syphilis may easily lead to heart disease, blindness, deafness, apoplexy, locomotor ataxia, paralysis or even insanity! And neglected gonorrhea may be the cause of a sight-destroying eye infection, sterility, crippling rheumatism, or prostate, bladder and other troubles.

Because a venereal disease can be contracted innocently, and exist without one's knowledge, every man and woman should determine to submit to a protective medical examination. Unless this is done, an unsuspected infection may progress to the point that a cure will be extremely difficult if not impossible.

Better to know than guess!

It's far, far better to know the facts than to guess about your condition. For when a venereal infection is discovered in time, treatment can be started that will either cure the disease or arrest the development of dangerous complications.

So don't delay, but get a thorough physical and blood examination from your family doctor or the Public Health Institute at once! Either can be depended on to give you an honest opinion; in fact, an investigating committee of prominent physicians said of the Institute: "Striking evidence of a desire to serve the patient . . . is the large number classified as No Disease Found."

The friendly, sympathetic men and women physicians of the Public Health Institute specialize in the examination and treatment of venereal infections. To date they have given more than 4,000,000 treatments to almost 250,000 individuals—a record to inspire the utmost confidence in their experience! Each patient is promptly attended in a private room, and for the sake of even greater privacy is known by number instead of by name.

Treatments as low as $1.00

Organized by public-spirited citizens as a corporation "NOT-FOR-PROFIT" under the laws of the State of Illinois, the Public Health Institute offers low cost venereal disease treatment to those unable to pay higher fees. A complete examination for gonorrhea and syphilis, including urinalysis and Wassermann blood test, costs only $3.00, while some treatments for syphilis cost as little as $1.00 and some of those for gonorrhea still less!

Hence it's the height of folly not to make sure you haven't a venereal infection to rob you of your health and cut years from your normal span of life. For not only can dependable medical attention be obtained confidentially at nominal cost, but even persons temporarily pressed for funds can arrange to be treated.

NOTE: The Public Health Institute has no connection with any other Chicago health or medical institute, and should not be confused with those operated for personal gain!

59,000 FAMILIES URGED TO QUIT DROUTH STATES

Lack of Moisture May Extend 20 Years.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Migration of 59,000 families from the drought damaged farms of the great plains was recommended today in a population survey of that area by Dr. C. W. Thornthwaite, former university of Oklahoma climatologist.

His study, published by the University of Pennsylvania, contended that wind erosion had damaged 65 per cent of the plains region, extending from the Canadian border into the Texas panhandle.

A long range government program for the return of millions of acres of wheat land to its native sod, he said, might be the only means of checking the devastating dust storms.

May Last 20 Years.

Observing that long dry spells have been frequent in the history of the plains, Thornthwaite predicted that "the present drouth might be prolonged for 20 or more years."

Evidence from tree rings, lake levels, and other sources was cited in the survey to show that a 40 year drouth began in 1825 and was interrupted by only occasional wet years.

The weather expert estimated that a minimum of 12,610 families should move out of Montana, the state in which he reported the greatest "surplus population." He urged a migration of 12,200 families from Texas and 7,360 from North Dakota.

36,000 Families Move.

Heavy removals also were suggested for South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Wyoming, and Colorado.

School census returns indicated, he said, that 36,000 families have left the great plains since 1930.

"The ideal situation in the great plains," he said, "would be a virtually complete return to a grazing economy where pasturing on the range is supplemented by the raising of feed and forage crops.

"This does not mean a reestablishment of the great ranches and the restoration of the cattle kings, but rather an increase in the size of farms to a point where cultivation and grazing can both be controled."

PRINCIPAL IN KISS TANGLE IS OUT OF JOB, SAYS PUFFER

Charles O'Hearn, 38 years old, will not be restored as principal of the Union Ridge school in Norwood Park township, County Superintendent of Schools Noble J. Puffer declared yesterday. O'Hearn was charged by three teachers of his staf with attempting to hug and kiss them, but parents of the district came to his defense at a massmeeting Friday night and asked that he be retained as principal.

Mr. Puffer said he would not yield to any requests from the district that the principal be reinstated. O'Hearn cannot teach in the county unless Mr. Puffer renews his annual teaching certificate.

"I have his resignation and the complaints against him are true so far as I am concerned," Mr. Puffer asserted. "The teachers did not instigate the charges. It was forced upon them after a poison pen letter was sent to the school district board."

The teachers who gave statements against the principal are Mrs. Mary Hammond, 6600 Gunnison street, 48 year old; Miss Clarabelle Lindsay of De Kalb, and Miss Larinda Cleary, 5033 Maypole avenue, both young women.

SEAWAY TREATY URGED TO SUPPLY NEW YORK POWER

Cornwall, Ont., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—The reading of a telegram from Gov. Herbert Lehman of New York warmly espousing the St. Lawrence waterways scheme was a feature of an international demonstration in favor of the project here today. The telegram said Lehman had always favored development "at the earliest possible moment of our power available in the St. Lawrence," and hoped "the treaty will be ratified and work may commence at an early date."

Officers of the New York state Power Authority and the National Seaway council had organized a tour of the international section of the St. Lawrence by boat from Ogdensburg to Cornwall after a meeting in Massena, N. Y.

At the Massena meeting the National Seaways council decided to establish a headquarters in Washington that would represent all the regional bodies that support the scheme and press the United States government for immediate ratification of the treaty, which has twice failed to pass the United States senate.

CLAIMS TROTZKY RING PLOTTED UKRAINE REVOLT

Germans, Poles Aided Scheme, Charge.

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

MOSCOW, Aug. 16. — Further charges against Gregory Zinoviev and Leon Kamanev which were made public today include an allegation that Trotzkyists were active in a movement in the Ukraine in 1934 to secede from the soviet union. Following the discovery of that movement, which had prominent adherents in universities and among officials, many members of the Ukrainian communist party were expelled as disloyal.

Today, Pravda in a fresh denunciation of the arrested former leaders declared the Trotzkyists conspired with Ukrainian Fascists and counted on German and Polish intervention to help detach this vast rich region. For this purpose, according to Pravda, they were in contact even then with Trotzkyists in Poland who were agents of the Polish secret service as well as with German spies.

Trial Opens Wednesday.

When the trial of Zinoviev, Kamenev and fourteen others charged with plotting the death of Dictator Josef Stalin and other leaders opens Wednesday it is expected the government will contend that Zinoviev and Kamenev intended to keep forever secret their alleged instigation of the assassinations.

Their plan, as alleged by the government, was to preserve the appearance of innocence in expectation that after five men smuggled in from abroad had accomplished their murderous mission on the night of Nov. 6 in the Bolshoi theater and destroyed the entire party leadership they would be summoned to take control. Horrified statements of Zinoviev and Kamenev after the assassination of Sergei Kirov, Stalin's friend, are cited in this connection.

"Purge" Is Intensified.

With the whole press of the country ringing with demands for vengeance on the men accused of plotting the deaths of Stalin and his aids, the hunt for Trotzkyists, which has been actively under way for the last two weeks, greatly was intensified.

Dozens of industrial executives are being dismissed by the communist party. Young communist leaders are being removed, not because they are believed to have any connection with the alleged plot, for which Zinoviev and Kamenlev are to be tried, but simply because it is discovered they were one time adherents of Leon Trotzky, now in exile in Norway.

Jewish Congress Decides to Set Up Permanent Body

GENEVA, Aug. 16.—(AP)—The world Jewish congress decided tonight to incorporate as a permanent organization under the laws of Switzerland. Offices will be established in Geneva, Paris, and New York, and officers were named to raise an international budget of $75,000 for 1937.

2 JEWS SLAIN, 20 WOUNDED IN HOLY LAND DISORDERS

JERUSALEM, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Two more Jews were killed today in the disorders which started April 19 in Palestine.

At least 20 others, including a British constable, were wounded during the night of terror, climaxed by a shooting from ambuscade and a bombing.

An 8 year old child was dead and many were seriously injured from wounds inflicted when a bomb was thrown from a freight train passing through the all Jewish city of Tel Aviv en route to the nearby Arab town of Jaffa.

Kill Electrical Worker.

Julius Vagshall, an employé of the Palestine Electric company, was shot by assailants from the darkness near the Jewish agricultural settlement of Mikveh Israel.

Vagshall and another employé were on duty guarded by the British constable when the flash of guns pierced the night. Vagshall fell dead and the other two were wounded. The constable, with the aid of a passing British army officer, returned the fire.

An angry crowd of Jews gathered on the boundary road between Tel Aviv and Jaffa. British police scattered the gathering and arrested two Jews.

Armed Arab Slain.

An armed Arab was reported killed by Transjordan frontiersmen and six Arabs were believed shot in a brush between troops and a band which fired on a south-bound convoy near Kalkilyeh. No injuries were recorded among convoy passengers or the military troop.

Two Arab homes were demolished near Safed, where four Jews were killed Thursday night, in the government drive to end sniping.

A Jewish shop was reported set afire in Tiberias and two bombs were exploded.

TOLERANCE AND THE RED INVASION.

The national conference of Catholic, Protestant, and Jewish clergymen and laymen now in session at Asheville, N. C., is so blessedly characteristic of the spirit of our country that it will not be noted as it should be by the press or public. In continental Europe it would be an incredible event. In England there is religious tolerance after a long struggle which is a part of our own heritage, but there is after all a state church with special privileges. But the founders of our system of government forbade congress to make any law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof.

The moral influence of this decree has extended far beyond its legal scope and furnishes one of the best illustrations of how much more than a mere legal and political structure the constitution is. The legal prohibition of an establishment of religion, that is, a state church, and even the prohibition of national law interfering with the liberty of every citizen to worship according to his own conscience, was only a beginning. Its implications and its influence ran throughout the moral and social nature of our American society. It pointed the way to tolerance among our people and to the give and take essential to democratic harmony in all our affairs.

There have been outbreaks of intolerance and there are prejudices of race and religion. But we only need look at the torn and tortured fabric of European society to realize what the spirit expressed in our constitution and emanating from it means to our peace and happiness.

It was natural, then, and inevitable at this time that the splendid gathering at Asheville should turn its attention to the influences now abroad in the land and active even in the churches to disparage what Gov. Landon has called "the charter of our human liberties." Clergymen, more than any other Americans, are trustees of the American spirit of tolerance and good will. Yet there are clergymen who are active in spreading the influence of communism, which, wherever it has gained power, has struck at the church and destroyed, so far as it could, freedom of conscience.

The ominous portent was handled at this conference without gloves, without weazel words, or glittering generalities. Facts were brought forth and names were named. The Rev. Dr. Rembert Smith, who has followed the activities of the radical clericals for years, said it was probable that there was a higher percentage of Socialist and communistic ministers in his own denomination, Methodist Episcopal, than in any other. He cited their activities under the guise of social service and the activities of like minded clergymen in the Baptist, Congregational, and other Protestant denominations. Bishop McConnell and Bishop Edgar of the Methodists, Prof. Harry Ward of the Union Theological seminary, Dr. Gratz, editor of the Methodist Youth magazine, were named as leaders in radical politics. "The youth of the Southern Methodist church," said Dr. Smith, "is being fed homeopathic doses of socialism and communism through Sunday school literature." Prof. Theodore Graebner of Concordia Lutheran Theological seminary and editor of the Lutheran Witness, supported Dr. Smith's testimony and cited activities of Prof. Ward and others. Bishop Hafey of the Catholic diocese of North Carolina declared that "within a decade America will have to decide between communism and democracy," and that "the communist has reason to gloat over his prospects as he plans his attack."

The fact is that under the protection of the constitution its enemies are at work to destroy it. The liberties it guards for them these enemies are using against liberty. Clergymen are working for the coming of an order which holds religion "the opium of the people," and which wherever it has gained power has persecuted and as far as possible has destroyed religion. Their preachment has inflamed the class hatred which is the main force of the strategy of the movement they are aiding. The régime they foster knows no human liberties.

It is no wonder a conference which is dedicated to religious tolerance and a living evidence of its reality in our land should deal with this menace in the religious organizations. The menace should be no longer ignored or underestimated because it is thus far in the keeping of minorities. The faith and loyalty of youth are being undermined under the cover of religion, social service, and liberty. The clergy and the laity of the churches should leave their indifference and enter the fight which only a few are in today to defend the ideals and institutions of their country.

ANOTHER ROOSEVELT PROMISE.

There will be no new taxes next year, says Secretary Morgenthau on the authority of the President, and the words are echoed by Senator Pat Harrison. The news was given out at the White House in the absence of Mr. Roosevelt, who is busy making campaign speeches on a trip which he promised would be a nonpolitical tour of inspection.

Four years ago everything Mr. Roosevelt said was believed. He said he was a budget balancer, an enemy of excessive spending, a destroyer of unnecessary government bureaus. People took him at his word. How little his word is worth has since been revealed. Today what he promises is ignored as of no importance. He may stick to it and he may not. His word is not always good even for 59 cents on the dollar.

His administration's record on tax promises is particularly bad. In 1935 and again this year the same Senator Harrison, after conferences with the President, announced that no new taxes were contemplated. Both times the pledge was broken. Both times Mr. Roosevelt had authorized Mr. Harrison to speak for him. In 1935 Mr. Roosevelt broke his word because he wanted to steal Huey Long's slogan of Soak the Rich. This year he imposed a tax on corporate savings because of an ill-concealed desire to revenge himself against the business men who had dared to oppose him.

The present promise that there will be no new taxes in 1937 is obviously intended to quiet the growing realization that if he is reëlected the country can escape a ruinous inflation only by means of ruinous taxation. The White House says that business has improved so much in recent months that present levies will produce revenues adequate to balance the budget. No evidence is offered to prove this assertion because no adequate evidence is available. The treasury has only the scantiest new data to show what its revenues next year will be. It is known that next year's expenditures, like this year's and last year's, will be about double the government's income. The deficit will approximate 3 billion dollars. It is known that business is improving, but it is also known that expenses in recent months have also been increasing. It is therefore not even probable that the budget can be balanced without new taxation.

It could be balanced, of course, by a reduction of expenditures, but that is not contemplated. The evidence on this point is conclusive. At almost the same moment when Mr. Morgenthau was announcing the tax policy Mr. Roosevelt in Pennsylvania was promising enormous new outlays for flood control.

The White House announcement was calculated to quiet the voters' fears. Intelligent voters will find in it a cause for additional alarm. If Mr. Roosevelt intends this time to keep his word inflation cannot be avoided.

WHERE CREDIT IS DUE.

Transportation is an odd commodity—if it may be called a commodity for the purposes of this editorial. Because it cannot be wrapped in a package and carried home, the public is inclined to think it expensive at any price. On second thought, however, most users of transportation realize that its production must be expensive because none of its facilities—rail, boat, barge, or air line—lead the country as dividend producing industries. Perhaps the cost of purchasing and operating the family automobile will broaden the vision.

When a great national catastrophe, like the present drouth, appears, the necessity for transportation is emphasized. If feed could only be conveyed from the more fortunate districts to the dust bowls! If live stock could be moved from the area of want to a territory of abundance! With the reappearance of normal conditions the animals may be returned. But how is the cost of freighting to be borne? In such emergencies the railways seek permission from the interstate commerce commission to cut the rates on feeds and live stock. This contribution to the general welfare is gratefully received—if the farmer thinks of it—but the concession has been made so frequently that it is likely to be considered as an obligation.

Drouth relief is not a railway duty. Most, if not all, of the freight rates that are slashed were constructed by the interstate commerce commission and could be maintained as just and reasonable compensation for the services performed. The government's relief administration pays full price for everything else intended for the aid of the sufferers, and the recipients of contracts for supplies are as much interested as the railways in the return of prosperity to the afflicted areas.

[Toronto Globe.]

Customs inspectors disclose that they have been improving the education of Canadian tourists returning from the United States who try to take full advantage of the $100 exemption law. Thrifty travelers, they say, have been too prone to give a wide meaning to the word baggage, and have attempted to bring back home everything, if not including the kitchen sink, at least the bathtub, strapped to the backs of their cars.

A bathtub, a furnace blower, or a refrigerator, the officials maintain, is not baggage, and those who desire to furnish their homes with fixtures from across the line will in future have to pay the duty.

The inspectors are probably right in their claim that such bulky pieces of equipment would not be accepted as baggage by the railway and carried on a ticket; but surely there is something to be said on the side of the poor tourist. Surely the motorist should be allowed to travel in comfort.

During the last heat wave there were probably many warm drivers who wished that they had taken a bathtub and a refrigerator along with them. What a comfortable way it would have been to travel. It would not be necessary to hunt for a hotel or a refreshment stand, since a refreshing bath and cool drink could be enjoyed anywhere along the highway. If a traveler is allowed to carry with him a toothbrush and towel, why should he not be allowed the luxury of his own private bathtub as well?

Bathtubs vary in size and shape, and perhaps some of the returning tourists are particular as to their ablutions. They may have found something in the way of bathing comfort that they had never experienced here and wanted to keep it ever with them. After all there is no tub like one that fits.

However, the stern officials have laid down the law, and those overaddicted to cleanliness will either have to stay at home or else pay for the privilege of taking their bath along.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

ADVICES FROM ALL PARTS OF THE WAKE-Line battle front are encouraging today. R. H. L. continues to trip, gazelle-like, over the verdant mountain peaks of old Vermont. Harvey T. [Help! Help!] Woodruff, who became ill four days after he took charge of the merged Wake-Line, is reported getting along well. And . . .

With humor as light as a feather
Our Contribs and Helpers together
Are filling this widespreading chasm—
O, happy the column that has 'em.

MAYBE THEY HAVE BOTH.

Wake-Line: On Route 12, about a block from the schoolhouse in New Buffalo, Mich., I saw a sign in a parkway that read "Rooms," and under it another sign "Raspberries." E. J. Richardson.

AW, TAKE A CHANCE.

I will not write a diary;
I do not want to do it.
For every one who writes one
Will surely live to rue it.

E. Gloria.

Recently a Tribune picture caption described Charles Lockhart, state treasurer of Texas, who is 45 inches tall, as the shortest public official in the United States. Five Helpers—Mu Han, S. 1. Heist, and three who remain anonymous—chortle that we've had public officials hereabouts who were shorter than Treasurer Lockhart by hundreds of thousands of dollars.

POLICY.

The present policy of this column is now definitely established. We want to conduct it, as nearly as we can, as the two fine gentlemen who have shares in it would want it conducted. They'll be back soon and the fondest hope of the country boy who is pinch hitting is that neither share will have a deep wound in the reputation.

Uncle Dick's vacation will be happier and Harvey will be cheered if the readers keep on reading and the Helpers and Contribs keep on assisting. Terse, interesting items will be printed up to the limit of our space. Please make 'em snappy; a four liner has several times as much chance of getting in as a ten liner.

HOUSE OF YESTERDAY.

A thousand memories return
To bring me smiles and tears.
For I have seen the little house
We sold in other years.

The little house of yesterday
Where little children ran,
And toys were strewn from end to end
—And where a life began.

O, little house, could you but speak
What stories you could tell
Of joy we found within your walls
—These things we did not sell.

How memories return to bless
And comfort through the years.
I smiled upon the little house
—But saw it through my tears.

Hilda Butler Farr.

WE'RE TOO YOUNG.

Wake-Line: Speaking of the Cubs giving Dolph Camilli, the home run hitting star, to the Phillies, do you remember 'way back when the Cubs gave another home run hitting first baseman named Luderus to the Phils? William G. Shane.

I CALL MY SWEETIE—
Satan [when she's not listening] because she leads me into temptation. William Owen.

Wake-Line: I see where your neighbor state to the north has sent a beauty queen to the Texas Centennial. I suppose her official court song will be "On Miss 'Consin." Barney Q. L.

Wake-Line: "Blackmail" I call it when a person receives a bill via postman marked "paid in full"; because it takes him out of the red.

REMINISCENCES.

Noontime. Court day in a little southern town. A printshop on the public square, where farmers were bartering sheep and mules and cows. An errant ram entered the printery and butted the editor under a tall type cabinet. The printer's devil laughed from his high stool, and was spanked and sent home. Not hard to remember that one.

1918. A troop transport, an old German vessel that had been interned, had swept into the submarine zone. Orders were that no light was ever to be shown after dark. The major in command of the soldiers aboard added: "Sentries will shoot any one who carries a lighted cigar or cigaret on deck at night."

Came midnight. The door of the saloon swung open. In popped a whitefaced major, a lighted cigar in his hand. "I'd be dead now," he said, "if a sentry had had nerve enough to shoot me. God bless him, but take him off post and confine him to his bunk. He's no fit sentry."

THE HUNTRESS

If any man be burning-eyed and restless
With strange persistent fever no cooling herb
Or laying on of quiet hands assuages;
If he be stricken
With some incredible wound from which the arrow
Neither by skill nor force can be drawn forth,
Know that in the solitudes he encountered

Adelaide Love.

W. C. S. is giving a yelp—
All he needs is HELP! HELP! HELP!

Undersecretary Swivel, who doesn't know what a help he is to us, has completed some heavy thinking in Washington about the currency question. "Experience has shown me," he said, "that our currency is not adequate enough. I am forwarding to the secretary of the treasury a recommendation that rubber checks be made legal tender. That would solve all my—I mean our—financial difficulties."

A LITTLE MORE SCOTCH.

And then there was the Scotchman who liked to boil his milk because the milk seemed to increase and came clear to the top of the pan.

HEED ABDOMINAL PAIN.

WITHIN the last few weeks the public press carried notices of the deaths of two national figures of prominence—each as a result of a ruptured, abscessed appendix. The physician in charge of one of these cases kindly sent me an abstract of the record, from which the following facts are taken.

The patient was past 60 years of age and, because of minor abdominal disturbances now and then, had grown careless as to the significance of the attacks. They came on infrequently—rarely less often, however, than six or eight times each year. At no time was the pain acute nor did it interfere with his usual activities. There was merely a grumpy, dull ache in the right lower abdomen which seemed to call for an occasional rubbing of that part of the anatomy. An earlier diagnosis of chronic colitis [inflammation of the colon] had been made.

The illness which proved fatal appeared to the sufferer to be identical with the sensations he had experienced previously, although the dull pain was more continuous. On retiring an ice bag was applied to the abdomen, which afforded considerable relief. The following morning symptoms were alleviated, but the patient decided to remain in bed, keeping the ice bag on the affected area.

The treatment used did allay pain, or at least rendered it less acute. At the end of twenty-four hours, however, the appendix ruptured and, as is many times the case, the pain disappeared entirely. Nevertheless, the patient was wise enough to sense that he did not feel quite so well. Nausea, which had been present earlier, was somewhat increased, and it was decided to call the family physician, who had no difficulty in making a diagnosis.

Either from the character of the infection, or because of the low resistance of the patient, the abscess refused to localize and peritonitis [inflammation] spread throughout the abdomen, despite the best surgical care obtainable.

We cannot learn too much about appendicitis or any disease that produces abdominal pain. There is one set rule, namely, that whenever distress of any type lasts for more than one hour skilled help is demanded. Furthermore, no laxatives should be used. This is like pouring oil upon a blazing fire and a very high percentage of ruptured appendices is due to the taking of castor oil or some other purgative.

We must recall that pain is nature's wireless that something is wrong. Inflammation creates a weak spot in the intestinal tube and we should not consciously put on more pressure or cause more violent contractions of the thin muscle of the bowel through the use of a cathartic. That is, we should not do so if we still love life. Every type of pain should be evaluated, therefore, at its true meaning.

The English surgeon, Lord Moynihan, says the stomach is the greatest liar in the body; that is, less dependence can be placed on symptoms that arise in that area than on those that appear to come from other abdominal structures. Ulcers are easily diagnosed if an X-ray can be taken following a barium meal when the typical deformity [shadow] caused by the ulcer will appear. In fact, the symptoms of the patient extending over weeks or months will generally suffice. There is a history of a burning type of pain that starts shortly after food enters the stomach or occurs an hour or two later, depending upon the position of the ulcer.

Acute inflammation of the appendix behaves quite differently. In a first attack the pain as a rule centers around the navel [umbilicus] and is rarely steady or boring. Later it shifts to the lower right side of the belly, localizing in the region of the inflammation.

A chronic appendix may exist for years without prostrating symptoms. Particularly in older persons—who have become inured to minor aches—the discomfort may not seem important. But it is dangerous to ignore symptoms that originate along the digestive tract.

GIVE NATURE TIME.

J. J. M. writes: My grandmother, aged 73, fractured her left hip. She was in a plaster cast for approximately seven weeks. Her doctor advised massaging the leg, which has been done since the removal of the cast. He permits her to get up twice a day for short walks around the house, but swelling occurs whenever she walks. After the fracture she suffered a slight stroke which left no after effects. She was in good health before the accident except for high blood pressure. What causes the swelling?

REPLY.

Recovery from such an injury is bound to be slow in a person your grandmother's age. The swelling occurs because the return circulation has not found adequate channels as yet. Massage and heat will help. Remember that countless blood vessels were broken at the time of the fracture. Nature will restore the circulation if given time.

NEED SELF-CONTROL.

R. A. J. writes: At work, when I see one of the big bosses enter the office I immediately start trembling, my heart beats fast, and I choke up, losing my power of speech. When my boss calls me into his office the same thing happens, and also if I have a dispute with any one I have the same experience. I can't seem to control my nerves, try as I may.

REPLY.

You need training in self-control. There are several books on the subject, many of which you can get at the public library. We have a list of such books. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for the titles. Tell your "boss" about your difficulty. He [or she] can help you if he [or she] will and place you entirely at ease.

PARALYSIS.

H. S. B. writes: About eight years ago I had a stroke of paralysis which affected my entire right side. I am a little better and get around with one crutch, but the doctors cannot say what caused it and can't do anything for it. What is your opinion and advice?

REPLY.

Paralysis is caused by circulatory disturbances in that part of the brain controling the muscles. After the passage of time the condition becomes permanent. Keeping your general health up to par and using massage with the involved muscles is about all that you can do.

We have a small booklet on this subject that you can get by sending 10 cents and a stamped, addressed envelope.

THE GOOSE THAT LAYS THE SALARY EGG

DAY BY DAY IN THE MAKING OF THE CONSTITUTION

BY JAMES MADISON.

[Father of the Constitution and Fourth President of the United States.]

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 17, 1787.—In convention. On the clause [in the delegated powers of congress] to appoint a treasurer by ballot. Mr. Reed of Delaware moved to strike out the clause, leaving the appointment of the treasurer, as of other officers, to the executive. The legislature was an improper body for appointments. Those of the state legislatures were a proof of it. Col. Mason of Virginia, in opposition to Mr. Reed's motion, desired it might be considered to whom the money would belong; if to the people, the legislature representing the people ought to appoint the keepers of it. [The clause, amended to provide by joint ballot, was retained.] "To constitute inferior tribunals" and "To make rules as to captures on land and water" agreed to without dissent. The clause on piracies, counterfeiting, and felonies was enlarged and amended to confer the power "to define and punish piracies and felonies committed on the high seas, counterfeiting the securities and current coin of the United States, and offenses against the law of nations" was agreed to.

We Are Acting a Strange Part

"To subdue a rebellion in any state, on the application of its legislature," Mr. Pinckney of South Carolina moved to strike out "on application of its legislature." Mr. Luther Martin of Delaware opposed it as giving a dangerous and unnecessary power. The consent of the state ought to precede the introduction of any extraneous force whatever. Mr. Ellsworth of Connecticut proposed to add "or executive." Mr. Gouverneur Morris: The executive may possibly be at the head of the rebellion. The general government should enforce obedience in all cases where it may be necessary. Mr. Gerry of Massachusetts was against letting loose the myrmidons of the United States on a state without its consent. Mr. Morris: We are acting a very strange part. We first form a strong man to protect us and at the same time wish to tie his hands behind him. Mr. Madison and Mr. Dickinson moved to insert as an explanation after "state"—"against the government thereof." There might be a revolution against the United States. [This was agreed to. Then the clause was defeated.]

"To make war." Mr. Pinckney opposed vesting this power in the legislature. Its proceedings were too slow. It would meet but once a year. The senate would be the best depositary, being more acquainted with foreign affairs. Mr. Butler of South Carolina: He was for vesting the power in the President. Mr. Madison and Mr. Gerry moved to insert "declare," striking out "make." Mr. Gerry never expected to hear in a republic a motion to empower the executive alone to declare war. On the motion to insert "declare" instead of "make" it was agreed to. Mr. Pinckney's motion to strike out the whole clause was disagreed to without call of states.

LABOR

Q.—What did American Federation of Labor President William Green have to say about 1936 unemployment?

A.—"The fact that we lost ground in a number of industries in January, following as it does the loss of over 1,000,000 possible jobs in the last half of 1935, augurs ill for the future."

Q.—Does the WPA pay union wages for skilled labor?

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, The Tribune.

IN CIVILIZED KENTUCKY.

Chicago, Aug. 14.—Thousands of people flocked to the recent hanging in Owensboro, Ky. Some came the night before, others came in the early morning, but no matter when they came they all came laughing, cheering, making a gala occasion; in fact, a holiday of this hanging. After the hanging the crowd stormed the scaffold, took off the hanged man's mask and ripped it to shreds in order that they might have a little memento.

The sherif, the officer of the law, personally staged this Roman holiday. The sherif staged a great free show with a man's death as the finale.

And these people call themselves civilized! I am proud of the United States, its high civilization and its justice, but when people act like savages, wolves, waiting for the kill, I am ashamed to call myself a citizen of the same country as they, ashamed to say this great country has such people in authority, such as a sherif, be it man or woman, who thinks so little of a human being at the moment of death.

As for the prisoner, he was found guilty and condemned to die, but not in such a manner. By giving his life he paid for his crime, but he also gave a free show to the savages of Owensboro.

Roland Kelly.

NOT WPA MEN.

Chicago, Aug. 13. — My attention has been called to an article in the Voice of the People of Aug. 12, signed by Mr. Donald Knowles, under the caption, "At the Concert."

In this letter the Works Progress administration is mentioned as having furnished "red shirted workers." For the information of Mr. Knowles and other readers, may I advise that the Works Progress administration does not furnish any guards for duty at the band concerts in Grant park.

May I state that to my personal observation the tremendous audiences present at this particular concert, numbering possibly 100,000 persons, were apparently well handled by the park district employés, and merited appreciation by thoughtful observers. H. K. Seltzer,

HATS OFF!

Kenosha, Wis., Aug. 14.—Since most "gentlemen" seem to have forgotten it still is customary to remove one's hat when the American flag passes by, why not conduct a campaign to revive this act of courtesy?

With the land overrun with everything that has been driven out of other countries, it seems to me that this would be an excellent undertaking for your paper to promote, and certainly most timely.

Dolores M. Van Landuyt.

SPORTSMANSHIP.

Chicago, Aug. 14.—Your correspondent in this morning's paper who wrote of the commercializing of baseball and its relative merits as a sport was no doubt referring to Manager Grimm's very commendable decision in allowing Pitcher Dean to remain in the game after his unsportsmanlike display of temper.

In my opinion, Grimm's action was a tribute to himself and teammates, showing sportsmanship and meriting the esteem in which the Chicago teams are held by the thousands of fans who patronize them daily, both through attendance and via the radio.

Through his decision he jeopardized his own chances of winning, but by his sportsmanship he won the acclaim and admiration of every true lover of clean sports. Charles McGinnis.

AND THE SILVER MINES, TOO.

Victor, Ia., Aug. 13. — Since the reprinting of the McCutcheon cartoons shows the Tammany farmers on a western tour—we last saw them on the Lincoln highway—would it not be possible to show their arrival at Teapot Dome?

Edward P. Cronin.

ONE A MINUTE.

Iowa City, Ia., Aug. 13.—And so the profile of P. T. Barnum, the showman, is to appear on the new silver half dollar. Excuse me, but that is not where it belongs. It belongs on the irredeemable boloney paper money. Spinifer.

Chicago, Aug. 4.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1.—Please tell me how juries are selected in Chicago.

I was born in Chicago, living in the same neighborhood for over 25 years and voting always, but I have never been called to serve on the jury.

2.—Where could I find out about this?

F. K.

1. The names are selected by lot from lists prepared by the jury commissioners.

2. You might try reporting your facts to the jury commissioners in the county building. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

PRIVATE GARBAGE SERVICE.

Chicago, Aug. 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am a leaseholder in a six flat building. The garbage collector insists that I pay him 25 cents each week, or $13 a year, for emptying my garbage can.

Is his demand legal and justifiable?

F. R. M.

ISLAND 'BATTLE' TONIGHT TO OPEN LAKES CARNIVAL

Naval Reserves to Storm Marine Stronghold.

Naval reserves will "attack" Northerly island tonight at the opening in Burnham park lagoon of the Carnival of the Lakes, sponsored by the Chicago Park district. The carnival will continue nightly through next Sunday, but the sham battle, in which marine reserves will defend the island, will be held only tonight. There will be no admission charges.

Three naval reserve divisions will attempt to transport guns and men through the lagoon channel and land them on the west side of Northerly Island. Marines of the Ninth battalion, fleet marine corps reserves, will send out cutters to meet the marines under the protection of an artillery barrage. The victorious side will raise its colors after a hand to hand engagement as the attackers try to land. Capt. Edward A. Evers will command the naval reserves and Maj. Chester Fordney will lead the marine reserves. During the battle bomb flares will be dropped by pursuit planes from the Great Lakes Naval Training station.

Races to Begin Program.

The "battle" will begin at 9:10 p. m., after a program starting at 7:30 p. m., which will include outboard motor boat races, aquaplaning and water skiing, exhibition diving, canoe stunting and community singing.

Also before the battle Dr. C. C. McWilliams will attempt to drive a speed boat at 50 miles an hour through a solid board wall, coast guard units will give life saving demonstrations, and replicas of the Monitor and Merrimac, famous civil war ironclads, will engage in a sham battle.

Queen to Receive Crown.

In the finale Miss Mary Dunbar, 4715 North Lincoln street, will arrive on a decorated float and accept the crown of "queen of the lakes" from Philip S. Graver, a park board commissioner. She will lead a procession of water floats around the lagoon as a large display of fireworks closes the night's events.

Officials of the park district estimate that 200,000 persons will be able to view the program from the three miles of newly landscaped shore line surrounding the lagoon and Northerly Island.

FALL FATAL TO GIRL, 22.

NAVY OPENS BIDS FOR SUBMARINES AND DESTROYERS

Start 1937 Program This Week.

Washington, Aug. 16.—(AP)—The navy will inaugurate its 1937 warship construction program Wednesday when Admiral William H. Standley, acting secretary, opens bids and estimates for 12 new destroyers and six submarines.

The 18 new ships, to replace obsolete destroyers and submarines now in service, were authorized and appropriated for by congress to bring the navy's fighting strength up to Washington and London naval treaty limitations.

Standley will open bids for the construction of six destroyers and three submarines by private shipyards, and estimates submitted by navy yards on construction of a similar number of each category. The law provides for a division of new construction between navy and private yards.

Battleship Replacement Arranged.

On the basis of previous construction the 1,500 ton destroyers are estimated to cost approximately $4,000,000, and the 1,350 ton submarines about $2,500,000.

In appropriating $168,500,000 for construction of new warships, congress also authorized the replacement of two of the navy's old battleships "to be undertaken only in the event that the President determines as a fact that capital ship replacement construction is commenced by any other signatory" to the London and Washington naval pacts.

Britain Plans Construction.

Great Britain has announced it will lay down the keels for two new battleships immediately after the treaties expire on January 1, and Admiral Standley has predicted that the United States will soon start work on two new ships to match the British.

Official notification of the British action is expected to be made to the state department in the immediate future.

The United States now has 79 warships under construction, including three aircraft carriers, two heavy cruisers, nine light cruisers, 12 submarines, 11 destroyers [1,850 ton], and 40 destroyers [1,500 tons].

TROOPS CLASH WEDNESDAY IN 'STATE BATTLE'

BY WILLIAM O'NEIL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Camp Custer, Mich., Aug. 16.—Special.]—A battle of the states, with the 33d division National Guardsmen opposing guardsmen of the 32d from Michigan and Wisconsin, will be the feature of the final week of field maneuvers for Sixth corps troops.

The two divisions will clash on the government reservation here Wednesday, following a march from their present bivouacs 60 miles west of here.

Most of the troops rested in their field bivouacs today after the strenuous activities involved in a two day attempt to resist the attacking Red forces. A final decision by the umpires showed that the Reds turned the Blue left, or northern, flank yesterday with the mechanized cavalry, while Red infantrymen penetrated deep into the southern front held by the 33d division.

The 122d and 124th field artillery regiments of the 33d and the 106th cavalry, including the famous Black Horse troop from Chicago, began the march from their field headquarters to Camp Custer this morning. It probably will take the horse drawn guns and the cavalry three days to make the march.

The rest of the 33d will be moved here tomorrow by trucks, while the 32d takes the offensive north of Dunningville and attempts to drive back the Red infantry forces.

Original plans called for the mechanized cavalry to harass the moving 33d convoys, but this part of the program was called off today when it was decided that the tanks would offer too great a hazard to civilian motorists. The iron horsemen will remain in their camp at Selkirk lake until Thursday morning, when they will come here to demonstrate a mechanized attack for all of the troops participating in the maneuvers. Immediately after the demonstration the mechanized outfit will begin its march to Fort Knox, Ky., its home base.

The troops will be given Thursday afternoon off and will begin their packing Friday. It is expected all of the National Guardsmen will be on their way home by noon Saturday.

A patient was flipped through the back door of an army ambulance near Kalamazoo last night, but the unidentified soldier suffered only a wrenched back. The ambulance driver went on without knowing he had lost his passenger.

Stomach trouble, heat exhaustion, and what one of the officers termed "lack of intestinal fortitude" were the major causes of a sick list of 350. Those on the list were evacuated to the hospital here and are being given medical attention.

THIRD WOMAN IN FOUR MONTHS SLAIN IN HOTEL

was locked and the husband's knocking elicited no response. Trammell pulled himself up and peered over the transom. He saw the body of his wife in bed, half concealed by a blood-stained sheet and pillow.

He ran to the lobby on the second floor and notified the clerk, John W. Bon. Bon hurried up the fire escape at the rear of the building, opened the window screen of the Trammell room and entered. He let Trammell in through the door. Then the police were summoned.

Little Disorder Apparent.

The room presented no evidence of a struggle. All Mrs. Trammell's clothing was in order in a closet. On a chair in one corner of the room, however, lay her purse emptied of its contents, which were strewn on the floor. Trammell said the purse should have contained a small amount of money.

The killer had folded his victim's arms over her body, then twisted the sheets across her, and dropped a pillow on top. The woman's head was turned toward the door, away from the room's two windows, which face an alley.

It is through one of these windows that the killer probably entered the room, said Lieut. Archie Kane of the detective bureau. The southernmost window was open and the other was closed against a ventilator screen.

Accessible from "L" Structure.

A narrow fire escape landing gives access to the screened window and can be reached from the other. It is possible, Lieut. Kane explained, to jump on to the fire escape from the tracks of the Congress street stub of the elevated lines. The "L" structure stands in the alley about a yard from the building.

The fire escape can also be reached in another way. A rear stairway, whose door into the alley is seldom locked, according to Lieut. Kane, leads to the second floor. A fire exit window is only a few feet from the head of the stairs. This can not be seen from the lobby.

Prowler Routed a Week Before.

Lieut. Kane learned that lower section of the fire escape, which operates as a cantilever, could not be pulled down into the alley. After William Schumacher, 67 years old, who occupies a room on the second floor, frightened away a colored prowler a week ago yesterday, a strong wire was fastened to the lower section to keep it in place. This wire was found to be unbroken.

Schumacher furnished one of the two clews the police had last night. He described the man he surprised attempting to climb in his window, and gave to Sergt. John Fleming a small notebook the thief dropped in his flight.

The book contained a laundry ticket and several notes on horse racing in a poor script. Sergt. Fleming was of the opinion that this might lead to the solution of the murder.

Finger Prints on Bed.

The second clew was a set of bloody finger prints on the bed. Examination proved they were not Trammell's and apparently they belonged to the killer.

An inquest into the murder will be opened this morning at 9 o'clock at the O'Regan undertaking rooms, 425 Plymouth court, whither the body was taken.

Two hotel employes besides Bon were questioned at the detective bureau, but could shed no light on the murder, and they convinced police they had no connection with it. They are Arthur Pinckney, 31 years old, colored, bell hop and elevator operator, and Carl Eliason, night clerk.

Bon said he had last seen Mrs. Trammell at 6 p. m. Saturday, when she entered the hotel and he gave her the room key. There were no calls from her room during the night, according to Eliason.

Girl Reports Room Invaded.

The Central police were investigating another reported invasion of a hotel room last night after Miss Frances Veiger, 25 years old, declared a colored man entered her room on the third floor of the Lorraine hotel, 411 South Wabash avenue, early last Thursday morning. She fled in terror, reporting the incident to the hotel management, she said. Police learned that the hotel manager found a crowbar on the woman's bed, and were seeking to question him about this evidence.

It was the Lorraine hotel where Mrs. Rose London, wife of a San Diego, Cal., merchant, was slugged and critically injured and robbed as she slept in her room last Oct. 27. Her assailant never was captured.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Black Record

GIRL VANISHES; ESCORT IS HELD IN MYSTERY

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—Harold Linderman, 36 years old, of this city, was held by the sheriff of Racine county tonight pending further investigation of his story that Mary Gauldke, not yet 16, had drowned while swimming with him in Wind lake late yesterday. He said both he and she dived from a row boat about 1,500 feet from shore and that he never saw her again.

Linderman is a brakeman for the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad. The girl was adopted when 11 years old by Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Bross of Milwaukee. Her 16th birthday was to be on Oct. 31. During her school vacations the girl worked part time at a barbecue stand. Linderman is said to have told one story that the girl was his wife, another that they were to be married next month.

In the girl's room were found notes that led the Milwaukee police to investigate a theory that she might have planned to run away and made use of the appearance of drowning. One letter from an Iowa young man advised her that in making a runaway trip, it was better to avoid highways and police. A note in her writing contained a list of things a girl might use for a trip.

Gun Fire Wounds 11 Men Standing at Tavern Door

Welch, W. Va., Aug. 16.—(AP)—A burst of shots, fired by unidentified persons, wounded eleven colored men standing in the entrance of a beer tavern at Yukon, a mining town, today. Witnesses said the shots came from an automobile which sped away. State Police Sergeant N. T. Sites said:

"All we know is that eleven were shot.

"If we had any idea of a motive, we'd have a starting place.

"It looks like the work of a submachine gun, but fast handling of a revolver could have done the job."

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

News notes: Dr. Lee DeForest, radio pioneer, is to come from California to help WWJ, Detroit, celebrate its sixteenth anniversary next Thursday. The station took the air on Aug. 20 in 1920 and claims to be radio's oldest station—older than KDKA, Pittsburgh, which is usually regarded as the first broadcasting point. . . . Arch Oboler, Chicago author of "Lights Out" has been commissioned by L. H. Titterton, NBC dramatic chief, to write a special Thanksgiving drama to air over the network come Turkey day. . . . Clara, Lu 'n' Em are to have a back fence well decorated with sweet corn, hollyhocks, dahlias, and phlox among the exhibits of the forthcoming international horticultural exhibit at the stockyards Sept. 12 to 20. . . . Floyd Gibbons proposes to give an eyewitness account of hostilities from Madrid on the Magic Key broadcast at 1 p. m. next Sunday.

Lee Hassel of the WLS Barn Dance trio, Verne, Lee, and Mary, is to become the bride of Jean Donovan, pianist on the Chicago Amateur hour aired over WENR Sunday afternoons. . . . Kate Smith has decided to put on her opening show in her forthcoming CBS series from the west coast on Sept. 17, it's reported. . . . Edward Davies, NBC baritone, is off for a north woods vacation.

Doris Wester, rhythm singer who got her start on Maj. Bowes' hour, got her second break the other day. After winning the Bowes contest she was given a job in the Rainbow room atop Radio City in New York. Followed then a long period of illness. The other day she made a screen test for Warner Brothers. It was a success and now she has a contract and is on her way west.

Talbot Mundy is busy making ready a series of exciting episodes for the Jack Armstrong show which is to return to the air—this time to NBC—on Aug. 31. Mundy, British born traveler, is well qualified for his task. He has hunted tigers in India, fought savages in Africa, chased gangsters in New York, and battled alongside King Feisal in Palestine. Jack Armstrong is to travel, in fancy, this fall to the far east.

The tire concern now sponsoring Margaret Speaks will bring Tenor Richard Crooks back to the air this fall on Monday evenings over NBC. Last year Nelson Eddy was used on this series but he is to be the headliner of a new Sunday evening show on CBS under another patron.

All major broadcasting systems of the world are planning to coöperate on Sunday, Sept. 20, in presenting a single program of American folk music. Other programs are to follow through which will be broadcast the tango carnival of Buenos Aires, native music from the Dutch Congo, and the harvest festival from the palace of the sultan of Djokja from the East Indies.

FULLER PLANE HELD BACK BY BAD WEATHER

Bad weather yesterday delayed the plane carrying the body of Dr. Leslie Elmer Fuller from Aklavik, Canadian Northwest Territory, to Edmonton, Alta., and the cortège was not expected to reach the latter city until this morning. Dr. Fuller, a professor at Garrett Biblical institute and Northwestern university, was drowned on Aug. 8 while on a canoe trip in northwest Canada with four young men. His widow, Mrs. Mabel B. BY ANNA NANGLE.

What with foreign correspondents labeling Spain a "tinder box" and telling tales of dictators sassing diplomats, the horrors of wholesale warfare as practiced in the last war [a mere game of tiddledwinks as compared to our next, so they say] may give you, as it did me, an uncomfortable feeling when you see them vividly depicted in "The Road to Glory."

Skilful photography and excellent work by the men in the cast serve to give the film a strength and bitter reality the lengthy, complicated plot fails to provide. In contrast the romantic interest seems entirely irrelevant and calculated, although such sugar-coating is unquestionably necessary for box office reasons.

Hard bitten, cynical Capt. La Roche lives on cognac and aspirin while doing a tremendously but bloody job as head of one of France's finest regiments—the 39th. The film opens at his parting with Monique, a nurse whom he loves and who, in return, gives him affection and appreciation. He's headed back to the front after a brief respite while his ranks, cut in half by losses, are augmented by replacements. In the new group is young Lieut. Denet, who has had an intriguing but unsatisfactory meeting with Monique, when he played Chopin and atttempted to make love to her when both took shelter in a cellar during an air raid. His new superior strikes him as a tough customer, but after serving with him under fire, he agrees with his men—"the finest officer in the entire army."

Denet's second encounter with Monique proves more successful. The girl falls in love with him, but fails to tell him that she is more or less obligated to his superior officer, until a later and much more difficult moment.

Undoubtedly such things have happened in wars, but after driving his men in terrific battle, seeing them maimed and killed, watching a comrade take a fresh batch of troops into the position he formerly occupied, which is immediately blown to bits, losing his girl to another man—it seemed just too much when the captain's garrulous, brave, but awfully unhandy father appeared as one of the men under his command, talking of the fighting days of his youth, and stubbornly determined to fight for France. La Roche's efforts to send him back to safety are frustrated by Sergt. Bouffiou, delightfully portrayed by Gregory Ratoff, who provides the rare comic touches with an expert handling of his rôle. The captain's difficulties proceed throughout the film, to a pointed but frightfully melodramatic end.

Warner Baxter is a convincing La Roche, weary-eyed and stern, and Fredric March is an excellent foil as the softer, more human subordinate. Lionel Barrymore, with a skilful makeup, manages to be surprisingly old and quavery as Papa La Roche. June Lang, making her initial appearance on the screen, is very pretty, but seemed to me badly miscast.

The war scenes are so grimly realistic as to make parts of the story seem superfluous, and I think a good bit of slashing would have produced a more effective film.

There are many memorable shots, the most gruesome of which shows sickened men watching the agonies of a wounded comrade, caught in a veritable rack of barbed wire. After numerous futile attempts at rescue, one is deeply grateful when the brusque captain quietly draws his pistol and mercifully ends the victim's torment.

HOW Wagner himself made a mistake in transcribing a note of music which since has been placed in accordance with his mistake and not with his intent has been run down by a progressive young international music critic, now in Europe attending the various festivals. He writes from Bayreuth that he has spent four days running down one note in "Tristan."

Dispute—
Gossip—
Query—
Explanation.

"What can one note mean out of 500,000?" he writes. "Music lovers don't generally know that there are numerous mistakes in printed scores. They crept in when they were copied and Wagner, not liking to rea proofs any more than most people, didn't discover them. Some of them were played here for years until Toscanini came in 1930. He heard the mistakes with his keen ear and said, 'They must be changed.'

"One note, a G flat in 'Tristan,' he would not change. Now the manuscripts, both the first draft and the final, say G natural for the viola and bassoons. Critics, pointing to the manuscript, demanded that he follow Wagner's instructions. He would not, and I have just found out that Wagner himself made a mistake. He noticed it afterwards and wrote from Paris to his publishers, Breitkopf and Haertal, in Leipsig, ordering them to make the change. A copy of his note I have found in the archives at Haus Wahnfried. Now to go to Leipzig on my way to the Olympic games opening, and to discover the original in their archives is all that remains to clear up a long disputed fact."

A LETTER from London says that gossip in England is that King Edward is being urged to marry the Prussian princess Cæcelia, granddaughter of the last kaiser. An enclosed clipping from the court circular prints news of her visit with Queen Mary.

"I have just come from Berlin and the Germans think it will be a match," the letter reads. "They are eager for it, as it will help cement friendly relations between Germany and England."

PERHAPS you have heard about the papa duck and the mama duck and little baby duck who were swimming at the water's edge when the baby duck spotted a hunter with his gun leveled at them.

"O, please don't shoot and kill all five of us, dear hunter," he cried.

Why did he say all five of us, instead of all three of us? . . . Because he was too young to count correctly.

A. McNally III. Is Engaged to Eastern Girl

Bride-to-Be Descended from Colonial Ancestors.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE engagement of Miss Margaret Clark-MacMillin of Greenwich, Conn., to Andrew McNally III., son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew McNally of 1041 Judson avenue, Evanston, was announced yesterday by the young woman's mother, Mrs. Marion MacMillin, at Alexandria Bay, N. Y., where she is visiting.

Miss Clark-MacMillin is a daughter of the late Edward B. Clark, youngest son of the late Gen. Emmons Clark of New York City, a veteran of the civil war who was descended from distinguished colonial ancestors. Her father died when she was an infant, and her mother was married in 1908 to Marion H. MacMillin of New York. Subsequently Mr. McNally's fiancée added her stepfather's name to her own. Mr. MacMillin died in 1926.

Miss Clark-MacMillin attended the Spence school in New York and is now doing social service work in that city. Mr. McNally attended the Hill school and is a graduate of Yale university. He is now associated with the New York office of the publishing house headed by his father. His sister, Miss Eleanor McNally, made her debut here in 1931.

Art Lovers Invited to Van Gogh Preview.

Not many of the officials of the Art Institute will be in Chicago for the special viewing that will open the great exhibition of paintings and drawings by Vincent van Gogh on Tuesday afternoon, Aug. 25, but that will in no way affect the magnitude of the crowd that undoubtedly will accept the invitations which went into the mail last Friday. Interest in the exhibit is tremendous, and a record attendance is expected during the showing, which will be open to the public from Aug. 26 to Sept. 23, inclusive.

Potter Palmer, president, is not expected to return from his summer home at Bar Harbor, Me., until Oct. 1, so neither he nor his gracious wife will be among those who will greet the members and guests at the opening preview. Robert Allerton, a vice president, may be there, for he is summering in Monticello, Ill., and comes to the city occasionally; Percy B. Eckhart, another vice president, is spending the summer with his family at Lake Placid in the Adirondacks and it is not likely that he will be back at home by the 25th. Charles H. Worcester, another vice president, and his wife left last night for a vacation in northern Michigan, but they hope to be back in Chicago in time for the opening.

Chauncey McCormick and Logans to Attend.

Chauncey McCormick, the other vice president, definitly is going to be in Chicago and will be at the institute the afternoon of the preview. As chairman of the committee that arranged the marvelous Century of Progress exhibit at the institute, Mr. McCormick did work that never will be forgotten in the art history of Chicago, and although now he is spending practically every moment of every day in promoting Gov. Landon's cause he will take time away from his political activities on the 25th to put in an appearance at the institute.

Frank G. Logan, honorary president, will be in Chicago then, too, and he and his wife, who is just completing a book entitled "Sanity in Art" will be at the opening. Mr. and Mrs. Logan are planning to go east in September for visits with their son, Spencer H. Logan, and his family, who live in Mamaroneck.

Music Festival Soloist Cheered at Park Concert

BY EDWARD BARRY.

It was a big week-end for Helen Burt of Wheaton. Saturday morning she journeyed to the Drake hotel to compete in the women's finals of the seventh Chicagoland Music Festival contests. Her attractive soprano voice won her first place—and with it the honor of appearing that very evening in Soldiers' field on the program of the gigantic festival concert, which drew an audience of more than 80,000.

Last night this comely young woman graced the Grant park band shell, singing three solos with the Thaviu band before a concourse of people which, if it did not compare in size with Saturday's still ran into a respectable number of thousands.

To say that Miss Burt sang three solos is not strictly accurate. She sang three times, but repeated her second song, the Brahms Lullaby, when public clamor made it plain that her audience was not going to let her go so easily. If the operatic excerpt with which the group opened proved her agility and sureness as a coloratura, the Brahms offered what is, in a way, a severer test. She had to make this fragile song effective in a huge open air arena, and succeeded in doing so by bringing to the performance a lyric fervency which turned the delicacy of the music into an advantage rather than a handicap.

Mr. Thaviu's program ran almost entirely to brilliant works—the "Maritana" overture of Wallace, Lacome's "La Feria," the "Marche Slave" of Tschaikowsky, and others of similar type. For lyric relief there was an arrangement of the Drigo Serenade.

From time to time this column has stressed the informality of the Grant park concerts by detailing the various occupations—smoking, knitting, sleeping, etc.—which go on along the fringes of the audience area. The catalog must again be revised to make room for the boy and girl who last night experimented with the possibility of ballroom dancing to band accompaniment on the encircling lawn. They had made an unfortunate choice of number—the "Toreador" song from "Carmen."

College Shops Packed with Latest Styles

BY RHEA SEEGER.

The college shops are open, ready for the rush of puzzled freshmen and their more or less harried parents. College shops are showing sartorial equipment for the first year of higher education.

In some of the stores the college shops are wide open and bustling sections separated from the rest of the plunder are presided over by experienced upper classmen with knowledge of what the entering freshmen should pack in the college bound luggage.

Other shops have college fashions throughout the entire store, with the same kind of expert advice ready on each floor. Anyway you try this college shopping, you can't go wrong.

Brand new loot—dozens of sweaters, skimpy, slim skirts, the right kind of coats, gay and giddy plaid wool campus dresses, fitted princess dresses of velveteen for tea dances and dates, and the necessary underlayers are piled about to the complete mystification of the parents, but simple as anything to the expert counselors and the girls themselves.

Staffed by college girls who know that first impressions count for or against your four year reputation, college girls from the very school you are planning to storm, are ready to help. Everything has been planned so there will be no mistakes. You can cheerfully spend little or a lot and still have the best assortment of clothes, extras, and even luxuries.

With college girls setting their own fashions, it's probably the first big thrill of a lifetime to shop with practically entire shops and stores turned over to campus clothes and fashions.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Three new beauty charmers in town—a bath oil, a dusting powder, and a special creamy lotion for the sensitive skinned woman to use instead of soap. They're perfumed with a fragrance we've adored ever since we met up with it in essence form a long time ago. It's ultrasuave.

The special cleansing lotion is creamy both in color and texture, and only a bit is needed to cleanse and soften in a single operation. Women whose skins rebel against even the mildest soaps will find this an answer to prayer. The skin is left smooth and petal-like, with no oiliness.

The bath oil is concentrated, and only a few drops transform the prosaic tub into a luxurious rite. The haunting scent clings to the water, the room, and the person, and if you want to feel like a pampered darling, it's a formula we recommend. The dusting powder in matching fragrance tops it all off to perfection, and gives the final touch of luxury to the bath.

This scent is a rich, opulent one, and if you like deep undertones in your perfume choice, you'll find them here. It's Russian in character, faintly reminiscent of the glamor and luxury of the imperial court with its blend of beauty and intrigue.

This trio of products are not inexpensive, but as luxuries they are completely soul-satisfying. A perfect gift or just the treat for yourself.

SYNOPSIS.

Shortly after the world war Roger Mallard, handsome young Englishman, is embittered by the loss of hearing in one ear from a war injury. Mal has been raised by his godfather, William Grimwold, an actor. Grimmy persuades Mal to attend a New Year's eve party, where he meets lovely young Pamella Wyeth, though he forgets her on meeting Zelda Manners. A month later Mal marries Zelda. The marriage ends disastrously. In a rage at his failure to make a living on the stage, Zelda flings a mirror at Mal and unknowingly destroys the hearing of his other ear. Fourteen years later Mal, under Grimmy's tutelage, has become a great success in pictures, hiding his affliction from his public. Zelda has refused him a divorce. Pamella Wyeth has a home in Pasadena. David Barkley, son of an old friend, boards with her. At the premiere of Mal's latest film David meets Ellen Grest and invites her to a New Year's eve party at the hotel where Mallard lives, and asks Pamella along as chaperon. Mal is mourning the sudden death of Grimmy. David, as a joke on Ellen, has a boy page her with a message that Roger Mallard wants to meet her. Mal, skilful at lip reading, is sitting at the next table. Attracted by Pamella, Mal introduces himself and asks to join their party. David and Ellen desert Pamella. Mal takes her home. There Mal drops on her couch unconscious. Pamella thinks he has had too much to drink. She is unable to rouse him. In the morning David calls. He's been arrested because Mallard has disappeared, apparently kidnaped.

INSTALMENT XIX.

KIDNAPING SUSPECTED.

This was too much! She was sick and tired of David's more than tipsy jokes. Anyway, enough was enough. She would write the Barkleys that her paying guest had become impossible and that they must call their crown prince home.

A shower and a rather flustered process of dressing failed to calm her. She had now put off as long as possible the evil moment when she must go down to make sure that her living room was empty. The way from her room to the head of the stairs seemed a perilous journey. She stood a moment gathering her courage. Then, setting her lips firmly, she made an effort at a swift descent of her stairway which charged into a cautious tiptoeing before she reached the bottom. She moved very quietly toward the living room door and was nonplused to see the figure of a man on her couch still lying motionless beneath her blankets. A beam of sunlight danced gayly across his face.

Pam's first thought now was to find help in a situation getting beyond her. She ran pell-mell back to the phone connection in the upstairs study and put in a call for her friend, Dr. Nicholas Ware.

Since it was a holiday, and since Dr. Ware was one of the busiest physicians in the town, she was in a panic for fear she couldn't find him. And it was only by the greatest good luck that she finally succeeded just as he was leaving luncheon, at the home of a friend, to go to the big New Year's football game in the Rose Bowl.

He was very indignant to be thus interrupted and snapped out a

"Haven't you read the—extras?—heard the radio? The fellow's been honored."

"Who?" into the phone that would have scared off most interfering patients.

"It's Pamella, Nick——"

"I would have thought that you, of all people, had sense enough to let me alone on New Year's day and when I'm going to the ball game at that."

"Yes, Nick, I'm terribly sorry to bother you, but I'm in trouble. Please come quickly."

"What kind of trouble?"

"I can't tell you over the phone. Just come."

Dr. Ware changed his tone with a, "All right! Don't worry. I'll come as soon as I can get through this trafic bedlam."

The minute Pamella heard the long awaited swish of wheels on her drive, she dashed out. She met Dr. Ware, carrying his familiar black bag, as he came with deliberate step across the terrace.

"Pam, what in the world is it? All this melodrama——"

"Melodrama is the correct diagnosis! Nick, Roger Mallard is here—in there—in the living room. Don't ask me how he got here. It's too fantastic. The point is—"

"Roger Mallard? Are you crazy?" Dr. Ware, at first deprived of speech, now burst out. "Haven't you read the morning extras? Heard the radio? With all the hue and cry started? The fellow's been kidnaped."

"What nonsense!" Pam cried hotly. "I met him at the Excelsior last night. He brought me home. But the point is—the reason I've called you—what with New Year's celebration and so forth, he's passed completely out."

Dr. Ware's reply to this was a thumping, "My God!"

Pam sprang up.

"Come in at once and see him."

Dr. Ware stopped her.

"Wait a minute! Let me think. This is serious. A fine mess, if ever there was one! You're sure it's Mallard?"

"Absolutely." It's the only thing he's left me to be sure of, Pam was thinking.

"Pam—listen. It's true—what I told you. The hotel where he lives—the world—most importantly of all, the police believe him kidnaped. It seems he's a man of most regular and conservative habits. He's never out unduly late of nights. Never roams about. He went to the Excelsior New Year's Eve show. The dining room captain—the waiters—a bellboy saw him. He was there for about two hours and then disappeared. His Japanese servant is pretty attached to him and when Mallard didn't turn up by morning, the fellow got scared. At first he thought of an accident. But what with the kidnaping threats Mallard is always receiving, and finding a piece of paper thrust under the bungalow door with some cryptic message about meetings and money, the man's fright blazed up in another direction and started the hue and cry. The hotel management, all a-jitter, at once called in the police. They're starting such a man hunt as hasn't been known since the——"

"Nick, how dreadful!"

Pam had listened to this growing whiter and whiter, even though her dazed brain could only take in vaguely its complications especially with regard to herself.

"O, Nick! What shall we do?"

"I don't know yet. It needs careful handling—for your sake. . . . Come on. Where is he?"

Pam went around and leaned for needed support against the back of the couch, while Dr. Ware put his bag on the table and started to examine his patient. This he did by rolling back stubbornly closed eyelids, feeling wrists, and listening so long through his stethoscope that Pam could hardly keep from screaming.

Finally he straightened up, put Mallard's limp hand back on the blanket, and turned to look for the first time at Pam.

"Girl, this is no drunken stupor. The man's had a serious collapse. Overwork—a shock—unbearable worry, any or all of them, must have played the devil with his heart. You're lucky he didn't do a real passing out on you during the night. Get some boiling water for my hypo."

Pam suffered now another sickening revulsion of feeling. At first a sort of wild, guilty joy shook her that her first impressions of this man were correct. That he was all—perhaps more—than she'd thought him.

She hurried over to the head of the couch. She put out a hand, visibly trembling, and with a gesture as if pleading for forgiveness, began to stroke back Mallard's damp hair.

"Nick," she could scarcely keep her voice steady, "do you think he's going to die because I left him like this all night without doing anything for him, without——"

"O, no! Don't be foolish. It was probably good for him—the complete rest, with no fussing. . . . Don't go making yourself sick by heaping blame. Your diagnosis, for a woman with little experience with real topers, isn't to be wondered at. He'll come out of this now. But he can't be moved," said the doctor. "Run along and get a bed fixed. Why not put him in your father's room there on the west? I'll carry him up—although he'll be an armful. . . . But first, I'd better phone. . . . See here, Pam. Of course you know this may be deuced awkward for you? These fellows are condemned to live in glass houses as a price they pay for their fame and fortune. Mallard being such a recluse—the world is going to be mighty interested in the true story of his kidnaping."

"I suppose so. But I don't care what happens to me so long as he—if he should die, I'd feel as if I'd killed him!"

A. McNally III. Is Engaged to Eastern Girl

N. Y., and their son-in-law, Charles A. Munroe, who lives in Greenwich, Conn.

The director of the institute, Robert B. Harshe, and Mrs. Harshe, will not return from a summer in England until Sept. 4, but their places at the preview will be taken by the assistant director, Charles Fabens Kelley, and Mrs. Kelley, and the associate curator of painting, Daniel Catton Rich, and Mrs. Rich. Young Mr. Rich is handling the details of the hanging of the exhibition, so he is very busy now, for workmen already have begun preparing the galleries for the colorful paintings and drawings.

Rene Weiller, the French consul general, and John Vennema, the consul of the Netherlands, have been invited to the preview, for Van Gogh's tragic life was lived in Holland and France.

Walter S. Brewster, a trustee of the institute, and Mrs. Brewster, who are among Chicago's best known private collectors and among the institute's stanch friends, will not be in Chicago on the 25th, for they have left for a motor trip through New England, from which they will not return until Sept. 1.

Lucy Rumsey to Bow at Lake Geneva Tea.

The summer colony at Lake Geneva expected to greet only one debutante, Miss Theodora Finney, at a formal presentation party this summer, but now to its pleasure the colony hears that it is to have the pleasure of meeting two charming young women, for Miss Lucy Rumsey is to make her bow jointly with the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William P. Finney. Miss Rumsey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace D. Rumsey of Winnetka, is a distant connection of Miss Finney's, for the former's grandfather and the latter's great-grandfather were cousins.

Dr. and Mrs. Finney will give a tea Sept. 5 at their Lake Geneva home, the Knoll, for the young girls. Miss Finney is a student at Vassar, where she will return in the fall. Miss Rumsey studied last year at Marot Junior college at Thompson, Conn., and has not decided yet where she will continue her studies this fall. She returned Saturday with Mrs. George B. Massey and Miss Phoebe Massey, another debutante of the coming season, from Santa Barbara, where they had been for the fiesta.

Miss Rumsey's brothers, David and Don Rumsey, will be coming home for their sister's debut. The former is in business in Shreveport, La., and Don has been in Toledo, O., since his graduation from Williams in June.

Baggaley Family Sails Tomorrow to Circle Globe.

The flying trip around the world that the W. Blair Baggaleys and their daughter, Miss Barbara Baggaley, are taking promises to be packed with interest. They are sailing tomorrow from San Francisco for Australia, where they will spend a week or more while Mr. Baggaley attends to some business. From Australia the trio will fly to London over a route that has been arranged to permit an afternoon of sightseeing every day, since the family will be in the air only from early morning until mid-afternoon. It will take twelve days to reach London from Australia. They will sail home from England after about five days in London.

The L. Bernard Kilbournes, who also believe in traveling by air, arrived at home Saturday after a trip abroad. They crossed the Atlantic eastward on the Hindenburg, but returned in an ocean liner. They flew to Chicago from New York.

Phillip S. Dalton Jr. has left to spend two weeks cruising along the New England coast. He will visit his parents at Martha's Vineyard.

Richard S. Bull Family Goes Fishing in Wisconsin.

The Richard S. Bulls and their subdeb daughter, Miss Ellen Bull, have gone to Wisconsin on a fishing trip. They are near Lac du Flambeau.

Mrs. Edward L. Hasler has gone east for a week or two. Mrs. Hasler expects her niece, Miss Eleanor Coonley, to come from Great Barrington, Mass., for her usual summer visit in Lake Forest.

The Daggett Harveys, who are vacationing on a ranch in Wyoming, are expected home on Aug. 23.

Mr. and Mrs. John Drum had hoped to go to Northport Point, Mich., over the past week end to celebrate their first wedding anniversary in the little resort where they were married last Aug. 17, but they stayed at home instead and invited some of their friends to come in to help celebrate. Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Davis, Mrs. Drum's parents, are in Northport Point now. The former Isabel Davis' brother, Charles Jr., and his fiancée, Miss Elizabeth Blood, are planning a November wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Josiah McRoberts are leaving their home in Geneva today for a motor trip to Desbarats, where they will be the guests for two weeks of Mrs. McRoberts' niece, Mrs. Ernest H. Noyes.

H. B. Babsons and Daughter Sail for British Isles.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Babson and their daughter, Miss Betty Babson, sailed Saturday in the Empress of Britain for England and Scotland. They will return in the Queen Mary next month.

Among the many luncheons to be given for Miss Virginia Dawes during the few weeks that precede her wedding on Sept. 12 to Richard T. Cragg is one at which Miss Janet Maechtle will be hostess next Friday. Miss Maechtle, who lives in Evanston, is giving the party also to introduce to her friends Mrs. Everett Vinal Maechtle, the former Jean Lois Potter.

The Chicago and North Shore Vassar clubs have awarded a scholarship of $350 to Miss Elizabeth Burlingham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Burlingham of Tower road, Winnetka. Miss Burlingham was graduated from New Trier High school in June and will enter Vassar as a freshman this fall. She was president of her class in her junior year, and has been active in dramatics and music.

Robert J. Dunham is expected at home Aug. 23 from California, where he has been vacationing for the last three weeks with Mrs. Dunham. They have been occupying a house in Burlingame. Mrs. Dunham, who has been out there since June, is returning the middle of September.

BY MARY MEADE.

It is my firm conviction that the man who orders his steak well done doesn't know a good steak when he sees one. To my mind there should be a culinary ban on broiling steaks to the well done stage because so much of the flavor and juiciness which mark a really good steak are lost in the process.

A broiled steak should be puffy, juicy, with a well browned exterior and a pink interior. A well done steak loses puffiness, juice, and shrinks appreciably more than the mediumly well done piece of meat.

If rare beef appeals to you, so much the better—but please don't over-broil your steaks!

The time of broiling will vary with the cut and the thickness of the steak. A two inch steak probably will require 15 minutes to a side for broiling to the medium stage. Lamb chops an inch thick usually take about six minutes on each side. Lamb is usually never served as rare as beef, although it is desirable that the interior be pink.

The most commonly broiled cuts of meat are the tender cuts of beef—porterhouse, club, or sirloin steak—and lamb loin, rib or shoulder chops and steaks cut from the leg of lamb. It is also possible to broil ham and bacon and pork loin chops, although there are many cooks who believe that pork chops should never be broiled. Long, slow cooking seems to be best for pork and for veal, since it brings out the flavor better than the brief cooking at a high temperature used in broiling.

The steps in broiling after you have selected your steak, preferably at least an inch thick, are:

1. Preheat the broiler to about 500 degrees [except for pork cuts, which must be broiled slowly, at 325 degrees].
2. Place the broiling rack so that there will be three inches between the flame and the top of the meat [five inches for bacon, ham, pork chops].
3. Cook the meat without turning until the top is nicely browned. Season and turn over. Brown the other side and season.
4. Serve immediately on a hot platter. This is important, as to let the steak cool is to let it lose its puffiness.

If you haven't a broiling oven, steaks and chops may be pan-broiled in much the same manner. Preheat the skillet without adding any fat. Place the meat in the hot pan, brown on either side, and reduce the heat to finish cooking. Pour off as much fat as possible during the cooking period. Do not add water or cover the skillet, or your steak will be ruined by loss of flavor and tenderness.

Steaks broiled under a gas flame may be cooked with the broiler door open, but in an electric unit the door is usually left closed. If you have one of the convenient oven-proof platters you will find the serving of tender, juicy steaks made doubly easy. Broil the steak on one side using the broiling rack. Then season the cooked side and place it on the platter to broil the other side. The platter may be removed directly from oven to table. Tomatoes stuffed with cooked corn, and slices of cooked potato covered with cheese may be placed on the platter with the steak for the final broiling.

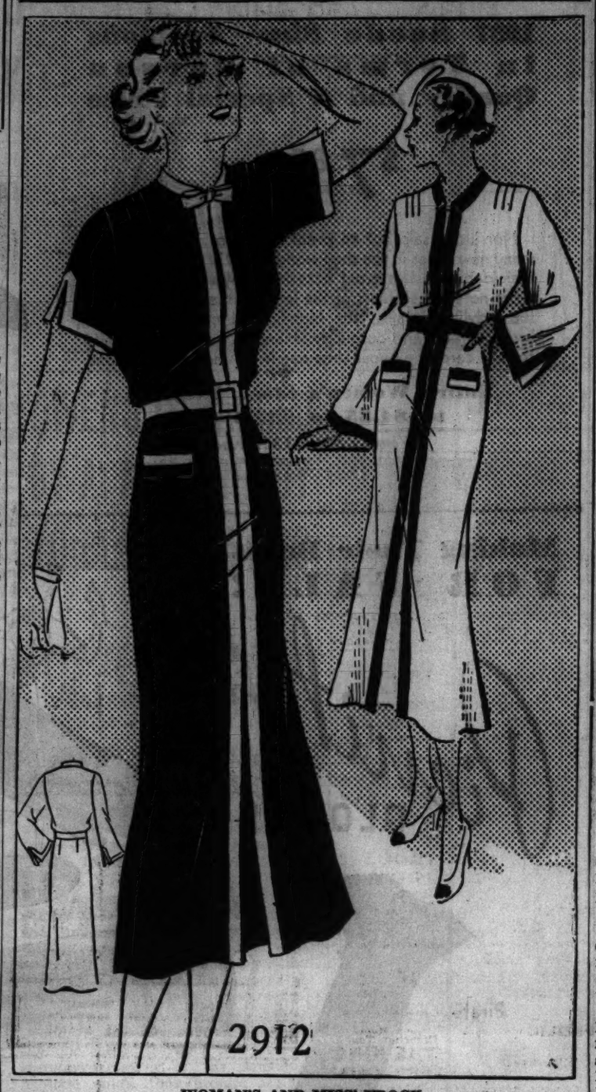
Frock for the Midseason



WOMAN'S AND MISS' FROCK.

The difficult midseason, during which fashion stipulates autumn modes and the thermometer demands lightweight clothing, is defeated by dark yet cool frocks such as the one illustrated today. Its trimly tailored lines adapt it to all types of daytime wear. Its perfect suitability to dark sheers makes it an important pattern for your early fall wardrobe. It keeps in the late summer tradition by employing light colored contrast in the trimming.

The original of this frock is created in navy sheer with the bands down the front, on the sleeves and pockets, and at the neckline in white grosgrain ribbon. Navy is not the only possible dark shade, however. Wine, dark green, black, and brown also will make up attractively.

This pattern serves also for a lovely late autumn frock to be worn on into winter. The only difference in styling is in the sleeves, which are long. Sheer wools are perfect for this version of the pattern, with dark grosgrain as contrast.

If you prefer, you might fashion this frock, with the short sleeves, of cottons in dark shades or rough weave printed linens. Rayon and wool novelty fabrics also will make up attractively in the version for fall.

Style No. 2912 is designed for sizes 14, 16, and 18 years, and 36, 38, and 40 inch bust measurement. Size 16 requires 2¼ yards of 39 inch material, with ⅝ yard of 35 inch contrasting.

Sally Foresees Rush for Invitations to Party at Cubs Game

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

It seems to me that THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE contained about the best news ever for boys and girls. I'll bet my boots that you'll all want to come to my next party, which takes place on Aug. 27, one week from next Thursday.

The Cubs have been playing such swell baseball that seats at Wrigley field are selling like hot cakes, so the child who wins an invitation to come with me to see the Chicago team play Philadelphia may consider it a great privilege. P. K. Wrigley knows how much you kids love baseball, so he has generously consented to my wish to have a second baseball party.

I'm going to take the usual number of 50 girls and 50 boys, and I'm sure there'll be a very heavy mail. As usual, I'm going to try to select the kids who'll have the very best time at the game, so if you're a real Cub fan and want to come you'd better write the very best letter you know how and tell me why you'd like to be in the party.

If you're to be a winner you must be sure to include your full name, address, and age, and your letter must reach me not a minute later than next Thursday morning. You must write it all by yourself and please don't ask for more than one invitation. These are the only requirements to make your letter eligible for selection, if you can convince me that you'd really appreciate seeing that game on Aug. 27.

If you expect to come, get to work on that letter and mail it to Sally Joy Brown, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago.

Stevenson Kin Proves Worth as Film Extra

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—"We ought to have some sort of a drinking song for this scene," Director Howard Hawks said to a group of co-workers on the set of the Edna Ferber logging story, "Come and Get it," at United Artists. In the scene Edward Arnold as the two-fisted old lumberman, Frances Farmer, who plays the feminine lead, and Walter Brennan, Swedish logging boss, sit at a gambling house table surrounded by champagne bottles.

"The song ought to be in Swedish dialect and be introduced by Brennan," the director said.

"Just a minute," said Walter Mayo, assistant director, "there's a guy here who knows all kinds of odd songs." Mayo went to a group of extras and bit players and returned with a quiet mannered man. Hawk asked, "Do you remember a song that goes something like this?" and hummed his recollection of a song.

"Yes," said the newcomer, and completed the song. Then he sang it in words. "That's the tune, all right," said Hawks, "but we're just where we started; we need a song in Swedish."

"Why, then it would be something like this," the young man said, and translated it into Swedish as the eyes of the director and the others in the group grew wide.

"Hey, just a minute, Mayo, where did you get that fellow? Who is he?" Hawks demanded when the bit player went back to his corner.

"Oh, him?" said Mayo. "That's Robert Louis Stevenson II., nephew of the famous author. He's one of the most useful guys around a movie set I've ever known and I always try to use him."

Stevenson is about 33 years old and has spent most of his more youthful years traveling to odd seaports as an able seaman. He's the son of R. L. Stevenson's younger stepbrother John. He was born seventeen years after his famous uncle wrote "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." He has been playing occasional jobs in movies for more than two years, none of them paying more than $25 a day.

Polly Rowles, 22 years old, Carnegie Tech campus queen, arrived in Hollywood today as Universal Studio's first investment in a "brains over beauty" exchange. Miss Rowles was brought to Hollywood in line with a new casting policy begun by the studio of getting college women into motion pictures. The actress is the daughter of a Pittsburgh steel executive.

Another Hollywood romance will be culminated within the next few weeks in the marriage of Marjorie Moore, screen dancer, to Jack Reynolds, an assistant in the United Artists executive offices. Miss Moore is the member of the chorus in Paramount's "The Big Broadcast of 1937."

Charles Guy Fulke Greville, seventh earl of Warwick, will be signed to a five year contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios tomorrow, studio officials admitted today. The earl, prominent on the English stage and screen, is in London at present. His name was once romantically linked with that of Sally Blane, actress.

Marion Talley was getting along fine with her daily sunbath in a walled porch at her Beverly Hills masseuse's when a nasty bee stung her just below the right knee. Miss Talley changed from sun treatment to ice bags for the stung portion then and there.

Miss Talley received a long distance call from her proud father, Charles M. Talley, in Kansas City when the latter, with fifty family friends, was treated to a special preview of the singer's first starring film in a Kansas City theater.

The showing was held at 10:30 a. m., and promptly at noon her father was on the phone congratulating Marion. The picture hasn't been publicly released yet, a special print having been airmailed to Kansas City for her father's pleasure.

Dorothy Lamour, New Orleans girl who recently came from Chicago to the movies, has been given her best rôle to date, the second lead in "College Holiday" in a cast which includes Jack Benny, Gracie Allen, George Burns, Mary Boland, Eleanore Whitney and Martha Raye at Paramount.

Louis Zara, author and former Chicago reporter, has been added to Twentieth Century-Fox's list of contract writers to do a new movie treatment of the musical stage success, "Sally, Irene, and Mary."

Culbertson's "Gold Book of Bidding and Play"

Beginning today Mr. Culbertson's latest work on contract, the "Gold Book of Bidding and Play," will be presented in this column in daily instalments.

CHAPTER 1—INSTALMENT 1.

The Bidding Process and Its Goals.

Card sense is usually spoken of as one of the mysterious minor talents, an innate knack of grasping easily and applying in practice the logic of playing situations. Cards do have an inner logic and form a bizarre world governed by their own inexorable laws. But I do not believe in an innate faculty called card sense. Certainly a man is not born with an invisible deck of cards in the convolutions of his brain. Card sense is largely an understanding of the spirit of cards, their remarkable structure, and the few underlying principles that make up contract bridge.

The road to the best final bid is strewn wit hbones and boners of millions of pasteboard soldiers. Their commanders-in-chief, the players, are to be sympathized with rather than condemned. The strategical possibilities of this fascinating intellectual game are practically unlimited. Simple enough for a grown up child, and yet deep enough for a demigod, it has this in common with the strategy of actual warfare [which it so strikingly resembles in many other particulars]: the side that makes the fewer blunders is victorious.

The blunders which in bridge may keep the players from the best final bid are his sins of commission and omission in bidding.

The Three Musketeers of Bidding.

Bidding is a complex process consisting of valuation, information and strategy. The object of bidding is to select the best final bid for the partnership hands. The final bid may be a premium at partner's or one's own bid or a penalty against the opponents' bid.

The three musketeers of bidding—valuation, information and strategy—are practically inseparable. Without precise information, valuation of hands is reduced to crude guess work, or at best must lean heavily on the crutches of vague mathematical "averages"; without strategy [and strategy includes psychology] bidding becomes a parade of wooden soldiers.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 heart	Pass	2 spades
Pass	3 hearts	Pass	7 spades
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

This hand teaches a double lesson. South made two frightful errors in the bidding. First, he should have realized that no trump was the safest final contract since if either his own spade suit or partner's advertised long heart suit came home, thirteen tricks would be a lay down. West was criminally stupid to double and thus warn south, and the latter was even more stupid in not accepting the warning, by going to seven no trump.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: What meaning is attached to a double raise of an opening two bid in a suit?

Answer: It means that responder has five trumps, or four trumps to the queen, without a singleton, and with no honor higher than a queen in his hand.

Parents Should Allow Children to Have Pals

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

A mother once wrote me: "My 17 year old boy and I are such pals. We go to all sorts of things together, and I can't tell you how happy that makes me. I even go along when he takes his girl to the movies or for a walk."

And I've received letters from proud fathers too, about the exclusive friendship that exists between them and their sons.

Of course love and friendship and companionship should exist between parents and children, but never to such a degree that it deprives the youngsters of friendship and companionship of children of their own age. The parents shouldn't try to monopolize a child's affections.

In the early years, home and mother and father will satisfy most of his real needs. But when the child makes his first tentative steps away from his home, he has started on an exploration beyond its boundaries, and these excursions into the world are necessary for his normal development.

I know all the things you are going to say. Yes, love and friendship and companionship can and should exist between parents and their children. A boy may love to go on a fishing trip with his father or on a walk through the woods with his mother. A young daughter may like to go to church with her father or put up jellies with her mother. A shared interest in the same hobby can be a real and important thing. They can and should be real friends, but again I say, not to the exclusion of other friendships with children of their own age.

Children can learn much from us, but they also learn much from their contemporaries. Anyone who has seen two boys together, working or "cutting up" in a way that may seem foolish or inconsequential to us, or two girls discussing clothes, or boys, or any of the other big things of life, realizes that we can possibly give our children just what they get from these young friendships and contacts.

Don't try to be too exclusively a pal. A friendly, loving, and understanding mother or father is a safer, more satisfactory and less demanding relationship.

New Coiffure Gives Lift to Fall Spirits

Pompadour Trend Noted in Autumn Styles.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

There has been much talk recently of the pompadour's return. A different pompadour from that sported by the Floradora girls, nevertheless a pompadour trend. The millinery trade, no doubt, is the strong influence behind the pompadour movement. So I'd suggest trying out the new hair-do to see just how you're going to fit under these new and different hat styles. And now is the time to be doing it, rather than waiting until you are ready for the hat purchase.

At millinery showings, in coöperation with the hairdress art, the pompadour effect was achieved by combing the hair up from the forehead and up on the sides into a backward swooping, long, flat rolled curl. The effect gained is that of the hair being part of the hat.

The Mary of Scotland hat and the Katharine Hepburn hair-do in the famous picture of that name are said to be wielding an influence. At times Hepburn's front hair arrangement is such that it appears that the hair curls were tacked into the inside brim of the hat. I have a feeling that we are in for a definite change in hair styles. It's about time, I think. We've clung to the short bob and the longish bob long enough, it would seem.

However, you can't tell about how women will take to a change from the sleek, neat, smart, undertrimmed head. For practical purposes, it seems the busy woman's salvation. And who among us does not qualify as busy woman?

But, as said in the beginning, while you are awaiting the post-vacation pocketbook recovery, you can give yourself a grand lift by getting a new hair style, and by starting in right now on skin recovery, so that there'll be a brand new face for the coiffure and a stunning new figure for the early fall frock.

Sweet Gum Leaf.

BY NANCY CABOT.

There still is a great number of old quilt patterns which have been overlooked in the demand for various well known blocks, or they have been relegated to attics by people who have had no interest in the beauty and romance of quilts, there to remain hidden until they rot. Thanks to the interest of Mrs. Y. G. McFarland of Champaign, Ill., we have uncovered one of the most popular of the old pieced quilts, which was a favorite over 150 years ago. "Sweet Gum Leaf" was one of the favorite leaf designs in the south and middle western states. As is customary with most leaf designs, the predominant coverlets are made of green and white, although the block creates a most effective coverlet made up of a combination of printed materials and white.

An imported Kin Kerry tweed gives character and individuality to the swagger coat at the right. Soft, fluffy fox fashions the short shawl collar. In brown, tan, or green plaid. One of many styles. Misses' sizes. $85.

CUBS LOSE TWO TO REDS; DROP TO 3D PLACE

ALL-STARS SPEED UP OFFENSIVE WORK FOR LIONS

COACHES ORDER SCRIMMAGE TO POLISH UP PLAY

Only 3 Excused from Heavy Drills.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

Coach Bernie Bierman and his associates on the All-American staf, having determined the capabilities of the All-Star squad, were prepared to forge ahead today in their preparation for the game against the Detroit Lions at Soldiers' field on Sept. 1.

Two sessions daily have been scheduled for the next two weeks, which will be marked by the most intensive drill in the three year history of the All-Star game. Precedent already has been broken in this respect, with the coaches devoting extra time to the fundamentals of blocking, tackling, and other rudiments All-American players heretofore were assumed to have mastered as undergraduates.

Plans Heavy Scrimmage Work.

Bierman intimated that scrimmage will form the greater part of this week's training program, particularly after the 51 players have become thoroughly acquainted with their assignments. Eighteen plays, all off one formation, were handed out in the first three days of practice at Northwestern and more will be taken up today.

Saturday's scrimmage, the first of the year, served principally to acquaint the coaches with the individual behavior of well known strangers on the squad and also as another manifestation of the willingness and enthusiasm of the men. Sweltering under a blistering sun, they began actual contact work with a verve and vigor that dispelled any doubt that this year's squad is more anxious than any other to accomplish the first college victory in the series.

Only Three Excused Today.

After a day of rest yesterday, when the squad occupied itself with golf, the White Sox-Tiger double-header, and the private beach along the campus, Trainer Carl Erickson reported that all the invalids will be available for the less strenuous part of today's exercise and that only three will be withheld from the rigorous work.

Bill Shakespeare, Notre Dame half back, who was elected to the starting team by the fans of the nation, spent a large part of the day treating his injured ankle and expects to be ready to resume his duties beside Riley Smith of Alabama, Sheldon Biese of Minnesota, and Jay Berwanger of Chicago in the All-American back field by Wednesday.

Dick Smith, veteran Minnesota tackle, who suffered a bruised shoulder in Saturday's scrimmage, was hampered only slightly by the injury yesterday and Eddie Erdlatz, St. Mary's end, appeared on the road to recovery from a charley horse. Stan Pincura, Ohio State quarter back, and Don Irwin, Colgate full back, who became ill in the excessive heat Saturday, are ready to resume work.

N. U. Mecca for Coaches, Scouts.

Northwestern has become the mecca for football coaches and professional scouts since the squad assembled there on Thursday. Curley Lambeau, whose Green Bay Packers were beaten out by the Lions on the last day of the National league championship race last year, ventured the opinion that the Lions would not win after watching Saturday's scrimmages.

"I'll trade every Packer under contract except one for the pick of that squad," he confided to friends.

"Even with all their raggedness they played better football in that

OWENS IS BARRED BY A. A. U.; READY TO BECOME A PRO

Punished for Failure to Make Swedish Trip.

BERLIN, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Charged with taking an unauthorized runout on a scheduled trip to Sweden with a team of American track and field stars, Jesse Owens, Ohio State's triple Olympic winner, was suspended today by the Amateur Athletic Union.

At the same time there were indications that the colored athlete, with the approval of his coach, Larry Snyder, already had decided to turn professional and was returning home suddenly for the specific purpose of considering commercial inducements.

American officials, including Avery Brundage, president of the American Olympic committee, and Dan Ferris, secretary-treasurer of the Amateur Athletic union, took prompt action at a conference held in the Olympic stadium this afternoon after learning that Owens and Snyder suddenly had cancelled reservations for flying to Stockholm with the squad which left London this morning.

Sail for U. S. Wednesday.

Owens and his coach arranged, instead, to sail for home on the Queen Mary leaving Wednesday. Ferris telephoned to Snyder, advising him of the decision barring the outstanding Olympic winner after failing to persuade them to change their minds and go through with an agreement to participate in a series of six meets in Sweden and Norway.

Snyder told Ferris that offers whereby Owens can capitalize on his Olympic conquests now were so attractive that it was necessary to return home without delay "to strike while the iron is hot."

A. A. U. Feels "Embarrassed."

The A. A. U. nevertheless felt it had been left "holding the bag," besides being placed in an embarrassing position with Sweden, which had been assured that Owens would be included on the touring team.

Officials were further irked because Snyder, who they said had consented to all the arrangements, also had agreed to manage the team's tour, lasting two weeks.

Brundage, who talked with Snyder in London last night without getting an inkling of Owens' sudden shift in plans, voiced his astonishment when a call came to Ferris from Rolf Dillon, chairman of the Stockholm committee in charge of this week's meet, protesting against Jesse's withdrawal.

Out of All Meets.

"We had no alternative under the circumstances but to disbar Owens," said Ferris. "It's an open and shut case of violating an agreement. It means Owens will not be able to engage in any competition controlled by the A. A. U. or in college meets either so long as he is under the ban.

"Snyder questioned whether the ruling could prevent Jesse from engaging in college competition, but I assured him it would under all standing agreements in which amateur status is involved."

"UNFAIR," SAYS SNYDER

LONDON, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Standing squarely behind his colored protégé, Jesse Owens, triple Olympic winner, Larry Snyder, coach of Ohio State's track and field team, accused the Amateur Athletic union today of not caring "whom it sacrifices to get its 10 per cent."

Informed that the A. A. U. had suspended Owens for failing to go through with a scheduled competitive tour of Sweden and Norway, Snyder cited what he said had been Owens' post-Olympic experiences as evidence of the A. A. U.'s method of handling athletes.

"Last Sunday," Snyder said, "Jesse was informed by Ferris [Dan Ferris, secretary-treasurer of the A. A. U.] just 45 minutes before time to leave

VAROFF VAULTS 14 FEET 4¼ IN. IN LABOR MEET

New York, Aug. 16.—(AP)—George Varoff, the world record holder who failed to make the boat to Berlin, proved he was no flash in the pan today when he soared over 14 feet 4¼ inches to win the pole vault as the world labor athletic carnival closed its two-day session in Randall Island's stadium.

On the same field where he saw his hopes of making the Olympic team fade after setting a world record of 14 feet 6½ inches in the national championships, the San Francisco janitor turned in the fourth best outdoor performance in track and field history.

Varoff Barely Warmed Up.

Although he failed by the narrowest of margins in an attempt to clear 14 feet 7 inches, for a new international mark, Varoff exceeded the height made by Earle Meadows in winning the Olympic title.

Varoff never warmed up to his task until his two nearest rivals, Eldon Stutzman of Syracuse and John Wonsowitz of Ohio State had dropped out after clearing 13 feet 6 inches.

Varoff's victory was the high spot of the final session that saw Lewis Perrin Walker, giant Georgia Tech sophomore, Peter Zaremba of New York A. C. and Louis Gregory of the Millrose A. A. of New York complete double victories.

Walker Finds His Speed.

Walker followed up his conquest in the 100 yards by stepping off the 220 yards in 20.8 seconds, five-tenths of a second slower than Jesse Owens' world record.

Zaremba, winner of the 56-pound weight throw on the first day, took the 16-pound hammer throw with a toss of 159 feet 8 inches. Gregory came back after winning the five-mile run to breeze home in the three-mile test, finishing 40 yards in front of his nearest rival in the slow time of 15:32.2.

Olympic Games End With Dramatic Flag Ceremony

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 16.—At 10 minutes past 9 o'clock tonight the Olympic flame went out in the Berlin stadium and the Olympic flag of five interlocking rings was hauled down to end the Olympic games of 1936. Simultaneously the flags of the nations which had taken part in the games were lined up before Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler.

The German flag was carried in first, with the American flag second, the Japanese flag third, and the Hungarian banner fourth. All flags were decorated with laurel wreaths by white clad girls in what seemed like a cathedral of light. The rays of seventeen of Germany's most powerful searchlights, which were concealed all around the stadium, threw archlike beams that met thousands of feet above the center of the stadium in the warm summer sky.

Stadium Closely Guarded.

Never before in the two weeks of the Olympic games was the stadium so closely guarded as today. Hitler's steel helmeted bodyguards were out in full force. The number of gray clad police officers was doubled compared to the opening day. They saw to it that nobody stepped near the railing of the balcony where Germany's leaders sat and the alles through which they walked.

Streets leading to the stadium were guarded by heavy cordons of Storm Troopers and Schutzstaffel men.

The closing ceremony of the Olympic games was pethetically dramatic with three aged top hatted men, outstanding as representatives of their generation, calling to the youth of the world to preserve the ideals of peace which they had seen wrecked time and time again in their long lives.

Japan Welcomes Flag.

William May Garland of Los Angeles, with his snow white hair, and the equally white haired Count Henri Baillet-Latour of Belgium solemnly entrusted the Olympic flag to Julius Lippert, state commissar of Berlin. Tiny Count Michimas Soyeshima of Japan, seemingly all shriveled with age, stood in the background ready to welcome the flag in the name of peace and in the name of Tokio for the next Olympic games, in 1940.

The Olympic fanfares were sounded and Count Baillet-Latour called out: "May the Olympic torch be carried on throughout the ages with ever greater eagerness, courage, and honor for the good of humanity."

This message was flashed on the huge screen which in the last two weeks had announced winner after winner of the Olympic games.

The Olympic chorus sang a farewell song especially composed for the day. A minute of silence was observed to unite the vast crowd from all countries of the world in thoughts of "Olympic peace."

Artillery Booms Farewell.

As the lights were dimmed five white clad men solemnly carried the white Olympic flag across the arena. They were followed by bearers of BERLIN, Aug. 16.—(AP)—The official statistical check-up of the record breaking Olympic attendance today disclosed an aggregate of 4,500,000 tickets sold to all events. Gate receipts totaled 7,500,000 marks, equivalent to slightly over $3,000,000. There were more than 1,000,000 visitors in Berlin during the two weeks, of whom 150,000 were from foreign countries.

LOUIS MUST WIN BY KNOCKOUT TO SAVE HIS CAREER

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pompton Lakes, N. J., Aug. 16.—Will Joe Louis return Tuesday night to Yankee stadium and demand reinstatement as one of the all time great heavyweight fighters by trouncing Jack Sharkey? Or has the terrific licking Louis received from Max Schmeling two months ago in that same ring definitly ended Joe's pretentions to greatness?

This is the issue. It can be decided in Louis' favor only by a spectacular victory, an early round knockout of Jack Sharkey, who started his ring career before Louis had enrolled in the first grade. It will not suffice for Joe to win a decision, and if he loses the decision, the result will be more devastating to his future and to his prestige than when Schmeling's right hand dropped him for a knockout.

Louis must win by a knockout Tuesday night—else he will have reached the end of the trail.

Result Hard to Predict.

Louis concluded his preparations this afternoon at Dr. Bier's camp with five rounds of boxing. Newspaper reporters and a few friends only were admitted. It was the eighth boxing session of the camp not including several afternoons of instructions.

Even if today's observers wished to predict the outcome, and you may believe they are exceedingly wary since Louis' defeat by Schmeling, the task is almost prohibitive. For sake of argument, let us assume Louis is the same ripping, slugging fighter as when he hammered Primo Carnera to the floor and whipped a timid Max Baer. Then, the unknown quantity in the equation is Sharkey.

Will the garrulous Jack fight as courageously as when he knocked out Tommy Loughran, or will he be the Sharkey who attempted to leap out of the ring in his first engagement with Carnera and later lost the heavyweight title to the same man by a knockout punch few saw and many suspect existed only in Jack's imagination? There are entirely too many ifs. We can report the following facts concerning today's workout:

Slower—And He Can Be Hit.

The Joe Louis we saw today is not the Joe Louis we saw in training at

SOX LOSE TWO GAMES TO TIGERS, 6 TO 4 AND 8 TO 6

Gehringer's Homer in 9th Clinches 2d Victory.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

A devastating homer by Charley Gehringer rounded out an afternoon of misery for the White Sox and 20,000 of their adherents yesterday. He knocked the ball out of the park in the ninth inning of the second battle just after the title-holding Tigers had tied the score, the hit stretching the Sox in horizontal position, 8 to 6. This turbulent conclusion, coming after the Tigers had triumphed in the opening battle, 6 to 4, stretched the losing streak of Jim Dykes' once gay warriors to five games.

The Sox had no reason to complain about their fate in the first game. Their hitting against Tommy Bridges while the slim curver was fashioning his sixteenth victory of the year was reduced almost to nothing. They could reach him for only four hits, scoring as much as they did only because of Tiger errors. But the Sox also erred to help the enemy run total and at the same time add to the troubles of Vernon Kennedy who with tight support could have lost more gracefully.

Sox Open with Four Runs.

The Sox didn't start off in the second battle in the same feeble way they completed the other. They hopped aboard School Boy Rowe's offerings with four runs in the opening inning. John Whitehead lost half of this when Goose Goslin hit a homer in the fourth, but the four run margin was restored in the fifth. It wasn't enough. Whitehead began to skid and in the eighth slipped right out of the picture. His rescuer, Clint Brown, making his second appearance of the day, couldn't make good on his assignment.

Whitehead had to leave under orders in the eighth when the bases were loaded with none out, partly because he failed to reach down for an easy tap that became a hit. Brown almost cleaned up the situation without anyone getting home, but with two out a bargain hit dropped in center field and two scored, leaving the Sox ahead, 6 to 5. Then a single in the ninth, a hit batter and Gehringer's No. 13 homer turned everything around.

The only Chicagoan able to play any kind of a hitting part in both games was Luke Appling. He singled once off Bridges, this being the only hit that figured when the Sox scored three runs in the fourth inning. In the second battle Luke twice applied his bat successfully in three attempts.

FIRST GAME

The Tigers earned one run in the second inning of the first game before Bonura experienced a brainstorm which gave them two more. Goslin started the manuever with a double to center. A fly to Radcliff disposed of Simmons. Goslin went to third on Owen's single through short and scored on Rogell's single. Hayworth tapped gently to Bonura who fumbled, filling the bases. Bridges also bounced to Bonura and this might have been a double play ball but Zeke fumbled again, Owen scoring. Rogell counted on Walker's fly.

Radcliff Gets a Pass.

It wasn't exactly bad pitching that started the Tigers on the way to two runs in the third. Gehringer led off with a tall fly to left, but Radcliff couldn't get it. It was worth two bases. Goslin produced another pop-up and it fell in short right for a single, Gehringer going to third. Simmons fouled to Bonura and Owen followed with a single on which Gehringer scored. Goslin went home on Rogell's single. Rogell stole second. Hayworth was purposely passed. Bridges fanned and Walker rolled into a force play.

The first Sox to reach base on

3 RUNS IN NINTH GIVE CINCINNATI FIRST GAME, 4-3

Lon Warneke Wilts; Carleton Beaten, 5-4.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 16.—The Cubs, who blew a chance to go into first place here yesterday, toppled into third place this afternoon when they took a double whipping from the Cincinnati Reds, 4 to 3, in the first game, and 5 to 4 in the second.

The Reds rallied with three runs in the ninth to take the first contest at a time when Lon Warneke seemed about to distinguish himself with one of the best performances of the year. The fading champions were jittery in the second affair, and allowed Manager Dressen and his erstwhile sulking crew to upset their morale, first with side line verbiage then with bats.

French Charged with Defeat.

Though Manager Grimm, in a high state of excitement and panic, yanked Warneke with runners on first and second and one out in the ninth, Lon was not the loser in the first game. Larry French came in to pitch to one batter, who singled and put the winning run on bases. Then French was yanked. Charley Root accomplished one out, but Pinch Batter Cal Chapman socked a double and the winning runs ran home.

Tex Carleton, seemingly still in a state of temper over his recent experiences in St. Louis, was the starter and loser of the second game. Some of the long dormant Cub hitters became aroused in the second game to no purpose, of course. John Gill knocked a pinch homer and Bill Herman, who had made only one hit, an infield scratch in the first three games here, reeled off three singles in a row.

Punch Is Missing.

The Cubs did a lot of hitting in both games, but the punch which has been so sadly missing for three or four weeks, continued elusive time after time.

The fact that the Cards yesterday pulled 2½ games away from the bogged down champions is not as significant, perhaps, as the fact that the Giants passed them to go into second place. A few days more than a month ago the Giants were 11½ games back of the Cubs, then leading the league by a margin of three games over the Cardinals.

FIRST GAME

Walker opened the Cincinnati offensive in the first game with a single to right, paused while Goodman flied to Allen and reached second while Herman was making a nice play near first to get Scarsella. Walker scored when Cuyler rolled a single past Hack. Ki was out trying to steal second.

The Cubs tied the score in the fourth and for a time seemed on the verge of going further. After Herman had fouled to Lombardi, Demaree walked. Hartnett popped to Kampouris but Galan singled to left, Demaree stopping at second. Jurges also singled to left, scoring Demaree. Cuyler juggled the ball, causing Galan to try for third, where he was sunk, Cuyler to Riggs.

Herman got Hallahan's second pass of the game to start the sixth, and it, like the one given Demaree in the fourth inning, blossomed into a run. Herman stopped at second on Demaree's single to left, made after Frankie had failed in a sacrifice attempt. The runners advanced on Hartnett's sacrifice and Herman scored on Galan's fly to Cuyler. Cuyler's throw got past Lombardi and for some reason Ki and not Ernesto was charged with an error when Demaree reached third. Jurges lined to Walker.

Cubs Add Another.

BROWN TO MEET ARON TONIGHT IN MARIGOLD RING

Harold Makes First Start at Ten Rounds.

The Card

Harold Brown vs. Milt Aron [10], 147.
Harry Schuman vs. Buddy Moore [6], 165.
Carl Fasnaugh vs. Mike Gamiere [5], 137.
Eddie Carroll vs. Johnny Terry [4], 147.
Cowboy Lozan vs. Frankie Kluiz [4], 155.

Harold Brown tonight will make his first windup appearance as well as his first start at ten rounds at Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street, against Milt Aron, whose welterweight championship bubble was deflated two weeks ago by a defeat at the hands of Chuck Woods.

Brown, Chicago Golden Gloves product, earned the assignment by compiling a splendid record since last November. In that time the 21 year old west side boxer has engaged in eleven battles without suffering defeat. After scoring knockouts over Ed Schiller, Mickey O'Shea, and Ray Drake, Harold fought four rounds to a draw with Al Pahl March 9. He has won his last seven fights, his victims including Pahl, Tommy Howell, Phil McQuillen, and Benny Barrish. The victories over Barrish, June 15, and Howell, June 29, were accomplished in eight rounds.

Brown Uses Woods' Style.

Aron will encounter the same style against Brown as that displayed by Woods, who used a stinging left jab to the face, left and right swings to the body and head, coupled with speed and ability to tie up his 20 year old foe in the clinches to emerge victorious, breaking a string of eight triumphs Milt had hung up.

Aron will suffer his second straight setback if he doesn't show improvement over the form displayed against Woods.

Schuman to Meet Moore.

Harry Schuman, middleweight brother of Solly Schuman, the old featherweight, and Buddy Moore will be principals in the secondary feature at six rounds. A scrap at five rounds involves Carl Fasnaugh, Toledo, O., lightweight title aspirant, and Mike Gamiere, 1935 Chicagoland Golden Gloves champion. There will be three other encounters, one between wrestlers.

Ivan Rasputin, bewhiskered heavyweight wrestler, and Rudy Kay will meet in a scheduled 60 minute bout tonight at White City, 63d street and South Park avenue. Red Vagnonne clashes with Ray Ryan in the semi-final, booked for 30 minutes. Preliminary affairs match Bob Miller with Jerry Meeker, Phil Gruber with Cleve Welch, Chief Wurham with Del Harris. . . .

11th Olympics Are Closed in Flag Ceremony

flags of all nations. The flag bearers were formed into two lines and slowly filed into the archway beneath Hitler's balcony. There the Olympic flag bearers joined them. They all disappeared from sight and artillery boomed its farewell.

The Berlin Olympics were over, but the work on the Tokio games already was under way.

The United States must work out a new method of choosing and training its teams to meet the fiercely nationalistic feelings of a number of countries, which see in the games a national issue, Avery Brundage, president of the American Olympic committee, said in an interview as he stood on the roof of the Olympic stadium.

U. S. Trials Tax Strength.

"We have at least ten athletes, both men and women, who are good enough to compete in every event of the Olympic games," he said. "We were able to take only three along. This meant that those who made the team had to go through strenuous competition which taxed their strength too much and handicapped them in the final fight. They also were just sportsmen going to international games instead of their customary sports at home."

Brundage apparently fully realized that this was not the spirit of teams of quite a number of countries, whose members were whipped into a frenzy of patriotic excitement through systematic training. Every man and woman on those teams felt that success meant promotion of their profession in addition to Olympic laurels, while defeat laid them open to the scorn of "good patriots."

"This creates a situation about which we must do something," Brundage continued. "We must give our young people the benefit of democratic principles. In other words, we must give every one his chance to show what he can do in a general elimination test. Yet at the same time we must enable our teams to cope with groups trained in a different spirit."

JOHNSOS SIGNS AS END, ASSISTANT COACH OF BEARS

Louis Needs Knockout to Save Career

Lakewood two months ago. Neither is he the same youngster who radiated confidence and backed it up by deeds for the last two years.

Louis seemed much slower afoot. He obviously was trying to remember his recent boxing lessons: "Protect your chin; remember what Schmeling did."

For that matter, can you imagine Louis, the giant killer, superfighter, conqueror of Carnera, Baer, Levinsky, Paulino, and Retziaff, taking boxing lessons?

Louis still can be hit on the jaw. We saw him hit this afternoon smack on the cheek which Schmeling massaged until Joe tumbled to the floor. The punches, delivered by young George Godfrey, and in particular by George Higgs of Harlem, were no mild taps, either. At least three of them were full blown and completely reminiscent of the bout with Schmeling. This Higgs, who weighs only 182 pounds, 21 less than the figure at which Louis began his afternoon chores, walked into the bomber without even howdy do. The Louis tradition doesn't hold any more in Harlem.

Must Start Fast.

Higgs was Louis' No. 2 opponent this afternoon. For a round and a half he was pitching strike for strike with Louis. Then he ran out of fire balls, overmatched in weight as he was, and went on the defensive. Louis then opened up with a body attack and an occasional right to the head, and Higgs, leaning disconsolately against the ropes, resigned just as Jack Blackburn yelled time.

This was Joe's best showing of the afternoon, for his last round with Tiger Roy Williams was a romp, entirely lacking in serious intent by either party. On this blasting of Higgs, John Roxborough based his statement:

There is a funereal silence about this camp which is depressing. One feels as if the king was dead and immediately suspects he is about to be buried. The only optimistic note is that Louis perhaps has enough left to cheat the aged Sharkey out of nomination for grave digger. Louis seems listless. W. W. Edgar of Detroit, who first sent Joe, an amateur champion to Chicago's Golden Gloves tournament, told Joe today he looked mighty indifferent in the ring. Louis shrugged his shoulders and walked away.

Joe Lacks Determination?

We do not wish to insinuate that Louis is frightened. We never will doubt Louis' courage after the licking he took from Schmeling. But we do believe that Louis this minute doesn't care much what happens. He seems to lack determination and ambition. Indeed, we heard Joe say today that the fight business is a mighty tough racket. It has been all the time, but Joe didn't find out about it until last June.

Roxborough and Julian Black are jittery. They have sufficient imagination, of course, to picture the future if Louis loses. And Jack Blackburn, so the story was told this noon, and Louis have had their troubles. Blackburn apparently won the argument, for Joe followed his orders.

This is the picture at Pompton Lakes. Over at the Orangeburg camp, 15 miles distant, Sharkey, who did not drill today and will not until the fight, is extremely confident. But Sharkey, the gent who made a success out of failure, and whose only rival for ups and downs was Fainting Phil Scott, does not rate as a prognosticator.

Sharkey has been as indifferent as we now charge Louis and as timid on occasion as King Levinsky.

Mike Jacobs who toured both camps today, hopes that 60,000 will see the bout. The prices range from $2.30 to $11.50, including tax. He reports that there has been a tremendous demand for ringside seats.

Talking It Over

RADIO contracts at Sportsman's park, St. Louis, restrict announcers from criticising or second guessing umpires. . . . Several of the mike experts almost choked to death on Umpire Bill Stewart's decision at second in the second game of the recent Cub series in St. Louis. . . . Unlike most college football coaches, Jimmy Phelan of the University of Washington is an optimist. . . . CHICAGO, NEWARK TEAMS LEADING 6 DAY BIKE RACE

Paced by the Chicago pair of Oscar Juner, German-American A. C., and Frenchy Gilles, C. Y. O., and the Newark combination of Charles Bergna and John Eiler, Chicago's first national amateur six day bicycle race plowed through a torrid opening day yesterday at the Humboldt park bowl.

At the end of the first day's riding three teams had been put out of the running by injuries, and seventeen of the twenty qualifying teams were left to face the second day of the title chase.

Freddy Hempler of San José, Cal., who was teamed with Martin Deras, withdrew from the race during the afternoon session. Deras remained in the race when Jack Hennessy, Hamilton, Ont., was injured, by teaming with Hennessy's partner, Louis Randoni, also of San Jose.

John Mesch and Clyde Ratza withdrew when Mesch was hurt during the afternoon session. The third team to be forced out was made up of Marcell Lauwers, C. Y. O., and Jack McAvoy, South Chicago Wheelmen. McAvoy was hurt in a bad spill during the 8 o'clock sprints.

N. U. Baseball Player Hit by Auto; Seriously Hurt

Frederick Adolph Linnstaedt, 23 years old, a Northwestern university baseball player, was critically injured last night when he was struck by an automobile driven by Peter Weissmuller, 31 years old, 719 Irving Park boulevard, brother of Johnny Weissmuller, the swimmer. The accident occurred in Sheridan road at Emerson street, Evanston, where Weissmuller said Linnstaedt darted in front of his car. He was held by the Evanston police. Linnstaedt, who lives at 1904 Hinman avenue, Evanston, was graduated last June from the school of education of the university.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 16.—(AP)—A flashy triple play with Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. in the pivot post brought a lusty cheer from President Roosevelt today as the White House "All-Stars" dropped a 15 to 12 softball game to the "Debtors and Creditors" of Lowell Thomas, radio commenter.

Three members of the President's family—two sons and a son-in-law—played for the White House nine, and Mrs. John Boettiger, the President's daughter, sat on the grass at first base to call the decisions there. Mrs. Boettiger's husband, John, held down first. Some of the opposition complained there were too many Roosevelts on the field.

The President went out for a long afternoon drive and dropped by in the third inning just as the Debtors and Creditors were putting across a six run rally.

Leaning over the side of his open car, the President lit a cigaret and offered a bit of personal coaching and rooting for the pickup team made up of members from his own family, reporters, and photographers.

Franklin D. Jr. held down third and batted in the cleanup position. John Roosevelt was assigned to the short field post and pulled down all but one drive.

The triple play came in the fourth inning. K. C. Hogate, rotund publisher of the Wall Street Journal, was at bat for the Thomas aggregation with a man on second and third and none out. He cracked out a drive that Francis I. Thompson, photographer-shortstop for the White House nine, snagged around his shoetops.

Thompson whipped the ball to Franklin D., who touched third and threw to Phil Pearl at second to catch the men coming back to the base.

Coaches Order Polishing Drills for All-Stars

Milan Creighton, coach of the Chicago Cardinals, who attended the scrimmage with Taylor and Lambeau, confined his remarks to the opinion that "individually the All-Stars are men enough to beat the Lions. It remains to be seen whether they can become team enough in two weeks."

Raggedness evidenced in Saturday's scrimmage will take care of itself as the men become more familiar with their assignments and each other. The chief problems confronting the coaches is getting Shakespeare in shape and keeping him that way to fortify the kicking and perfecting a defense for the Lions' intricate, speedy open offense.

All-Star Line Is Strong.

It is not likely that the Lions, or any other team for that matter, can gain much through the All-Star line where such exceptional men as Joe Stydahar of West Virginia, Bob Reynolds of Stanford, Dick Smith of Minnesota, Vern Oech of Minnesota, Gomer Jones of Ohio State, Dan Fortman of Colgate, Wagner Jorgensen of St. Mary's and Al Lind of Northwestern hold forth. But the Lions' chief threat is in sweeping plays and accurate passes, thrown from tricky formations. This phase of work will be stressed next week after the All-Stars have perfected their own offense.

Bierman and his assistants, Bo McMillin of Indiana, Elmer Layden of Notre Dame, and Lynn Waldorf of Northwestern, are thoroughly acquainted with the ability of Dutch Clark, the Lions' No. 1 offensive threat, but they intimated that they are not planning any special defense for Clark. Such a policy, they contend, would be fatal, as long as such pestiferous annoyers as Presnell, Caddel, Shepherd and Gutowsky are able to strap on a headgear.

C. Y. O. Baseball Playoffs Reach Semi-Final Round

Four undefeated teams—St. Adrian, Good Shepherd, St. Hyacinth, and St. Stanislaus B. and M.—reached the semi-final round of the C. Y. O. Baseball league playoffs by winning their quarter-final contests yesterday. The semi-final games will be played next Sunday at Normal park.

St. Adrian's nine, which has been a finalist in the C. Y. O. for the last four years, scored three runs in the ninth inning to gain a 3 to 2 victory over St. Ann. Andre Shunas, right fielder, accounted for St. Adrian's triumph when he hit a home run in the last inning to drive in two runs.

In the second half of the double-header at Normal park, Good Shepherd eliminated Our Lady of Grace, 5 to 2, to enter the semi-final round.

Other scores were St. Hyacinth, 15; St. Pius, 2, and St. Stanislaus B. and M., 24; St. Michael, 7.

Halas Lauds Bierman and His All-Stars

BY GEORGE HALAS.

[Head Coach, Chicago Bears.]

When the fans of the nation chose Bernie Bierman of Minnesota to head the coaching staf of the All-Americans they could not have picked a better man. His players respect him after graduation, which is a good index of the character of a coach.

His appearance and manner command respect. His record of winning the Western conference championship three years in a row commands respect, too. Under Bierman the Collegians will play clean, hard, heads-up football.

Bernie is not voluble and is no gland-hander. It is said that his players have scored touchdowns through these many years merely to cause Bierman to smile.

The election of Bernie fits in closely with the ambition of Arch Ward, sports editor of THE TRIBUNE, who is not only my boss during this series of articles but is also the athletic director of the All-Americans.

Praises All-Star Personnel.

The bald truth is that friend Arch, who is a zealot for amateur sports and collegiate football, has left no stone unturned to get together a team which will raise high the banner of the college game and place the colors of the National Football league at half staf. Through coöperation with 182 newspapers he has turned up every collegiate football stone to find the player or players who will turn the trick.

And we of the National Football league love it. It's for the good of the game, both college and professional, and advances what I consider the greatest of all sports. The Detroit Lions will give no quarter and expect none.

Even so, the coaching staf of the All-Americans, which includes besides Bierman, Elmer Layden, Lou Little, Bo McMillin, and Lynn Waldorf, will make Coach Clark and the Lions thoughtful. Incidentally, one fact seems to have been lost in the shuffle, namely, that originally the All-Americans' coaching staf was to be limited to two men. Three coaches were pitted against the Bears in 1934, last year the quota was raised to four, and for this year's encounter there are five. By 1939 there should be a coach for each position.

Mexican Generals, Is Hope.

Our secret hope, of course, is that the staf will develop into a group of Mexican generals.

Potsy Clark of the Lions, called by Bob Zuppke, my own college coach, the greatest quarter back Illinois has ever had, will not be dismayed by the array of famous coaching names. Potsy also carries the respect and genuine affection of the seasoned football men on his squad. That is one big reason why his team is always the fightingest outfit we meet year in and year out. Like true champions, they get up after being floored.

DUTCH CLARK'S EDUCATED TOE MENACES STARS

Football's Greatest Drop Kicker at Best.

Bloomfield Hills, Mich., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—Today's two practice sessions for the 40 members of the Detroit Lions football squad were turned into a field day for Earl [Dutch] Clark. In the morning session in a special 60 yard dash race for all the players the Flying Dutchman crossed the line ahead of Ernie Caddel, rated the fastest man in the National Football league, and Reino Nori, an exceptionally fast runner from the Little 19 conference.

In the afternoon workout Clark pleased 1,550 spectators by sending 10 straight drop kicks through the uprights from distances varying from 25 yards to 40 yards.

If and when Dutch Clark, who faces the college All-Stars in Soldiers' field, Chicago, on the night of Sept. 1, boots over a drop kick, he will receive plenty of applause, but few people cheering him will realize just how much practice and effort Clark has spent on kicking such goals.

Not Many of Them Left.

Clark is just about the only drop kicker left in the game. Paul Pardonner, the former Purdue quarter back, now with the Cardinals, occasionally uses the drop kick, but not so frequently nor with the success of the Lions' quarter back.

Clark has always used the drop kick in preference to the place kick, but he knows no definite reason for the dying out of drop kickers.

"I suppose it is because the place kick is more easily taught and more quickly learned. The kick is more certain under all conditions than the drop kick, even though the drop kick is a bit faster," said Clark.

"I've always drop kicked. I started when I wasn't much bigger than a football, and it has been my favorite method of kicking. I suppose I had some natural aptitude for drop kicking because I wouldn't have stuck to it unless I was fairly successful.

Takes Years of Practice.

"But I don't suppose there will be many more men noted for drop kicking unless one comes along who is a natural at the specialty. I know that in 1933 when I was coaching at the Colorado School of Mines I didn't try to coach my men drop kicking. I tried to make them place kickers.

"There isn't time any more to teach men any one specialty. Football is too involved, and where you can train a man to kick from placement with some success and not much time, it takes years to make a man sure with his drop kicking."

CARDINALS BEAT PIRATES TWICE, 4 TO 3 AND 7 TO 2

Dean Refuses to Pitch 1st Game, Then Wins 2d.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 16.—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals came from behind twice today to defeat the Pirates in a double-header, 4 to 3 and 7 to 2.

Approximately 35,000 fans, largest Forbes field crowd this season, watched the Cardinals tighten their hold on the leadership in the National league pennant chase.

Dean refused to pitch the opening game because he said he had a "sore arm," but took the mound in the second game. Just what changed Dizzy's mind about pitching between the first game and the second isn't known.

Sports writers accompanying the cards said Dean and his teammates were ruffled by an exhibition game played in St. Paul last Friday which necessitated an 800 mile overnight trip to reach Pittsburgh for Saturday's opening game of the series.

Sox Lose to Tigers Twice, 6 to 4 and 8 to 6

Bridges was Radcliff who walked with two out in the fourth. He scored and so did a couple of others. Bonura was safe on a wide throw by Owen. Appling singled to center for the first hit, Radcliff scoring and Bonura going to third. Hayes hoisted a pop fly to short right and Gehringer obligingly dropped it, Bonura and Appling charging home.

Kreevich furnished the power for the run scored by the Sox in the fifth, leaving the Tigers one ahead. Sewell walked and was shoved to second on Kennedy's bunt. Kreevich bounced a double off the left field wall and Sewell scored. But neither Rosenthal nor Radcliff could move Kreevich any farther than third. The Tigers increased their lead to two runs in the seventh when Gehringer singled and scored on a hit by Simmons.

SECOND GAME

All that happened to Rowe while four runs were scoring in the opening inning of the second battle was four hits and one pass. Kreevich started it with a single to right. Rosenthal fanned, but the real flareup came immediately. Radcliff singled and Bonura walked, loading the bases. Appling thumped Rowe's first pitch for a double to right, Kreevich and Radcliff going home and Bonura to third. Bonura skipped over the plate on Hayes' fly and Appling scored on Piet's high bounding single to Owen.

Whitehead conducted his affairs in high class style until the fourth, when a couple of hits cut his four run lead in half. Burns opened the inning by fanning, but Gehringer singled to right. After running the count down to 3 and 2 Old Man Goslin hoisted a lazy fly toward right. It came down a couple of feet inside the foul line and a few feet outside the wall for a homer and two runs. Simmons then survived on a fumble by Appling, but the next two batters offered no resistance.

Sox Rally for Two Runs.

Two were out in the fifth before the Sox began their two run rally. Radcliff singled to center and dashed to third on Bonura's double to left. Appling was awarded an intentional pass, a maneuver the Sox didn't regret. Hayes singled to center, Radcliff and Bonura scoring. Mr. Simmons made the customary throw to the plate, but it was merely a gesture and not even a good one. The session ended with Piet's tap to Rogell.

The Tigers received an invitation to score in the sixth and accepted it. Whitehead did the inviting by making a bad throw on Burns who led off. Burns was forced by Gehringer, who went to third on Goslin's single to right and home on Simmons' fly to Kreevich. Owen caused distress by sending Goslin to third on a double to left, but the trouble disappeared when Rogell died swinging.

Whitehead Goes Away.

The eighth, which sent Whitehead on his happy way with the bases filled and none out, opened with singles by Burns and Gehringer. The bases were loaded with a pass to Goslin. Brown took over the job. The first event was Shea's feat of picking Goslin off first. Simmons bounced feebly to Brown for the second out. Then Owen hit a fly to short center and it fell for a double, Burns and Gehringer scoring. Rogell lined to Kreevich to close the inning.

The dusting off of the Sox in the ninth began when White, batting for Hayworth, singled to left. Brown dug himself deeper into the pit by hitting Rowe on the left wrist. Walker contributed a sacrifice. Burns sent a fly to Radcliff and White went home with the trying run after the catch. Gehringer did the rest a moment later. He let one pitch go past because it was wide, but Brown made the next one too good and it sailed away into the upper right field deck, carrying with it the hopes of the Sox.

AWAIT WORD ON GRANVILLE ENTRY IN $7,500 RACE

Western Trainers Hope He Won't Run Saturday.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Trainers of a dozen 3 year olds yesterday went about the work of pointing their charges for Saturday's renewal of the $7,500 Sheridan handicap at Washington Park in a somewhat nervous frame of mind.

Not until noon today when Racing Secretary Charles McLennan returns from Saratoga Springs will they find out whether or not the champion Granville is coming out from the east to seek this prize, the only one fashioned for 3 year olds at Washington Park this season.

Weight May Stop Him.

If Granville stays away the westerners will have things pretty much their own way in the Sheridan. If Granville makes another western invasion about all they can hope for is a scrap of the slim end of the spoils. However, the Sheridan is a handicap and Granville won't have things nearly so easy in it as he might have had in a weight for age event which would find the entire field in at equal weights.

Secretary McLennan will also bring back word as to whether or not Warren Wright will send one or both of his 3 year old stars—Sun Teddy and Count Morse—here from Saratoga for the race. Sun Teddy ran Granville to a nose decision in the Travers Stakes on Saturday and it is believed that if Granville ships west for the Sheridan, Sun Teddy will come along to take another crack at him. Otherwise Mr. Wright may depend on Count Morse alone in the Sheridan.

Not Afraid of These.

Others now at Saratoga which are eligible for the Sheridan are Greentree stable's Memory Book, Ogden Phipps' White Cockade, Belair stud's Isolater, Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Dusky Prince, and the Wheatley stable's Invermark. However, the westerners getting ready for the Sheridan are not particularly afraid of these horses.

On the grounds at Washington Park awaiting the engagement are Sir Jim James, which turned in a brilliant victory last week; Morris Vehon's fast filly Threadneedle, Jake Lowenstein's Lady Montrose, and the Tranquillity Farm stable's Songmaker, Captain Cal, and Absconder. Col. E. R. Bradley's Bow and Arrow, Chicago stable's Gyral, A. C. Compton's Microbe, H. Fredberg's Bolo, Mrs. Emil Denemark's Noble Star, and Howard Oots' Marica are also there.

Field May Include Ten.

If Granville comes west for the race there may be eight or ten starters. If he stays away a dozen or more may try for the $7,500 prize.

Lean Year in Prospect for Duck Hunters

BY BOB BECKER.

With a 30 day open season starting Nov. 1 in Illinois, a bag limit of 10 ducks, and no shooting over baited grounds and over live decoys, waterfowl hunters again face a lean season this fall. The regulations governing the coming waterfowl season are just about what most hunters expected. At least they were no surprise to us.

And the closed season on canvasbacks and redheads was anything but a surprise because most of our open water or diving ducks have been decreasing instead of increasing.

Birds Nest Over Illinois River.

Even so hunters in Illinois should have just about as good if not better hunting than any group of shooters in the country because pintails and mallards nest over such a big country that invariably they come through with a pretty good crop of birds even though some localities are hard hit by the drouth.

Furthermore, the experience of recent years indicate that if there is any water at all along the Illinois thousands of birds will come to that stream rather than take a continual pounding along the Mississippi. There are rest grounds along the Illinois. Along the Mississippi is many a mile where a duck can find neither food nor a refuge.

Few Changes in Rules.

There are not many changes in the hunting regulations this year as compared to last season. The time is Nov. 1 to Nov. 30 for Illinois. We are in the middle or central zone since the government has established a northern, central, and southern zone. Wisconsin hunters will get Oct. 10 to Nov. 8 for their waterfowl hunting.

The bag limit was ten last year and it will be ten again this season. Shooting starts at seven o'clock in the morning and must stop at four in the afternoon. Use of live decoys is again prohibited. One may not shoot birds over baited grounds. . . . another last year's regulation which is being repeated this season.

The 30 day shooting period from Nov. 1 to 30 here in Illinois gives the state the peak of the fall season. The big migrations usually hit Illinois between the 18th and the 25th of October.

TRAFIC UPTURN AIDS RAILS TO REPAY LOANS

Pelley Finds Outlook Best in Years.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Increased earnings from both freight and passenger divisions are rapidly enabling major railroads of the country to retire loans from government credit bureaus and other emergency agencies, according to a report released last night by J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads.

Although several large lines are still awaiting reorganization under section 77 of the amended federal bankruptcy laws and carriers operating in the west face the prospect of curtailed freight trafic during the next few months because drouth has reduced crops, the general picture, as shown by current figures, is the most encouraging since the beginning of the depression.

Passenger Business Stimulated.

Installation of new type streamlined and air conditioned trains and speeding up of schedules have given railroads a big increase in passenger revenues. Reduced fares have also brought more business to many lines. Freight car loadings have risen on the upturn in volume of general business which has been in progress ever since the Supreme court threw out the NRA.

Pelley reports that repayments by the railroads of debts to the federal government and to the Railroad Credit corporation already amount to $216,000,000.

"Repayments by the railroads of loans made by the Reconstruction Finance corporation, which has been the principal lender to the carriers, have alone amounted to $155,292,399," he states.

"Of that amount, $64,325,436 was repaid in the first seven months of this year, which was more than was repaid in any of the preceding four calendar years. With these repayments, railroad loans by the RFC and outstanding Aug. 1, amounted to $350,840,840.

Repay Equipment Loans.

"Tabulations also show that the railroads have repaid part of the loans for new equipment, new rail and maintenance work by the Public Works administration to bring about unemployment relief. Railway loans made by that agency totaled $200,529,500, of which $23,643,000 has been repaid, leaving $176,886,500 outstanding.

"A considerable amount of those outstanding loans, however, was recently transferred by the Public Works administration to the Reconstruction Finance corporation, which, in turn, sold many of the securities represented by those loans to the investing public. As a result, of the total amount of such loans outstanding on Aug. 1, this year, $91,741,000 has been sold by the RFC and were being held by the public.

"The Public Works administration still held $9,101,000 and the Reconstruction Finance corporation $76,044,500, which brought to $85,145,500 the amount of Public Works administration railroad loans still held by government agencies."

Half of Advances Returned.

The Railroad Credit corporation, a coöperative agency set up by the railroads themselves to aid weak lines in meeting fixed interest obligations, made loans totaling $73,691,368, of which $36,922,582, or more than half, has already been paid.

As a result the Railroad Credit corporation has been able, by a series of liquidating dividends, to repay the participating carriers 53 per cent of the money they put into the corporation. This money was derived from surcharges on freight rates collecting during the 15 months ended March 31, 1933.

The reason for the debtor railroads' improved ability to pay off their debts is easily seen in figures for operations and earnings in the first half of 1936. A large part of the increase in gross revenues has been carried over to earnings, because operating expenses have not risen as much as revenues.

Operating Net Rises.

In the month of June alone total operating revenues of class one railroads rose 17.5 per cent, but railway operating income increased 47.5 per cent. For the first six months of 1936 total operating revenues were 14.5 per cent higher than in the same period of 1935 and railway operating income was up 22.3 per cent.

Thus the trend was sharply upward at the end of the first half year, the June showing being substantially better than that for the first six months combined.

CHICAGO REGION RETAIL BUSINESS RISES 16 PER CENT

Washington, D. C., Aug. 16.—(AP)—A 16 per cent increase over last year in retail sales of 1,206 independent stores in Wisconsin, Illinois, and Indiana was reported by the commerce department today. The comparison covered the first half of the year.

Automobile dealers reported the greatest gain, 40 per cent, with lumber and building material dealers second with 26 per cent. Hardware dealers reported a 17 per cent increase and men's and boys' clothing retailers were tied with furniture merchants at 16 per cent.

Indiana led the three states, 268 stores reporting increases of 18 per cent. Sales of 534 Illinois merchants jumped 17 per cent, and those of 404 Wisconsin merchants 12 per cent.

America to Bid for Argentine Corn This Year

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The United States this season will bid against European countries for Argentina's corn surplus. Several million bushels of Argentine corn have already been purchased this season by American interests for shipment to this country later in the year. Normally Europe depends on Argentina for substantial corn supplies, and this year will meet brisk competition from this country.

Even if the United States imported the entire Argentine surplus, however, it would not go very far toward relieving the domestic shortage. In a normal year the Argentine surplus available for export does not equal production in the state of Iowa. Over the period of 1929-'33 the average annual harvest in Iowa was 433 million bushels. Argentina's biggest export season in recent years was 1931-'32, when she sold 387 million bushels to foreign countries.

Less than Iowa Output.

Assuming the importation of 100 million bushels of Argentine corn this year, it would not make up for the deficiency which exists in the Iowa crop. Purchase of any substantial amount by this country, however, will boost the return of Argentine farmers for their crop and cause Europe to pay more for its corn.

This country's shortage, if this season's crop is measured by "normal" years, is around a billion bushels. The United States is the dominant world producer and consumes practically all of its own output. Average exports from 1925 to 1930 averaged only 23 million bushels a year, and since 1930 practically no corn has moved out of the United States.

States west of the Mississippi river this year will not produce enough corn to supply their own needs. Commercial processors will draw their supplies largely from Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. Surrounding states will tap Iowa for supplies to meet their feed requirements.

Consumption Varies.

The country's corn consumption varies with production, while consumption of wheat holds fairly steady from year to year. A short corn crop means premature slaughtering of live stock with a resulting temporary glut in the live stock market. Lower meat prices may be the immediate result but the reduction in the live stock population is eventually reflected in higher meat prices.

Corn is so scarce in many communities that it is bringing a better price than wheat in the same localities. Diversion of wheat into feed channels on a large scale seems certain.

The advance in corn prices in Buenos Aires has not kept pace with the advance in Chicago, so that Argentina has found it easy to sell to importers in this country.

The advance in corn in Chicago last week overshadowed the wheat market, which declined slightly. Principal corn futures closed about 2 to 3 cents a bushel higher.

New York, Aug. 16.—[Special.]—Thomas E. Murray Jr., receiver of the Interborough Rapid Transit company, reports a net loss of $5,580,821 for the fiscal year ended on June 30, 1936, after the full Manhatttan 5 per cent dividend rental, payable if earned, and all expenses, taxes and charges. This compares with a $4,867,309 net loss for the preceding year. The net loss before Manhattan dividend rental was $2,798,371, against a net loss of $2,084,859 the year before.

Gross operating revenue aggregated $56,453,077 for the fiscal year, including $44,600,022 from the subway division, compared with $55,782,623 and $43,858,527, respectively, the year before. Net income from operations, after expenses and taxes, was $16,312,935, against $16,348,343, with net operating income of the subway division at $17,087,284, against $16,770,374. The Manhattan division lost $774,349, against a $422,030 loss in the preceding year.

United Engineering and Foundry Profit Increases

The United Engineering and Foundry company, Pittsburgh, reported yesterday that its net profit for the first half of 1936 was $1,293,231, equal after preferred dividends to $1.55 per share on the common stock, as compared with $552,702, or 64 cents a share, for the like 1935 period. The 1936 profit was before provision for the federal surtax on undivided profits.

TERMS OF CUBAN BOND ACCORD REPORTED FIXED

New Loan Held Price of Payment.

BY GUSTAVO RENO.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Aug. 16.—An agreement has been reached to resume payments to United States holders of $60,000,000 worth of defaulted Cuban public works bonds, THE TRIBUNE learned today.

MIGUEL GOMEZ. [A. P. Photo.]

The price to be paid by American bankers and bondholders to Cuba for her recognition of the legality of the bonds and the resumption of payments will be the consolidation of all Cuban debts to the United States aggregating approximately $100,000,000 and an additional loan of $45,000,000.

The consolidation will include the J. P. Morgan and Speyer loans to Cuba. Interest will be revised, not to exceed 4.4 per cent, and maturity will be set at sixty years—the same terms applying to the new $45,000,000 loan.

Issued Under Machado Régime.

The defaulted public works bonds were issued during the régime of the now exiled President Gerardo Machado. The bonds, bearing 5½ per cent interest and maturing in 1945, were defaulted for the first time Dec. 31, 1933, and no payments have been made since then.

One of the complaints against the Machado administration was of graft and mismanagement in connection with proceeds of the public works loan. Following Machado's overthrow in the August, 1933, revolt, the bonds were repudiated as illegal. Succeeding provisional governments have pleaded that they had no power to tackle the problem which must wait until the election of a constitutional government.

The present agreement is the result of action by President Miguel Gomez, the secretary of the treasury, Walter Del Rio, and representatives of the American bondholders' committee. To complete the agreement it must be approved by the congress elected May 20 of this year.

To Resume Interest Payment.

Cuba is to resume payment of interest and amortization on the public works loan July 1, 1937. It is understood the Chase National bank of New York, the main holder of defaulted bonds, will be the chief supplier of the new $45,000,000 loan. The Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, Chicago, holds a minor portion of the defaulted public works bonds. The loan is to be made when the first payment on defaulted bonds materializes.

A stiff fight is expected in congress against restoring the bonds since most Cubans bitterly oppose payment of anything on the public works debt.

The bondholders' committee for the Republic of Cuba public works bonds has headquarters at 120 Broadway, New York. The committee includes Senator Gerald Nye, chairman; Albert F. Cole, secretary; Thomas Healy, assistant dean of Georgetown university, Washington, D. C.; J. Fred Rippy, professor of history at Duke university; Dr. Max Winkler, president of the council of foreign bondholders. Legal counsel to the committee are Senator Burton Wheeler and the firm of Katz and Summerich, New York.

ARMSTRONG CORK 6 MONTH PROFIT SHOWS INCREASE

Lancaster, Pa., Aug. 16.—(AP)—The Armstrong Cork company announced today it was installing machinery in its Pittsburgh plant to fabricate products formerly made in its now closed Spanish factories. Plants are located in Seville, Algeciras, Palamos, and Palagrugell, and temporary sales headquarters were established in France near the frontier. The company was notified its Catalonia factories have been operating since July 30.

Net income for the first half of 1936, both domestic and foreign, amounted to $1,676,399, after provision for taxes and other charges, equal to $1.38 a share, compared with a net of $1,523,295 for the corresponding period of 1935, equal to $1.26 a share.

Domestic sales increased 20.8 per cent in the first half of this year over the 1935 first half.

4,000 GAS, COKE WORKERS VOTE TO BACK LEWIS

Boston, Mass., Aug. 16.—(AP)—The president of the New England council of utility workers announced today 4,000 gas and byproduct coke workers had voted to quit the American Federation of Labor and back the committee for industrial organization headed by John L. Lewis.

Robert H. Strachan, the president, said their decision to affiliate with the United Mine Workers of America followed an all-day conference by representatives of twenty-three unions, including those in New England, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Racine, Wis., and Terre Haute, Ind. Locals from greater distances wired their approval, Strachan said.

NUMBER EMPLOYED BY STEEL INDUSTRY IN JUNE SETS RECORD

New York, Aug. 16.—[Special.]—Although operations of steel mills in this country were at only 70 per cent of capacity in June, the steel industry employed 498,000 persons, the largest number ever recorded, the American Iron and Steel institute announced today. Total pay rolls and hourly rates of pay also established new high records in June.

Employment figures for June represented a rise of more than 6,000 from May, 1936, and of 82,000 from June, 1935.

"Wage earning employés numbered 451,000 during June, almost 8 per cent above the total for June, 1929," the institute said. June operations were at only 70 per cent of capacity, while in eight months of 1929 they exceeded 91 per cent.

"The industry's pay rolls in June also established a new high record with a total of $63,000,000, a gain of $20,000,000, or 47 per cent, compared with a year before. For the first six months of 1936 total pay rolls amounted to $344,000,000, against $269,000,000 in the first six months of 1935.

"Hourly rates of pay for wage earners during June rose to 66.9 cents, against 65.5 cents one month before. Since June, 1933, wage rates have increased nearly 20 cents an hour, or more than 41 per cent.

"During June the number of hours worked each week was 40.8 and weekly earnings of steel wage earners averaged $27.30, compared with an average of $20.44 in June, 1395. The average weekly earning for wage earners in the steel industry in June were 12½ per cent above the average for twenty-five major manufacturing industries, as computed by the national industrial conference board."

JEWEL TEA CO. PROFIT REPORTED BEST SINCE 1930

Consolidated net earnings of the Jewel Tea Co., Inc., for the 28 weeks ended July 11 were the largest for the period since 1930, according to the company's statement issued last night. Earnings for the period were $875,851, equal to $3.13 a share, compared with $604,688, or $2.16 a share, a year ago. In the 1930 period earnings amounted to $887,623, or $3.17 a share.

In the 52 weeks ended July 11 net earnings were $1,807,350, or $6.45 a share, compared with $1,145,169, or $4.09 a share, in the 52 weeks ended July 13, 1935.

Net sales for the 28-week period amounted to $10,600,768, the largest for the period on records dating back to 1925. This compared with $10,010,241 in the corresponding period of last year, a gain of $590,527, or 5.9 per cent.

Current assets on July 11, 1936, amounted to $6,668,620, including cash of $1,469,784, against current liabilities of $1,716,363. This compared with current assets of $6,246,563, cash of $1,479,917 and current liabilities of $1,457,388 on Dec. 28, 1935. M. H. Karker, president, reported that taxes paid or accrued in the 28-week period this year amounted to $460,080, or $1.64 a share.

DUVEL SURPRISED BY SUIT AGAINST COMMODITY ACT

Washington, D. C., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Dr. J. W. T. Duvel, chief of the Grain Futures administration of the department of agriculture, expressed surprise today that an attack upon constitutionality of the commodity exchange act of 1936 had been made at Chicago. The Grain Futures administration is in charge of enforcing the act against which William S. Moore and other members of the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday asked federal court injunctions.

Dr. Duvel said most floor brokers and commission merchants had notified officials here they would register.

Informed that the Chicagoans questioned delegation of legislative and judicial powers, and operation of the interstate and due process clauses under the act, Dr. Duvel said these same objections to the 1922 grain futures act had been denied by the Supreme court. Duvel said the Chicago Board of Trade had questioned the 1922 act regulating grain markets, but lost the case.

STOCK OF COTTON AT SEASON'S END LOWEST SINCE '30

New York, Aug. 16.—[Special.]—A total stock of all cottons in the United States at the close of the season on July 31 was smaller than that on any comparable date since 1930, according to preliminary figures issued by the New York Cotton exchange service. It totaled approximately 5,477,000 bales, compared with 7,208,000 on the corresponding date last year and a maximum of 9,678,000 in 1932.

"During the past cotton season the distribution of cotton by the United States, in the form of consumption and exports, plus a small quantity destroyed, exceeded the new supply, in the form of production plus imports, by 1,731,000 bales," the exchange service points out. "Distribution totaled 12,395,000 bales, while the new supply aggregated only 10,664,000. It is this excess of distribution over the new supply which accounts for the reduction of the domestic carryover of all cottons from 7,208,000 bales last year to 5,477,000 this year.

"Distribution during the past season was much greater than in the previous season. The total of 12,395,000 for the past season compares with only 10,207,000 in the preceding season, the increase being 2,188,000 bales, but the distribution compares unfavorably with most past seasons for several decades."

WHOLESALE BUSINESS AGAIN LEADS TRADE ACTIVITY IN CHICAGO

Wholesale trade again paced Chicago business last week, the Association of Commerce reported yesterday. Out of town buyers on the closing days of the autumn and winter trade exhibits carried the Chicago turnover far ahead of a year ago, with women's apparel, house furnishings, toys, and gift wares meeting strong inquiry.

Mail order and retail houses reported a good week, although signs of curtailed buying caused by drouth in certain territories were seen.

Durable goods lines held to an even keel around their composite recovery peak. Improvement in electrical manufacturing is offsetting the letdown in farm implement fabrication, it was said.

Among the important business indices which currently are showing well above this season of 1935 are railroads, public utilities, real estate transactions, and automobile sales.

Average Auto Operator Pays $50 Tax in '35

Taxes amounting to nearly $50 a year were paid by the average motor vehicle operator in the United States last year, according to a survey by the Illinois Manufacturers' association made public yesterday. This was about $1 per vehicle more than the average tax paid per vehicle in 1934, the survey said.

Petroleum products and motor car users are carrying a tremendous tax burden, the association stated, adding: "Automotive taxes in this country in 1935 amounted to $1,288,000,000, according to the best estimates obtainable," the association said. "This was divided as follows: Registration fees, $320,080,000; state gasoline taxes, $625,000,000; federal gasoline and excise taxes, $272,920,000; personal property and municipal taxes, $70,000,000.

Tax Paid by Consumer.

"The petroleum tax on products and operation alone, as paid by the industry and its customers in 1935, amounted to $1,127,259,232. In 1934 when the petroleum tax bill amounted to $1,046,149,575, it represented 11 per cent of all federal, state, and local taxes.

"The cost of state taxes on gasoline in 1935 rose above $600,000,000 for the first time since the levy was imposed in 1919. Federal taxes added about $170,000,000 to the consumer's gasoline tax bill.

Pay Over Billion.

"Without including the unreported additional taxes upon gasoline imposed by some counties and municipalities, the consumer in 1935 paid a total gasoline tax bill of approximately $770,000,000. This sum is approximately one-third of the estimated $2,459,000,000 total retail value of the more than 18,000,000,000 gallons of gasoline consumed in 1935."

Collection of these taxes, which were "in effect a retail sales tax of nearly 40 per cent," cost the industry an estimated $22,500,000, said the association.

The approximately 205 taxes now paid by, or through, the petroleum industry roughly amount to $1.14 per barrel of crude oil produced, the association estimated.

Black Diamond Line Wins Damage Suit in Brussels

New York, Aug. 16.—(AP)—V. J. Sudman, president of the Black Diamond Steamship corporation, announced tonight the receipt of cable advices that the Brussels Civil court has confirmed the claims of the Black Diamond lines and Compagnie Maritime Belge to collect damages from Arnold Bernstein and lines controled by him for the alleged violation of a pooling agreement.

STEEL OUTPUT DECLINES HALF POINT TO 70½%

Demand Is Heavy Despite Auto Letup.

The national steelworks operating rate last week declined 1 point to 70½ per cent of capacity, which is still an unusually high mark for this season, the magazine Steel said yesterday. The sustaining effect was good demand from sources other than the automobile industry, which showed a decline of 25,125 units in automobile production, the magazine said.

Producers are said to be considering the possibility of increasing finished steel prices for the fourth quarter because of mounting costs, according to Steel. During the last week three developments in the price situation occurred, the journal said.

A leading producer announced a $2 per ton increase on all eight grades of electrical sheets, effective immediately.

Rail Prices Extended.

Current prices on standard rails were extended until Nov. 1, and for shipment until the end of next year.

Export prices on plate were advanced $1 a ton to all countries except Canada, and an increase to the latter nation is expected shortly.

Steel's scrap price composite last week rose 58 cents to $14.83 due to broad advances in almost every district as the shortage in scrap continued. The scrap situation has led to increased pig iron activity, Steel said.

Although some good sized finished steel contracts were received last week, incoming specifications fell off slightly.

Foreign Orders Heavy.

Heavy foreign sales of machine tools and fair domestic demand have kept the industry operating at the highest level since 1929, Steel said, and foreign orders in July were more than double the June volume.

Operations in the Pittsburgh district last week dropped 3 points to 68 per cent of plant capacity because of mill employés vacations. The Chicago rate was down ¾ point to 71 per cent; eastern Pennsylvania, ½ to 50; Detroit, 7 to 93. In the New England district the rate advanced 2 points to 70 per cent; Birmingham, 5½ to 67; Colorado, 7 to 63; Wheeling, 3 to 95, and Youngstown, 2 to 79. Other districts remained unchanged.

Business Survey Cites Housing Shortage.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 16.—(AP)—The American Federation of Labor today estimated that 1,320,000 new homes should be built each year until 1945 to eliminate "a very serious housing shortage."

The federation, in a monthly business survey, said that the shortage, "if not remedied within a few years, will mean that millions of families must live in the sordid, unhealthy surroundings which breed illness and crime."

Cites Estimated Needs.

"Looking forward to 1945," the federation said, "authorities make the following very conservative estimates of new homes needed: To replace houses now not fit to live in, 3,250,000; further replacement from 1936 to 1945, another 3,250,000; to provide for new families who will start homes between now and 1945, nearly 6,750,000; total, 13,196,000 new homes.

"To keep up with the need, then, we should build 1,320,000 new homes each year from now until 1945. This would be an unprecedented volume of building, for the largest number of homes ever built by private industry in one year was 840,000, in 1928, and the average for 1920 to 1929 was 646,000 yearly."

Legislation Held Lacking.

The federation decided that the "real difficulty" in the way of this program was lack of what it described as adequate federal housing legislation.

Private industry could provide only 880,000 new homes a year at a profit, the federation said, even if workers' income reached the 1929 level.

"Are the other families to live in slums, or shall the government make decent homes possible for them?" the federation asked.

Hourly Wages in Hosiery Industry Reported Higher

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—Hourly earnings in the full-fashioned hosiery industry in 1935 nearly regained their high level of 1929, while the hourly wage in the seamless branch of the industry exceeded the 1929 mark, according to evidence revealed today by a study completed by the industrial research department of the University of Pennsylvania in coöperation with the National Association of Hosiery Manufacturers. Dr. George W. Taylor and Miss Lillian P. Goodman of the university's research staf were in charge.

Columbia Pictures.

Investors' Guide: Kindly send me information on Columbia Pictures.—Mrs. F. F.

Answer: Incorporated in 1924 as successor to several small producing companies, Columbia Pictures corporation is engaged in large scale production and distribution of motion pictures, both features and shorts.

The company does not operate any theaters, thus having avoided the losses incurred by some companies in il' advised real estate ventures.

Contrary to the general practice of the industry, this concern has not engaged high priced stars under long term contracts. Rather it has sought flexibility of personnel through hiring of talent for specific pictures or placing stars under options. This policy has helped the company avoid losses through large salary overhead.

The production schedule for the 1936-'37 season calls for a record output of 58 features and 126 shorts, the company having embarked on an expansion program last November.

To finance the expansion, 75,000 shares of $2.75 dividend convertible preferred stock were sold.

A 50 per cent stock dividend was paid on the common stock on Dec. 10, 1935, the number of shares outstanding being increased from 182,382 to 273,573. The stock was continued on a dividend basis of 25 cents cash quarterly plus 2½ per cent in stock semi-annually.

The dividend policy has been conservative. Though Columbia has reported profits through depression years without interruption, it suspended common dividends from October, 1931, to January, 1934. Strong financial position has been maintained as a result of this policy, current assets being $9,770,000 against current liabilities of only $1,695,000 on March 28, 1936. Surplus was $3,643,000.

In the fiscal year ended June 29, 1935, gross income was $14,390,000 and net income rose to a new peak of $1,815,000 or $9.91 per common share. On the basis of preliminary but unofficial estimates of net income of $335,000 or slightly more than $1 a share in the June quarter, against $242,000 the same quarter a year ago, the figure for the fiscal year just ended is placed at approximately $1,295,000, or $4.15 a share. On present capitalization, the 1934-'35 net is equal to $5.73.

Gross was $11,178,000 and net was $1,009,000 in the year ended June 30, 1934, compared with $10,496,000 gross and $740,000 net the preceding year, and $11,366,000 gross and $574,000 net in the 1931-'32 year.

DROUTH FORCES FARMERS TO BUY FEED FOR STOCK

Commercial Substitutes in Demand; Prices Up.

Short crops in drouth areas are sending farmers to the feed stores to buy commercial substitutes for feeds normally grown on their own farms. Processing plants are finding a ready outlet for any by-product that may be used as feed. There is an active demand for all available supplies of brewers' and distillers' grains to feed beef and dairy cattle. Such coarse materials as the hulls from cottonseeds, oats, and peanuts are either being fed as roughage or mixed with concentrated feeds. Screenings taken from small grains on farms and in elevators also are being used.

Many farmers who follow the practice of growing grains and roughage and buying only protein supplements to feed with them now are being forced to buy most or all of the feed for their live stock. They are faced with the problem of buying feeds or disposing of their breeding herds.

Prices Are Going Up.

Feed mills are reported to be working overtime to fill orders. Prices of most kinds of commercial feeds are going up and demands for them are increasing.

Large quantities of distillers' grains and some brewers' grains are being bought by feed manufacturers to blend with other materials in making mixed feeds. These by-products, in the form of wet grains or slops, used to be considered worthless. They usually were poured into the nearest stream, but when laws forbidding the pollution of streams became general, the breweries and distilleries began looking for other means of disposal. The slops were given to farmers who cared to haul them away. Then came the practice about 30 years ago of drying out the slops and selling the dried grains.

Distillers' grain has more feeding value for both beef and dairy cattle than brewers' grain. It contains more protein and is less bulky.

Produced in Kentucky.

Most of the distillers' grain produced in this country comes from the large distilleries around Louisville and Owensboro, Ky. The most available sources of large supplies in the middle west are at Peoria and Peking, Ill. Production of brewers' grain is centered in Milwaukee and St. Louis.

Comparatively small amounts of distillers' and brewers' grains are fed west of the Mississippi river. Most of the brewers' grain produced in Milwaukee is normally fed to dairy cattle in Wisconsin, while that from St. Louis is shipped into the southeastern states. Distillers' grains usually are sold in the east.

Movements of these and other feeds toward the east and south are due chiefly to the freight rate situation, which operates to work a hardship on midwest farmers this year when they are being forced to buy more commercial feeds than usual. Trafic experts explain that shipments of raw materials, moving over long distances in a given direction, have the advantage of a "through" freight rate. These rates apply to midwest shipments going south and east.

How "Through" Rates Work.

When the products are unloaded en route and processed, the finished products may be reloaded and sent on in the same direction without an increase in freight rates. This is known as a "milling in transit privilege." For example, corn may be shipped from Iowa at a "through" rate, put through the distilleries in Peoria, and the distillers' grain sent on to eastern markets with no increase in freight charges.

If some of this same distillers' grain should be shipped from Peoria back across the river into Iowa, the shipment would be considered a "back haul" and would have to be moved at a higher rate.
